Firmer Sanctions Urged on Rhodesia

Russia Deadly Serious

LBJ May Get Viet Warning

LONDON (UPI)—Communist diplomats said today the Soviet Union wants to convey a stern warning to President Johnson through Prime Minister Wilson that any further escalation of the Viet Nam conflict could lead to a major war.

They said the Russian-led Communist block is deadly serious in its recent threat to send volunteers to North Viet Nam and that the Warsaw Pact powers cannot stand idly by indefinitely.

'ANXIOUS'

They made it clear the Kremlin is "most anxious" to steer clear of any direct military crash with the United States and that the key to preventing such a catastrophe lies in Washington as well as in Moscow.

They hinted that Red China is going all out to promote a clash between the United States and Russia.

Wilson files to Moscow Saturday and expects to have talks with Premier Alexei Kosygin and other Kremlin leaders. Kosygin asked him Tuesday to advance his visit by three hours so he would arrive at 6 p.m., presumably so the talks could start then.

WILSON'S PLAN

Wilson's chief plan is to try to enlist Soviet co-operation in moves to reconvene the Geneva conference which settled the French-Indochina war in 1954 and of which both Russia and Britain continue to be co-chairmen.

Present indications are the Russians have no intention of heeding the British call or a similar call being made in Moscow by visiting Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indiri Gandhi.

Diplomats said Moscow would call such a conference only if the United States accepts the four peace conditions set by Hanoi and the five set by the Viet Cong in the south. The conditions add up to a withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Viet Nam.

MPs Launch Debate On Medicare Measure

MacEACHEN
. . . in a hurry?

OTTAWA (CP)—The government got conflicting advice Tuesday on its medical care insurance program.

New Democrats called for full speed ahead, delaying further the Commons' summer recess if necessary. But members of other opposition parties suggested legislation traffic signs should read: "Proceed with caution."

The Commons approved a resolution preceding the bill, got a first look at the legislation, and gave it first reading after 7½ hours of debate.

Health Minister MacEachen, piloting the legislation, said he hoped the bill would get second reading—approval in principle—before the House starts a summer recess. Second reading was listed as one of the points of business before the Commons today but there were several other matters listed ahead of it.

The bill set out the four conditions announced previously under which provincial plans qualify for a share of an estimated $340,000,000 annual federal kitty. A provincial plan must:

- Cover the full range of physicians' services.
- Cover 90 per cent of the province's population at the start, rising to 95 per cent in three years.
- Be publicly operated, non-profit and open to public audit.
- Be designed to be portable from one province to another.

Mr. MacEachen reiterated his hope that the bill would "result in the commencement of provincial medical care plans covering all Canadians on the 100th birthday of Confederation, July 1, 1967."

He added he would like to see the bill receive second reading before a summer adjournment but this was not a government requirement.

Conservative, Creditiste and Social Credit MPs plumped for thorough study of the bill before approval.

But NDP leader Douglas said it should be pushed through as soon as possible.

Medicare was promised in the Liberal party platform of 1917, he said. There might be some problems inherent in the proposed plan "but if we wait until we have a perfect setup we will never start."

" . . . The minister and this House cannot afford to give any province an alibi for not being ready to come into this plan on July 1 next."

OTTAWA PAYS HALF

Mr. MacEachen said it was estimated the plan, which entails a payment by Ottawa of 50 per cent of the per capita cost of insurance for physicians' services in the participating province, would cost the federal treasury $340,000,000 a year. The provinces would match this amount.

It was estimated Canadians

MacEachen Bucked For Pushing Bill

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen may have landed in hot water with some cabinet colleagues and Liberal MPs with his decision Tuesday night to push forward with the government's medicare bill before the summer recess.

His statement, which brought shouts of "no, no" from the Conservatives' Gordon Churchill, was to be raised at a morning Liberal party caucus meeting.

Mr. Churchill, member for Winnipeg South Centre, charged that Mr. MacEachen broke a commitment made by George McIlraith, the government House leader, during inter-party talks to arrange a date for Parliament's summer recess.

The health minister's statement came at the conclusion of debate on the resolution preceding the medicare bill. The Commons had just given first reading—a step that permits the bill to be distributed for study by the parties.

Mr. Churchill said that in numerous discussions with Mr. McIlraith during the past 10 days it was indicated the government would not proceed to second reading — approval in principle — of medicare before the recess.

He said he thought Mr. MacEachen's action "is breaking

Special Mediator Appointed

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — With a strike involving 32,500 employees of 139 Quebec hospitals only 12 hours away, Premier Daniel Johnson's office announced today that the cabinet's legal counsellor, Yves Pratte, had been named special mediator in the dispute.

The decision to name a special mediator was reached this morning during a meeting of an inter-ministerial committee, comprising the premier and representatives of the health, family and social welfare and labor departments.

QUICK ACTION HOPED

The premier said he hoped that all the parties involved would co-operate in the public interest in order to reach a settlement as rapidly as possible and without any interruption in hospital services.

The hospital workers involved in the dispute belong to 700 different union locals of which only 250 are affiliated to the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Their strike vote was taken June 29 in protest against lengthy delays in their talks with the administrations of the 139 institutions involved.

CANADA AIMS TO KEEP AFRICAN MEMBERS IN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is expected to announce soon that he will lead Canada's delegation to a Commonwealth conference that will discuss Rhodesia and other issues in London Sept. 6-14.

It was learned today that the Canadian delegation will oppose any action on Rhodesia that would cause African countries to withdraw from the Commonwealth.

Government spokesmen declined to comment directly on a threat Tuesday by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia to walk out of the Commonwealth in protest against British negotiations with the white supremacy regime in Rhodesia.

C'wealth Appeal By U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Britain was reported to have appealed to the Commonwealth today to provide more assistance to pave the way towards increased economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

The appeal was said to have been made during a Commonwealth sanctions committee meeting following a clash between Britain and Zambia over the effectiveness of current economic curbs aimed at bringing down the white-minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

An informant said Mrs. Judith Hart, junior minister in the British Commonwealth office, said even the offer of a single transport plane by a group of Commonwealth countries might prove vital for Commonwealth unity.

The sanctions committee meeting was adjourned for another session Thursday so that representatives could consult with their governments on how much aid to give Britain and Zambia to help turn the economic screws tighter against Rhodesia.

CHALLENGE SANCTIONS

The informant said Mrs. Hart maintained that current economic sanctions against Rhodesia are biting hard and causing increasing hardship among Rhodesian farmers and businessmen. But Simon Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, challenged that argument, maintaining that sanctions have not proven effective.

If Britain had used force to oust the Ian Smith regime at the very beginning of the trouble, the situation would have been far more satisfactory than it is today and the cost infinitesmal, Kapwepwe was reported to have said.

Britain had made an offer to Zambia of an estimated $21,000,000 to help develop alternative transport routes for Zambian imports and exports. Kapwepwe was reported to have stated this offer did not go far enough.

The British - led economic sanctions were applied after the Smith regime seized independence for Rhodesia last year when Britain refused to free its Central African colony without guarantees for eventual Negro-majority rule there.

Before that, landlocked, Negro-ruled Zambia had imported and exported through neighboring Rhodesia.

CREWS RESCUED

Tankers Ablaze After Collision

LISBON, Portugal (CP) — A Greek and a Norwegian tanker collided and caught fire today about 20 miles northwest of St. Vincente Cape, the southernmost cape of Portugal, and one officer was reported missing overboard.

Both crews were rescued.

A Portuguese Navy plane and a ship were dashing to help the tankers after a positional mix-up had delayed assistance, a navy spokesman said.

The alarm was raised shortly after the 11,577 - ton Greek tanker Marietta Nomikos — bound from Hamburg to the Persian Gulf—radioed that she was on fire.

Almost immediately the 34,395-ton Norwegian tanker Mosli reported she was also on fire.

One officer of the Marietta Nomikos was reported lost overboard.

CREWS RESCUED

The Mosli's 46 crew members were rescued by the 2,374-ton Norwegian freighter Bayard and the Greek seamen were picked up by the West German vessel Stuttgart.

The Stuttgart has firefighting equipment and was trying to halt the blaze.

From Lisbon, the 516-ton Portuguese tug Praia da Adraga sailed from Cape St. Vincent to join the navy ship Azevia, which had been patrolling the southern coast of Algarve.

AUTO SAFETY PLANS MOVE AHEAD IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House of Representatives commerce committee joined the Senate today in voting to require auto makers to comply with federal safety standards in time to affect 1968 models.

Acting on one provision of auto safety legislation, the group voted to require initial federal safety standards for all vehicles sold in the United States by next January 31, and revised standards a year late.

The Senate has passed a bill containing the same requirement.

The standards would take effect about six months to a year after they were issued by the Secretary of Commerce.

NECESSARY?

Air Fleet Probe Asked By Strachan

(See Page 21)

Opposition leader Strachan said today the New Democratic Party will call for a full investigation of the "so-called air fleet.

"We want to determine the necessity of the air fleet, the purpose it serves and whether or not the province needs the fleet at all," he said in an interview.

"We want to see if the best interests of the public and the provincial pocketbook are being served."

Commenting on the government's recent aquisition of a $500,000 Lear jet on a lease-purchase arrangement, Mr. Strachan said he thought it to be "a luxury the government could do without.

"They already have enough planes so (Highways Minister) Gaglardi can get to the church on time," he said.

When he flew to Prince Rupert last weekend to attend a Skeena nomination convention he said he "flew commercial and found it to be economic and expeditious."

"I fly quite a few thousand miles a year — all by commercial."

NEW STRIKES AT OIL DUMPS

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck new blows today at the war potential of North Viet Nam, where swollen rivers were reported threatening new devastation. A spokesman said a raid Tuesday, only 16 miles from Haiphong, turned an oil dump into an inferno visible for 140 miles.

Teamsters Veto Bid To Rejoin CLC

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the 40,000-member Canadian section of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) have refused an invitation to rejoin the Canadian Labor Congress, a Teamster source said today.

The Canadian delegation decided at the union's international convention last week in Miami to remain independent of the CLC at least until the U.S. section re-enters the AFL-CIO, he said.

The Teamsters were expelled from the CLC in 1959 for raiding other unions.

The Teamster source said Ontario representatives led a convention fight to rejoin the CLC but were outvoted by more militant west coast members.

THREE MEN UNHARMED AFTER 16-HOUR ORDEAL

Rescuers Chip Through to Trapped Miners

AMBROSIA LAKE, N.M. (UPI) — Three Indian miners, trapped 100 feet below ground in a uranium mine for 16 hours, were brought out unharmed in a dramatic rescue today.

The three Navajos squinted in the early morning sunlight as they emerged from the shaft of the Rimrock mine. They embraced their families, talked briefly with newsmen, shook the hands of their rescuers and then got in their cars and went home to bed.

The trio — Jerry Yazzi, 29; Charlie Martinez, 34; and Scotty Hudson, 27 — were caught in a cubicle four by eight feet Tuesday afternoon when the ceiling of a mine tunnel collapsed.

There were air holes into the chamber and the men received food and sweaters, to keep themselves warm, from the other side of the barrier during the rescue operation.

Martinez, in broken English, told newsmen: "I feel very good. I was awfully cold down there. I knew I was going to get out. It was a matter of time. I just sat there and drank the soda pop and coffee."

Hudson said it was "awfully good to see light again."

Yazzi said he would go home to sleep, then go back to work.

The rescuers had chipped away all night at eight feet of limestone to reach the trapped men. They could talk to the men all through the rescue. But they had to go very slowly because of the danger of triggering another cave-in.

New Mexico state mine inspector Bill Hays said the cave-in was caused by "a natural fault" and was something that could not be prevented. He said that portion of the mine would not be used again.

Verity docks in Ireland

FENIT, Ireland—The world saw it as a new record in transatlantic navigation and a tribute to human daring.

But for adventurer William Verity, his 65-day crossing of the Atlantic satisfied him that a legendary Irish monk by the name of "Brendan the Bold" could have beaten both Columbus and Leif Ericsson to the New World.

The red-haired Fort Laudervale, Fla., boat-builder sailed into this small fishing port Tuesday in his specially-rigged sloop "Nonoalca" at the end of his Florida to Ireland voyage. The 12-foot sailboat was the smallest vessel on record to cross the Atlantic.

Verity, who plans to spend 10 days here resting up from his trip, said he made the voyage to prove that early Europeans—including Irish monks—could have crossed the Atlantic in small boats to discover America before Columbus or the Norwegians.

The 5-foot 6½-inch sailor said he completed his lonely trip without much incident. His feat topped the feat of Cleveland, Ohio, newsman Robert Manry, who crossed the ocean last year in a 13½-foot sailboat, the Tinkerbelle.

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask.—A group of North Battleford pre-school youngsters have used sit-in tactics to save their playground here.

Having heard adult talk of recreation department plans to take the equipment from their playground and use it at another playground, the children were ready when a work crew arrived.

Assistant city recreation director Buziak and his men found a child on every swing, the slide, the teeter-totters and the merry-go-round. One little girl gave him a scrap of paper which her nine-year-old brother had prepared for her as a petition. Then she broke into tears.

It was more than Buziak could take.

Tuesday, all the equipment at the playground was still in place and in good repair and the grass was newly-cut.

PARIS—The last in a long line of practitioners of what was once a flourishing trade announced her retirement today.

Mme. Helen Chapas announced she will retire in October as Paris' last remaining letter writer. For the past 35 years she has been plying her trade, charging from 40 cents to $1 to write a letter, depending on its length.

Letter writers were once flourishing throughout Europe, but the growth of education has now virtually wiped them out.

Anti-Music Man Asks For Bylaw Support

The anti-street music man, W. G. Smith, has asked city council to introduce a bylaw banning canned music on downtown streets.

Last week Mr. Smith, 937 Balmoral, picketed the 700 block Yates to protest the music piped fro ma local radio station to the overhead canopy covering thes idewalk.

Mr. Smith claimed the music was an invasion of his privacy.

So now the retired contractor is asking council to proceed immediately with the drawing of a bylaw which would "make it an offence to broadcast by loudspeaker, permanently or temporarily" on city streets.

Mr. Smith said he probably would not walk the 700 block with his sandwich board any more.

"I was hoping the storekeepers would stop the music," he said. "But they didn't. I shall keep protesting, though. I think a man has a right to listen or not listen to music. I don't think it should be dinned in his ears wherever he goes."

spend $600,000,000 a year on these services.

"Thus, by redistributing the estimated $600,000,000 and adding another $80,000,000, all residents of all the provinces of Canada will have physicians' services available to them."

He said some 6,000,000 Canadians still lack any medical insurance coverage, 3,000,000 have only limited coverage and "probably not more than 10,000,000 Canadians at the present time have what could be called adequate comprehensive coverage."

Some provinces had said they would proceed by next July 1 with medical care insurance. Others hadn't committed themselves but had said they believed they could adopt existing plans to meet the federal requirements.

MANNING CRITICAL

No province has turned down the plan, although Alberta's Premier E. C. Manning has criticized it, Mr. MacEachen said.

Good medical care should not be contingent on a fat bank account and the program would be a fitting way to mark the centennial because "an investment in health is an investment in human resources."

Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) predicted the bill would raise a problem because Canada has neglected training of doctors and "we now have an acute shortage."

Canada had one doctor for every 960 citizens, compared to one for every 740 citizens in the United States. Increasing the already heavy workload by starting medicare would result in "a poor quality of work" that would set medicine back years.

Canada had "starved" development of doctor-training. Imposition of medicare "may break down the whole system."

He also said experience shows government cost-estimates are usually low and Canadians "are paying more taxes than ever." The government should "proceed cautiously and carefully" to avoid mistakes.

MUST MEET CONDITIONS

Mr. MacEachen stressed in his speech there would be no dipping into the kitty by provinces which have plans in force that do not meet the four conditions. Neither would there be provision for a province that elected to stay outside the plan to get a tax abatement equal to what it would have received under the bill.

This did not sit well with Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste-Lapointe). He saw it as an encroachment of the provincial jurisdiction in the field of health.

Quebec should be able to get such a tax abatement and decide the sort of plan it wanted to operate, he said. It could be operated by the state or private interests, whichever proved most efficient.

It should embody complete freedom of choice for patients and doctors and should not turn doctors into bureaucrats or public servants. Time was needed to study the bill.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said medicare should not cover those citizens with the means to care for themselves. Bringing every Canadian, rich or poor, under the plan would make it "vastly more expensive." If Canadians knew the eventual cost of the program they would reject it.

the word of the government House leader that he conveyed to us on this side of the House."

A spokesman who talked later by telephone to Mr. McIlraith, who is in Prince Edward Island, said the public works minister told him:

"I did indicate to the opposition that the government would only proceed to first reading on the basis of a June 30 adjournment.

"In fact for the first few days after June 30 I took a similar view.

"But there have been no recent discussions with the opposition House leaders stating the bill would be given only first reading. In fact recent discussions have concerned whether we could get Mr. Knowles (NDP — House leader Stanley Knowles) to reach an agreement on any adjournment date."

Informants say Mr. MacEachen has wanted for some time to take the medicare bill through all stages before the recess.

He is opposed to leaving detailed study for the fall because it might permit reluctant provincial governments to delay action on the plan. Delay might mean missing the July 1, 1967, target date for a start of the plan. His view has the support of the New Democratic Party.

WANT STUDY

Other cabinet ministers are understood to feel the bill should stay at the first reading level for the summer to permit the provinces and the Canadian Medical Association to study it and make representations.

Some Liberal MPs, anxious to get Parliament recessed for the summer, favor this approach.

One informant said the issue was unresolved in the cabinet and Mr. MacEachen may have gone too far in adding the second-reading stage of medicare to the list of Commons business for today.

Should the government proceed, the chances of Parliament recessing this week appear dim.

Mr. MacEachen said during the debate he doubted whether the medicare bill—because it contains little that has not already been published—will need to go before the Commons health committee.

He said that most negotiations will occur between the provincial governments, which are to administer the plan, and members of the medical profession.

"It would seem to me that committee study in these jurisdictions would be more appropriate," he said.

Several Conservative speakers, however, urged the government to proceed with the measure only after careful study. They expressed concern about a shortage of doctors in Canada and the economic effects of the plan

'WILL NOT RETREAT FROM OBLIGATIONS'

LJB Spells Out Peace Formula

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has spelled out a four-point policy for peace in Asia, combining U.S. commitment against aggression there with a continuing effort for improved relations with China.

"The peace we seek in Asia is a peace of conciliation," Johnson said in a speech Tuesday night to the American Alumni Council.

"Communists in Asia still believe in force to achieve their goals" and the United States, as a pacific power, "will not retreat from the obligations of freedom and security in Asia" and particularly in Viet Nam, he said.

But lasting peace depends on international trade, the free flow of people and ideas, the full participation of all nations in an international community and a common dedication to human progress and development, he said.

Declaring that "a peaceful mainland China is central to a peaceful Asia," he said Peking must be discouraged from aggressive hostility and encouraged toward peaceful co-operation with others.

He cited U.S. efforts—so far unsuccessful—to open up travel between the United States and China.

SEEKS CO-OPERATION

Such initiatives will continue, he said "because we believe that co-operation, not hostility, is really the way of the future" toward a pacific era in which America and Asia are partners across the ocean.

Johnson delivered his speech from the White House theatre after thunderstorms cancelled his plans to fly to the alumni council meeting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in person.

The speech was carried by radio and television networks.

In what appeared to be part of an administration effort to hold down excessive optimism from reports of recent successes in Viet Nam, the president kept stressing that the war "may last a long time."

WOULD STEM AGGRESSION

Johnson's reference to the U.S. effort in Viet Nam was part of one of the four essentials he cited for peace in Asia. As he phrased it, this is "to prove to aggressive nations that the use of force to conquer others is a losing game."

His other three points were "the determination of the United States to meet our obligations in Asia as a pacific power," "the building of political and economic strength among the nations of free Asia" and "reconciliation between nations that now call themselves enemies."

Under this last heading Johnson said:

"Lasting peace can never come to Asia as long as the 700,000,000 people of mainland China are isolated by their rulers from the outside world," he said.

"We have learned in our relations with other such states that the weakness of neighbors is a temptation and only firmness backed by power can deter power backed by ambition. But we have also learned that the greatest force for opening closed minds and closed societies is the free flow of ideas and people and goods."

. . . opens talks

GENEVA PARLEY

Little Hope For Backing From Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ghandi of India began talks with Soviet leaders in the Kremlin today, with Viet Nam listed as the No. 1 topic.

Mrs. Gandhi, urging swift reconvening of the Geneva conference on Viet Nam, conferred with Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin and a Russian delegation.

Indian sources said the entire Asian scene was likely to be review, including the situation in China, Indonesia, Malaysia and the carrying-out of the January Tashkent peace pact between India and Pakistan.

Before the meeting, Mrs. Gandhi drove to red square to place a wreath at the Lenin mausoleum, inscribed to Lenin as a "great friend" of the Indian people.

Mrs. Gandhi was flanked at the talks by her Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh, L. K. Jha, secretary to the prime minister, and Triolki Nath Kaul, secretary to the external affairs ministry and former ambassador to Moscow.

Soviet officials included Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Mikolai Patolichev, foreign trade minister and Semyon Skatchkov, chairman of the government committee for foreign economic relations.

Mrs. Gandhi flew into Moscow Tuesday night to a warm welcome from Russian officials and later received a courtesy call from Kosygin.

HAS SUPPORT

The Indian leader stopped off in the United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia en route to Moscow and arrived here with firm backing from the two non-aligned countries for her call urging reconvention of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indo-China.

Diplomatic circles here felt today Mrs. Gandhi had little chance of winning Soviet backing. They predicted Kosygin would restate the Russian position on Viet Nam: No conference without North Viet Nam's full backing and no negotiations with U.S. acceptance of Communist terms. China has rejected any idea of a conference unless U.S. troops pull out of Viet Nam. The U.S. says it sees no hope of a meeting succeeding at this time. And Canada, an active go-between, has said its information is that a conference now would be unproductive.

Precise details of Mrs. Gandhi's program after her talks with Kosygin had still not been worked out, an Indian official said, but she is expected to meet Russia's Communist party chief, Leonid Brezhnev, before she leaves for home.

Teachers Quitting

EDMONTON (CP) — The United Kingdom is losing almost 14,000 teachers a year to private industry says Oliver Whitfield, president of the National Union of Teachers of England and Wales. Mr. Whitfield, here for the annual meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, said the British government must act quickly before the British educational system collapses.

Cabinet Shuffle By Premier Ky

SAIGON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky today reshuffled his cabinet in a move seen as a bid to enhance the public image of his predominantly-military government.

The most noteworthy development was the creation of a second deputy premiership and the appointment of a Buddhist civilian, Dr. Nguyen Luu Vien, to the post.

Vien is a member of the southern branch of the church which did not join in the Unified Buddhist Church's recent intense campaign to topple the Saigon government.

The appointment of a civilian to the high office followed other moves to give the Ky regime a less military appearance.

However, military control increased in two other major changes.

The interior ministry was dissolved and its main functions, including control of the national police force, were handed to a military man while the ministry of information and control of a campaign aimed at convincing Viet Cong guerrillas to desert went to another soldier.

OFFICE ENLARGED

The prime minister's office was enlarged by the appointment of two new secretaries—both former ministers.

In other changes, former interior minister Tran Minh Tiet was made justice minister and the man he replaced, Lu Van Vi, became inspector general.

The only man to leave the government was former education minister Tran Ngoc Ninh.

The cabinet reorganization, in the wake of the recent wave of Buddhist opposition, came less than two months before elections, scheduled for Sept. 11, for a constituent assembly.

Chief of State Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu formally approved the changes.

CHANGE HANDS

The duties of the now-defunct interior ministry passed to the security ministry, a new post set up recently under the former army chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Linh Quang Vien.

The ministry of information and the campaign to attract men from the Viet Cong went to Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Bao Tri, a member of the ruling directory. He will also control press censorship.

The single deputy prime minister until today's announcement has been Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co. the defence minister and a powerful figure in the policy-making directory.

It was the third re-organization of Ky's cabinet since he took office 13 months ago.

PEACE PRIZE FOR DISNEY SUPPORTED

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The Mexican Animal Protection Society announced Sunuday it will back an Argentine proposal to award the Nobel Peace Prize to U.S. moviemaker Walt Disney.

A spokesman said the Argentine Animal Protection Society came up with the suggestion, and the Mexican society has written to Buenos Aires, promising all possible backing.

Disney deserves the Nobel Prize for his dignified portrayals of the animal kingdom to the benefit of animals all over the world, the society said.

The Guideposts Are Sound

AS A GENERAL GUIDE TO future broadcasting in Canada the government's white paper is excellent. In plain, unequivocal language it spells out government plans to bring order to an often confused scene in a manner that has never before been approached.

The white paper asks—and answers—this central question: "How can the people of Canada retain a degree of collective control over the new techniques of electronic communication that will be sufficient to preserve and strengthen the political, social and economic fabric of Canada, which remains the most important objective of public policy?"

In general terms it is affirmed that the airwaves are public property over which the public is entitled to appropriate control. This means that the issuance and continuance of broadcasting licences must be subject to specific and enforceable conditions—not only private licences but also that granted to the public system, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

In the case of private stations, the opportunity to make a profit from the public airwaves must be contingent on their observing "a positive responsibility to meet certain standards of public service and to achieve the highest quality of programming they can reasonably afford." This is not a sticky requirement. The white paper notes that in programming, "high quality is more a matter of general excellence than of mere content. So-called highbrow programs can be artistically or technically poor, while light entertainment can be excellent."

Violations of acceptable standards on the part of private broadcasters would be met with fines or, as a final resort, cancellation of a licence. This, of course, can hardly be applicable to the CBC, but the white paper makes it plain that when the public service does not live up to the high standards expected, dismissal of the responsible persons can be expected.

There is in this tough policy proposal the problem of who is going to set the standards. The government has wisely rejected the recommendation of the Fowler Committee on Broadcasting on this point and decided that instead of a single "czar of broadcasting" the present Board of Broadcast Governors should be continued but with stronger membership, extended powers and a clarified framework of reference in which to make judgments. While the Fowler report contained many excellent suggestions, a number of which are incorporated in the white paper, its conclusions on regulatory powers were widely criticized and the government has discarded them. Instead it is proposed that the revitalized BBG be given full responsibility for the implementation of general policy by both the CBC and private outlets.

One important provision of the Fowler report which the governments wants to adopt is the financing of the CBC on a five-year basis along with granting of borrowing power to the corporation for capital needs. This is bound to kick up a ruckus in Parliament since it makes the CBC far more independent than is the case when funds must be voted on an annual basis. And while the idea behind this provision is admirable, in that it will allow the CBC greater scope for long-term planning, there are also technical arguments against it—the difficulty of estimating income and expenditure in the rapidly-changing electronics medium, for example. This recommendation will need the most careful scrutiny and thoughtful debate.

Other facets of the government plan which will need thorough study include the proposal to curtail monopoly control in certain areas, particularly when this would require forced sale of facilities acquired in good faith; the restriction of appeals against BBG rulings to matters of law and not fact; and inclusion of community antenna TV services in the BBG jurisdiction.

The broad outlines of the white paper are, in fact, just the guideposts for a thorough-going review of where Canada should be heading in the whole field of electronic communication. For those who want Canadian broadcasting, in the words of the paper, "to contribute powerfully in the future, as it has in the past, to the essential goal of Canadian unity," the guideposts will seem sound.

Upset for Erhard

THE UPSET VICTORY OF THE Social Democratic party in West Germany's North Rhine-Westphalia election Sunday was a severe setback for Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and his Christian Democratic Union.

Although it was only a provincial election, North Rhine-Westphalia is the most populous and wealthiest state in the country, encompassing the huge Rhur industrial belt. The sharp drop in the Christian Democrat vote, even in an off-year state election, is symptomatic of the problems encountered by the Erhard government in keeping the German economy operating at top pitch. Particularly in the heavily-populated Ruhr Valley, where the coal and steel industries have been ailing, there has been considerable discontent with Mr. Erhard's policies.

In addition to winning the state legislature vote, the Social Democrats are entitled to name delegates to the upper house of the West German parliament and, with the votes of the Socialist deputies from West Berlin, will control that house. This will give them a check on legislation put forward in the lower house by the Erhard government and will add to the Christian Democrats' difficulties.

Since West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, leader of the Social Democrats, personally campaigned in the North Rhine-Westphalia election, and can claim the victory as his own, it will add to his strength in another attempt to unseat Chancellor Erhard in the next federal voting.

Youth, by a Thin Margin

ABOUT A QUARTER AS MANY voters as the Victoria Memorial Arena can house comfortably have given Prince Edward Island, the youngest provincial premier in Canada.

This is the outcome of another see-saw election, in which voting for two deferred seats resulted in the defeat of the Conservative Party under 78-year-old Walter R. Shaw and the designation of Liberal Alex B. Campbell, 32, son of a former premier, as government leader.

In an atmosphere of apparent post-election friendliness, Mr. Campbell urged his people to get down to business and not to continue the election for the next four or five years. What that business will be is the particular concern of Prince Edward Islanders.

The significance of the decision nationally is that a Liberal government has taken provincial office by a narrow margin and a youthful new figure will be speaking for a younger generation of public men in conversations and conferences among the 10 partners to Confederation.

"Let's scare the daylights out of him and tell him that North Viet Nam agrees to peace talks."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Big Customer and Canada's West

THIS visit to Canada of Mr. Dmitri Polyansky and his party, coming hard on the heels of the three-year wheat agreement with the Soviet Union, has emphasized a most important and probably lasting change in the pattern of our international trading relationships. More than ever in our history, we are looking west across the Pacific.

Western

In his conversations with Mr. Laing, the minister of northern affairs (and on one occasion publicly), Mr. Polyansky indicated a long term Soviet interest in Canadian wheat supplies. This was not, apparently, the casual talk of a politician with a natural interest in winning friends and influencing people. Mr. Polyansky impressed Canadian officials as a hard-headed businessman and his interest in Canadian wheat was based upon thoroughly sober calculations of Soviet economic advantage.

We Canadians are, apparently, not the only people with freight rate problems. The increasingly cost-conscious Russians also has them. As anyone can determine from a map, their distances are about twice as great as ours.

Siberian Port

The Russians, who are probably influenced also by their delicate relations with Communist China, are determined to develop and strengthen their Far Eastern areas. They are building a new port on the Pacific overshadowing Vladivostok of which they have, apparently, no very high opinion. They are also engaged [illegible] scale expansion of their merchant fleet. Twenty per cent of Soviet shipping is being dedicated to Pacific service.

Whatever the shortcomings of Soviet agriculture, there is not, according to Mr. Polyansky, any overall shortage of wheat in the U.S.S.R. The Soviets are currently exporting 8,000,000 tons of grain to their satellite and other customers while importing 3,000,000 tons from us. This double movement represents a net gain for them because it is too costly to supply the Far East from the Ukraine and western regions via the Trans-Siberian.

Partly as a result of Soviet freight costs, we now have three big wheat customers on the Pacific rim, Russia, Japan and Communist China. Obviously we have moved a long way from the old pattern of the north Atlantic triangle. It has become more of an Atlantic quadrilateral. There has been a massive and dramatic change.

As recently as 1959-60, our only large Pacific customer — and a very reliable one — was Japan. We sold no wheat to China or to the USSR. The situation, as shown in the annual report of the wheat board, was similar in 1958-59 when our Russian sales (at 7,308,187 bushels) were less than those to the Union of South Africa. The great market was western Europe, led as always in the past, by Britain.

Former Gloom

We also had a great problem of surplus disposal which was studied in 1959 by a blue ribbon Canadian-American committee. Its report was gloomy. If the excessive surpluses could be considered as temporary, the situation "while serious enough, would be fairly manageable." But the expert testimony was that surpluses would continue indefinitely and might well grow larger in future. There is no mention in the report of markets in the Pacific.

In 1963-64, however, sales to the U.S.S.R. alone totalled 234,000,000 bushels — far more than we sold in the whole of Europe outside Russia. In that year, as in its predecessor, approximately 100,000,000 bushels also went to Japan and China. Mr. Sharp has estimated sales to Russia during the present crop year at 222,000,000 bushels and foresees a market for the coming crop "almost regardless of its size."

It is a case of the world making demands upon the Canadian wheat economy unexampled in peacetime and certain to place our productive and transport capacity under considerable strain.

West Coast Effects

The effects on our west coast, which faces the three great Pacific markets, are plainly apparent. In Vancouver the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool is building additional terminal capacity for 5,000,000 bushels. It was planned to add another 1,500,000 at Prince Rupert, a northern town with a long "next year" history. The project is stalled at the moment because of unexpectedly high costs, much of the town being built on muskeg. But the westward trade thrust makes this development inevitable, especially as Prince Rupert benefits from a rapidly expanding two way freight movement on the northern line.

British Columbia appears to a visitor to be setting the pace of the Canadian boom. With potash now emerging as a serious challenger to wheat (the anticipated 1970 production is 2.5 million tons), the West appears to have everything in its favor, assuming that costs can be kept in line and that national policies continue to be favorable to the development of resource industries serving world markets.

Limited Choice

Montreal Le Devoir

Two paths are open to the new Johnson government and, through it, to French Canada whose principal driving force it is called upon to be.

A first path is clearly indicated by the events of recent years and by the Union Nationale's own program. It must find before long a satisfactory solution to the constitutional malaise which has troubled the evolution of the two communities that make up Canada. . . .

Premier Johnson has committed himself to promote changes in depth. To do this, he must be able to count on the general support of Quebecers and even of French-Canadians of other provinces.

We must understand, on the other hand, that, although theoretically unlimited, the field of choices available to us is, in practice, conditioned by geographic, economic and social factors which we could not forget with impunity.

Whatever political system we give ourselves in the future, we will definitely always live on a continent dominated by a culture different from own. Far from having less need of our immediate neighbors in proportion to our progress, we will have to accept living, they and we, in a more and more obvious situation of interdependence. . . .

Let us build on a solid foundation and bring to a conclusion the works we are undertaking. Such is more than ever, on the threshold of the second act of the "quiet revolution," our unavoidable and difficult destiny.

Practical Value

The practical value of symphony orchestras might be indicated to our city and province and nation by the decision of four families, known to the writer, who immigrated to Western Canada after learning that it possessed symphony orchestras.

Having had the privilege of playing under the inspired batons of famous conductors, I find it regrettable that we, as a city, are to lose a great one in the person of Otto-Werner Mueller—B. O. Newton, 114 Rockland.

The Namu Lesson

Namu the killer whale has gone!

Let it not be said that Namu suffered in vain. Public apathy is a terrible thing. We must never forget the indignities which were heaped upon this poor wild creature. We must never allow them to happen again.—Elizabeth Smith, Sooke.

Lack of Consideration

I have been a yearly visitor to your lovely city for several years now and hesitate to be critical or offer advice—but I feel I must mention the following incident:

Riding on a bus last week, which was nearly full, except for a few back seats, a polio crippled girl climbed painfully aboard. Sitting on the nearest seats were two school boys, about 13 or 14 years, complacently chewing gum. They just stared at the poor girl trying to balance herself and never offered to give her a seat. I am over 80 years of age, but I simply could not watch this crippled girl fight her way to the back of the bus, and so gave her my seat. Nobody else offered. Unfortunately, I have noticed this is not an isolated case. Recently I noticed some school children in uniforms, and asked a fellow lady passenger what these uniforms signified. "Oh," she said, with a sneer, "those are pupils of the snobby English-style private schools. No need for them here, in our democratic society." Well, I have noticed that the first to give up their seats to elderly or crippled people are these pupils from your so-called "snobby English-style schools."—Elsa Da Cossa, 172 Girard Avenue, La Jolla, California.

Cities on the Way to Ghettoes

UNLESS very radical measures are taken, the average, representative great American city will become a super-Watts — a Negro ghetto on a metropolitan scale — within the lifetime of the vast majority of our cities' present inhabitants. If that forecast seems a bit startling, the reason is quite simple. In this statistically minded country, we have been neglecting to gather and to interpret the most significant of all statistics—the figures on the population changes in the great cities, with all their immense social, political and even economic implications.

Alsop

Secretary John Gardner of the department of health, education and welfare has just ordered the figures to be gathered for the 20 American cities that had populations above 500,000 in 1960. At present, figures are available for only nine cities, all in the east and midwest, namely, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington.

Of these nine, every single city except New York and Boston is clearly on the way to becoming a kind of super-Watts. The figures on the Negro-white proportions in the urban school systems are the real indicators, as already pointed out in earlier reports in this space. Additional figures have now been obtained by further spadework.

Two points must be understood, to make the figures understandable. First, no one has been paying much attention to the population changes in the District of Columbia, partly because Washington is not self-governing, and partly because it has been thought a special case. Second, however, Washington is not a special case. It is a typical case, though a more advanced case than the other cities on the list.

Benchmarks

If this key fact is grasped, Washington can be used to provide the benchmarks that show the other cities where they are along the road. The turning-point year was 1947, when the District of Columbia, with a population one-third Negro, had an elementary school population that was 50 per cent Negro.

Thenceforward, the elementary school and city-wide populations changed on parallel curves. By 1957, the city was half Negro, and the elementary school population was 75 per cent Negro. Today, the city is just under two-thirds Negro, and the elementary school population is 91 per cent Negro. Rather shortly, behind its fine federal facade, Washington is due to become an almost purely Negro city — a vast metropolitan ghetto, in fact.

A table can thus be made, showing how far along the road Baltimore and the other cities were in 1960, and how far along the road they are today, in each case in terms of the record here in Washington. Beginning with 1960, the picture was as follows, for percentages of Negro children in the cities' elementary schools:

Baltimore, 52 per cent, equalled Washington in 1950.

Chicago, 44 per cent, equalled wartime Washington.

Cleveland, 47 per cent, equalled wartime Washington.

Detroit, 46 per cent, equalled wartime Washington.

Philadelphia, 50 per cent, equalled Washington in 1947.

St. Louis, 57 per cent, equalled Washington in 1953.

In all these cities, as in Washington, New York and Boston as well, the percentage of Negro children in the elementary schools has increased materially since 1960. The same table, showing where the above-listed cities stand this year, looks as follows:

Baltimore, 64 per cent, equals Washington in 1954-55.

Chicago, 56 per cent, equals Washington in 1952-53.

Cleveland, 53 per cent, equals Washington in 1951.

Detroit, 57 per cent, equals Washington in 1953.

Philadelphia, 60 per cent, equals Washington in 1954.

St. Louis, 64 per cent, equals Washington in 1954-55.

Reliable Figures

Making the projection on the same curves, then, all of these cities are only a few years away — in one or two cases, perhaps only two or three years away — from the moment Washington reached in 1957, when the population of its Negro ghetto amounted to half of the total city population. Using the school figures to predict this moment for the other cities is unquestionably reliable, moreover, simply because the school figures are one of the prime causes of the urban population curves.

The other prime cause, of course, is the emigration northwards of southern Negroes fleeing segregation. Some 12,500,000 persons are thought to have joined this movement thus far. But mainly through the urban schools, this movement has produced a secondary movement of even greater magnitude. Briefly, as the percentage of Negro children has risen in the city school systems, more and more white families with children have emigrated to the suburbs.

In Washington, we have almost literally reached the stage of having no white children of school age living in the city limits. That is what may be called the stage of full ripeness. The watchword is, "you should be warned!"

Looking Back

From The Times of July 13, 1906:

The chairman of the Seattle Park Commission is in Victoria to interview His Worship Mayor Morley in regard to the exchange of animals in Seattle menageries for some of the stock of swans in Beacon Hill Park. Seattle's largest zoo, in Woodland Park, has no swans at all. The Seattle man said he would be glad to advise Victoria on the acquisition of animals for a menagerie here, but he said he would preface any advice given with an account of the trouble undomesticated animals can give civic officials.

Rostow Moving Up Again

* * * * * *

U.S. Policy Theorist Gains LBJ Ear

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS
The Washington Post

While elucidating his policies to a group of foreign journalists recently, President Johnson heaped so much praise on Walt Whitman Rostow that the presidential aide seemed, in the words of one of the visitors to puff up "as proud as a peacock."

Rostow has reason to be proud and he has reason to be as happy as a bureaucrat can be. His long-time tough recommendations for the Viet Nam war are now Johnson policy.

As far back as June, 1961, Rostow was saying that the kind of "operation run from Hanoi against South Viet Nam is as clear a form of aggression as the violation of the 38th parallel by the North Korean army in June, 1950."

In October, 1961, after a visit to Viet Nam, Rostow backed a recommendation by Gen. Maxwell Taylor that an American military task force of perhaps 10,000 men be sent for self-defence and perimeter security and, if the South Vietnamese were hard pressed, to provide an emergency reserve. That report as much as anything led President Kennedy to take the first steps into the Viet Nam war.

In addition, as Arthur Schlesinger Jr., has since recounted, "Rostow argued so forcibly for a contingency plan of retaliation against the North, graduated to match the intensity of Hanoi's support of the Viet Cong, that 'Rostow Plan 6' became jocularly established in the contingency planning somewhere after 'SEATO Plan 5.'

One of Key Men In Government

It was not, however, until February, 1965, that a new president, Lyndon Johnson adopted that proposal. And not until last month did the president agree with the Rostow thesis that the North's oil supplies should be attacked.

In short, Rostow is now in his element. He is without doubt one of the key men in government today, physically occupying the White House basement office long used by McGeorge Bundy before he went off to head the Ford Foundation.

Rostow as yet has neither the broad presidential charter that Bundy had nor the power within the bureaucracy which Bundy exercised. But if Johnsonian compliments mean anything, he certainly is moving in that direction.

In fact, it is a case of a return to the beginning for Rostow. He began at the start of the Kennedy administration as Bundy's top assistant.

In those days Rostow was the long-range thinker for the New Frontier.

Shipped to State As Counsellor

But when President Kennedy dumped Chester Bowles as undersecretary of state of mid-1961, Rostow was shipped over to the state department to be counsellor and chairman of the policy planning staff.

There he produced all sorts of long-range papers, but many in the foreign service considered him either something of a dreamer or too much of a hawk on Viet Nam. The word got around that he wasn't to be taken too seriously and he seemed largely out of touch with the day-to-day crises which dominate the department.

Rostow found an outlet for his massive energies in Latin American affairs. In 1964 he became the American representative on CIAP, the Spanish initials for the inter-American committee for the Alliance for Progress. His enthusiasm and optimism bubbled over to the point where—again—many felt he was unrealistic.

To understand Rostow, then and now, one has to know a bit about the man and his background. Now 49, he has an A.B. and Ph.D. from Yale. A Rhodes Scholar at Oxford and a wartime major in the OSS, he was a professor of economic history at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1950 until he came to the White House.

'Non-Communist Manifesto'

Schlesinger has aptly called him an "economic historian turned social philosopher." In 1959 Rostow wrote what the London Economist called "the non-communist manifesto," a series of lectures which became a book on "the stages of economic growth."

Nothing delights the chunky Rostow, eyes beaming intensely through metal-rimmed glasses, than to lean back in his chair, sleeves rolled up and hands clasped behind his head, and philosophize. A lot of this sort of private talk later turns up on the lecture platform or between hard covers:

● The relative performance of India and China "may very well determine the outcome of the ideological struggle for Asia." (1955)

● "Communism is a technique for seizing and holding power in sick societies." (1957)

● "Doctrinally, Marxism is increasingly viewed by the young as a voice from the past, not as a guide to the present and the future; and Communism, as a technique for organizing either an advanced or an underdeveloped society, is increasingly perceived as inefficient and reactionary, as well as profoundly inhumane." (1962)

● "This debate within the (Atlantic) Alliance is perhaps the greatest constitutional question that this country has been involved in since we set ourselves up in the 1780s." (1963)

● "We are evidently at the beginning of the third major effort since 1945 to establish whether or not it is possible for the Soviet Union and the West to live together on this planet under conditions of tolerable stability and low tension." (1963)

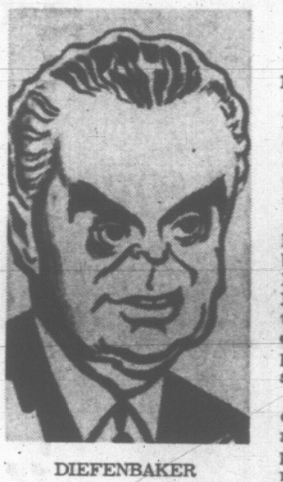
That word "tolerable," incidentally, is a Rostow favorite. It is the kind of word that got him into an ironic fuss early in the Kennedy years with Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the GOP leader.

Some right-wing Republicans had jumped on reports about a secret Rostow long-term policy paper and Dirksen attacked him for "fuzzy thinking" because Rostow was said to believe that the Communists were "mellowing."

This brought a horse laugh from everybody who knew Rostow, since his passion for both economic growth and anti-communist guerrilla warfare has brought him the title of "Chester Bowles with machine guns." Rostow went up to the capitol and convinced Dirksen et al that he was as tough as they were about the Communists.

Higher Degree Of Sophistication

Indeed he is, though with a higher degree of sophistication. It was Rostow and Jerome T. Wiesner, later to be the presidential science adviser, who told the Russians in Moscow seven weeks before the Kennedy inauguration that if they wanted better relations with the United States they had better release two American fliers without being asked and without attempting to bargain. Nikita Khrushchev did just that.



DIEFENBAKER
. . . he was right

Rostow has been in the public prints mostly for his quotable prose. Once, however, he pulled a blooper with international repercussions. In Ottawa with President Kennedy in 1961, he carelessly left behind a secret memo on which the President had made some scribbled comments.

Put Strain On Relations

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker angrily claimed the President had written "SOB" beside a reference to him. The incident put a strain on Canadian-American relations, especially since Diefenbaker was correct.

But Rostow survived that blooper—as he has survived the Siberia of state's policy planning staff, the criticism of his economic theory, the scoffing at his ebullient prose, his hawk-like proposals and all the rest.

Last week Rostow was one of three officials dispatched by President Johnson to Los Angeles to sell the administration's story on Viet Nam to the nation's governors. And characteristically, it was Rostow who did most of the talking to the sometimes skeptical governors.

For such reasons as that, there is not much time anymore for tennis or swimming for Walt Whitman Rostow, a fellow who has come a long way from Oxford and MIT.

Greek King Secure

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS—Last July 15 25-year-old King Constantine of Greece rejected 77-year-old Premier George Papandreou's demand for control of the armed forces and forced him to resign. Greece's worst crisis since the Communist civil war of 1947-49 followed, and for months the existence of the monarchy appeared threatened again.

Papandreou's appeals brought rioting crowds into the streets of Athens and other major cities. Communists and other leftist agitators took control of the crowds. A student was killed and hundreds injured.

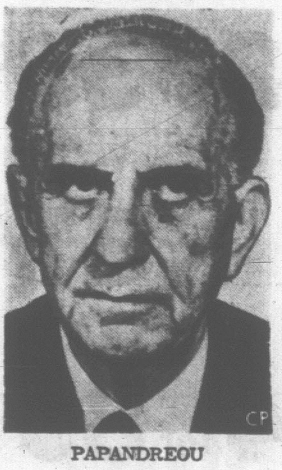
Papandreou, who controlled 170 of the 300 seats in Parliament, challenged the young king repeatedly with the words:

"The people rule, the king reigns." He demanded immediate elections, asserting, "the people's will has been violated."

A year after the showdown the young king's crown is secure while Papandreou wanders in a lonely political wilderness, his Centre Union party shrinking and his magic apparently gone.

The balance keeping Premier Stephanos Stephanopoulos and his coalition government in power is precarious. Fearful of a real test, the premier has presented no major legislation since winning a paper-thin majority in Parliament on his first confidence vote Sept. 24.

But Stephanopoulos has performed a balancing act to stave off further political upsets, and his support appears to be growing. Talk of the early elections sought by Papandreou has died down. The king and the premier may be able to hold things together until the next scheduled elections in 1968.



PAPANDREOU

The Centre Union, a loose association of leftist and rightist political parties which had banded together in 1964, began crumbling at the height of the crisis last summer.

Top members of the party deserted Papandreou. Finally his trusted lieutenant, Stephanopoulos, accepted the king's mandate and formed a government with other Centre Union members who had left the party fold and the support of ERE, the rightist national radical union.

No longer as active as he was, Papandreou is beginning to feel his age. He has drastically curtailed speaking tours although he has not abandoned his fight to regain office. His son, Andreas, is struggling to take over the leadership of the party before it disintegrates.

Stephanopoulos has been working hard to win over more Centre Union deputies. So far 46 have abandoned Papandreou. More are reported planing to go over to Stephanopoulos before Parliament reconvenes in November.

Stephanopoulos now has the support of ERE's 99 deputies, the eight progressives and the 46 former Centre Unionists who constitute his Liberal party. That means 153 of the 300 seats in Parliament.

No Common Ground For U.K., France In London Talks

By ROBERT STEPHENS

LONDON—The visit to London of the French Prime Minister, M. Georges Pompidou, and his Foreign Minister, M. Couve de Murville, has been a striking contrast with the recent tour of Russia by General de Gaulle. The contrast has not been only in the lack of ceremonial, for this was not a visit by a head of state but a business visit for talks by a head of government, but also in the political atmosphere, warm in Moscow and cool in London.

There has in fact been an odd demonstration that if General de Gaulle has not quite reversed alliances he has almost reversed friendships. His government apears at the moment to have less in common, as far as policies are concerned, with one of its chief allies than with the power against which the alliance is directed.

●

The main subjects of the London talks have been the Common Market, the future of NATO, Viet Nam, and relations with the Communist countries. In addition, there has been discussion of the Channel Tunnel and Anglo-French cooperation in aviation projects, such as the air-bus.

It is clear that there is little hope of any meeting of minds between London and Paris on British entry into the Common Market in the foreseeable future. Each side suspects the other of being engaged in mere political manoeurvring on this subject.

British Ministers have claimed that Britain has now made up her mind and has the political will to enter the Common Market. The French say they are still not convinced. They need a clearer statement from the British Prime Minister, Mr. Harold Wilson, and Mr. Wilson so far has attached economic conditions to British entry which would seem to make it impossible to achieve.

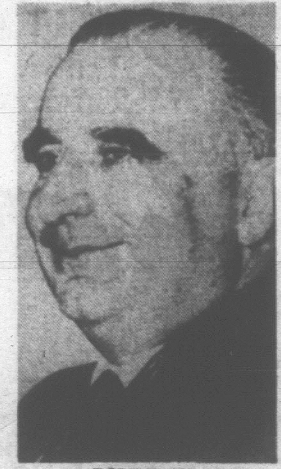
●

The British believe that serious discussion of the economic problems involved in entry into the Common Market is futile until it is clear that France is not using the economic problems as a cover for the continued exercise of a political veto. They were sceptical about some earlier signs of a more welcoming French attitude. They thought they might have been simply a tactical move by General de Gaulle to weaken the opposition to France over her disengagement from NATO and particularly to play Britain and West Germany off against one another.

If the French had ever genuinely thawed in their attitude to Britain, they seem recently to have frozen again. They have expressed resentment at the fact that Britain has taken the lead in organizing a solid front against France in NATO. They have now revived the old idea that Britain only wants to come into the Common Market in order to change it and destroy its character from within.

The French say they are looking for convincing evidence from the British that they will really accept the Common Market rules. In the French view, this means accepting the Common Market not as a mere commercial agreement but as a separate economic community vis-a-vis non-member States.

But even if Britain accepted this concept, would France still see an advantage in British membership? The French reply—at least privately—is that British membership would in such circumstances be an advantage for the Common Market and especially for France which does not wish to be left to face the growing German economic power alone. But if Britain tried to destroy the community aspect and turn the Common Market into some kind of purely free trade area, this would be contrary to the interests of France and the other five members of the Common Market.



POMPIDOU

The French claim that their recent tussle with the Five over supranationalism and majority voting does not indicate any change in the French view of the character of the Common Market. It only means that the French believe it should be directed by governments and not by a supranational commission.

●

They admit that for the moment the question of moves towards European political Union are "in the refrigerator". But they say that the economic growth of the Common Market will eventually force the Six to have a common policy on trade; economic relations with other countries and a harmonized financial policy, and will lead in the end to a political union, as the customs union led to the unity of Germany in the 19th century. But this development may take a long time.

It is clear however that one of the chief obstacles to better Anglo-French relations is the different attitudes of the two countries towards the American alliance. This comes out not only in consideration of the Common Market, but also over NATO and Viet Nam.

●

While the British and French Governments do not differ widely about their aims in Viet Nam and in promoting better relations with Russia and Eastern Europe, they disagree about the methods of promotion. As far as relations with the United States are concerned, the French define the problem as fundamentally how to reconcile the American alliance with the creation of an "independent Europe" and a European policy. They claim that by "independence" they do not mean "isolation", since they consider that because Western Europe is still inferior in strength to the Soviet bloc it still needs American military support.

The British, however, regard the French attitude towards NATO as being destructive of the military value of the alliance as such and suspect that France, while stil claiming to be a loyal ally, will gradually become virtually a neutralist country.

THE GALLUP POLL

Few Canadians Have Urge To Demonstrate Publicly

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Canadians are not partial to joining public demonstrations for or against something. Only about one person in ten acknowledges to having felt an urge to organize or join a protest demonstration.

Nearly nine in ten (89%) say they have never felt such an urge.

The same ratios have been established in the United States, where 10% of the people sometimes feel a desire to protest publicly and 90% never feel this way.

The greatest proportion of potential demonstrators in Canada is found among the younger segment—those who are in the 21 to 29 age group.

The question: "Have you ever felt the urge to organize or join a public demonstration about something?"

		Age Groups:
	Total	21-29 Years	30-39 Years	40-49 Years	50 and Over
Yes	11%	14%	9%	13%	9%
No	89	86	91	87	91
	100%	100%	100%	100%	100%

A second question was asked the few who have felt an urge to protest publicly: "What was it you were thinking of demonstrating about?"

The reasons given cover a wide variety of subjects with 'the high cost of living" at the top of the list.

A young farmer in Alberta named "the low price of grain and the high cost of farm machinery" as his particular beef.

Other areas mentioned included: politics, the way parliamentarians carry on, high taxes, pensions, centralization of education, labor problems, and social injustice.

Astronomers Challenge Law of the 'Red Shift'

THE ECONOMIST

Must we start revising our ideas of how the world began?

The disconcerting possibility that all current theories might be based on a fallacy arises out of a letter in Nature jointly signed by Professor Fred Hoyle writing from Cambridge and Professor G. R. Burbidge from the University of California.

Up till now, cosmologists have been convinced that creation consisted of great galaxies flying apart at speeds that mind cannot grasp. They have argued cat-and-dog, with the rest of science cheering on the sidelines, over what started the galaxies moving in the first place, but the fact that there was a vast cosmological explosion or series of explosions in progress, no one ever doubted (not, that is, anyone that appeared to matter).

At One End

And how were they so sure? Because the light these galaxies gave off was all at the red end of the spectrum, the "red shift" that signified increasing wave length that in turn showed the stars were moving away in the same way as the sound of a train tells unmistakably whether it is coming or going.

A few stray voices did weakly suggest that the red shift could be due to something else, the light losing its energy, or gravitational effects, but their theories did not get much credence.

Built on Belief

Astronomy in this generation has been built on the belief that red shift equals something moving away from you fast, and all theories about how matter came into existence, by creation at a given moment in time, or by a sort of self-sustaining process of continuous creation and destruction, were tailored to fit the concept of a world made up of hurtling galaxies.

Now the red shift is in doubt, and should it ever be proved that we have genuinely got hold of the wrong end of the stick, these theories collapse. For the two astronomers say quite flatly—and their research is backed by both the American National Science Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration—that in some cases the red shifts they have observed "have nothing to do with distances."

Admittedly, they have not made their measurements from the usual sort of galaxies but from what are delicately called "quasi-stellar objects," or quasars, because, beyond knowing that these give off light and radio waves, scientists have not got a clue what they are.

All the professors are saying is that when they plotted the quasars located in a segment of sky, they got a jumbled-up scatter pattern "evidently so large that nothing useful, from a cosmological point of view, can be inferred." The quasars simply were not behaving as the accepted laws of red shift said they should. And so some other explanation for their very powerful red shifts will have to be found.

Little to Go On

That is all we have to go on so far. And no cosmologist would be prepared to say yet that the whole red shift distance idea is wrong, just on the evidence of something he knows as little about as a quasar. But scientists are already beginning to speculate whether, if the traditional explanation of the red shift is wrong in this case, it can be quite as water-tight as we thought.

The troublesome letter was published only last weekend, which does not give much time to adjust one's ideas about the origins of creation to a universe in which the stars might after all be moving decorously in their courses and not indulging in the orgy of explosive self-destruction in which we have up till now all believed.

But this could conceivably be the case.

Founders of B.C.

Robert Patterson Rithet was an English farmer's son who came here to join the gold rush but entered the business world instead and built a reputation respected as much in San Francisco and Hawaii as in British Columbia.

Born in Applegarth, Dumfriesshire, April 22, 1844, he had business training as a youth and was employed by a Liverpool merchant before coming to Victoria in 1862. His early jobs were varied, even included a spell "dockwalloping" as a stevedore. Then he moved into wholesale groceries, insurance, shipping and brokerage gaining power and prestige with every year that passed.

He was a shareholder in Enderby Milling Company, at Moodyville (sawmills), Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, Albion Iron Works and Capilano Waterworks. He was a principal promoter of the British Pacific Railway and left a permanent mark on Victoria when he undertook and carried out construction of the outer wharf. At Victoria Rithet became president of the Board of Trade and in 1873 was appointed a justice of the peace. In 1885 he became mayor of Victoria and in 1894 was elected to the legislature.

Farming was a hobby and he maintained large farms at Victoria and Delta. He was president of the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining Company headquartered at San Francisco, as was the firm Welch and Company which operated in British Columbia as Welch, Rithet and Company. The British Colonist in 1891 said the Rithet Company was one of the largest commercial operations in British Columbia. When Rithet died at Victoria in 1919, it was said of him: "Probably no name is more respected on the Pacific Coast from San Francisco to the far north, than that of Rithet. . . ."

After an injection of morphine, he relaxed, saying as he died: "I am better now, if only I could sweat I would be better. . . . I am better now. . . ."

BIG CHEATING SCANDAL BARED BY UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State University said Tuesday 39 students have been disciplined in what it called "the worst cheating scandal in the university's history."

The university said 10 students were dismissed as the result of theft and sale of part of a final examination for a freshman mathematics course. Another 29 students were disciplined. Eighteen were suspended for six to nine months. The others were given lesser penalties, ranging down to fail grades in the course.

Dean of student relations John T. Benner said eight of the students are upperclassmen, the others freshmen. He declined to identify any of the students.

He said the number dismissed is greater than the total usually dismissed during a year for all types of misconduct.

BRIEF TO FEDERAL GOV'T

Travel Industry Seeks Tax Relief

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Tourist Association urged the federal government today to provide tax incentives and development loans for the travel industry.

In a brief to Trade Minister Winters, the association said the federal government should encourage travel in Canada more actively with financial and research assistance.

The brief said Canadians will probably spend nearly $100,000,000 this summer vacationing in the United States. In return, Canada was getting only between one and two per cent of the U.S. vacation dollar.

The potential to reverse both trends in Canada's favor was almost limitless. "We are barely scratching the potential of our external travel markets."

The group, which represents government agencies, chambers of commerce and 30 tourist trade associations, recommended that tax concessions for new industries in designated areas be extended to travel industries

Took Motors To Help Buy Motorcycle

A city youth who planned to use two stolen outboard motors as a down payment on a motorcycle was convicted of breaking, entering, theft and possession of stolen goods Tuesday.

Grant Tangye, 2134 Ridge Rd., pleaded guilty in central court to the possession charge after he had been found guilty of break-in and theft. He will be sentenced July 20.

A tip from a salesman at Mullins Marine Sales, 925 Yates, put city detectives on the track of the accused.

Pat Zanichelli said he phoned police after checking the serial numbers on a 35-horsepower and a 15-horsepower engine Tangye brought to the store June 27.

The smaller engine, owned by the University of Victoria and used by the coach of the rowing team, had been stolen that day from a boat house on Elk Lake.

The possession charge related to the larger engine which was stolen June 6 from a boat parked in front of its Esquimalt owner's home.

Sentence Stayed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals, in a 2-to-1 decision Monday, granted New York publisher Ralph Ginzburg a stay of sentence, relieving him from surrendering to authorities today to begin a five-year jail term on charges of mailing obscene literature.

TEACHERS FEAR UNIVERSITY PITCH

Primary Levels Must Get Some of Financial Aid

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian Teachers' Federation doesn't think government should provide free university tuition until it has given a lot more money to primary and secondary schools.

Norman Gobel, assistant secretary-treasurer of the CTF, said Tuesday this was his organization's view on the "great fuss" being made over more financial aid to universities.

"The danger is that the needs of the schools may be forgotten in the outcry," he said in an interview. "The fact is that money put into kindergartens and primary education will be far more effective in equalizing access to universities for all children than aid at the university level."

Mr. Gobel made his remarks at the opening of the federation's annual meeting, which started Tuesday. He said at least some of the emphasis in educational spending must be rerouted to the primary levels.

Wesley H. Janzen of New Westminster, federation president, said in his presidential address teachers should concentrate on education and try to stay out of related fields.

He said teachers have too often tried to be psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and family courts instead of sticking to school teaching.

"Surely the home, the church, the doctor, the psychiatrist and the psychologist and others each have their own areas of competence," said Mr. Janzen.

"Let them assume the responsibility in their areas and let the teachers operate as educators," said the federation president.

Two teachers from Quebec said fear that Godless "neutral schools" were to be imposed in their province was one reason voters turned away from Jean Lesage's Liberal administration last month.

Patrick McKeefrey, secretary-treasurer of the Quebec Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers, and Joseph White, a delegate from the same group, gauged the effect of Liberal education policies in an interview.

"Many people thought the pace of education reform had been too fast," said Mr. McKeefrey. "It was undoubtedly a factor in the election of the Union Nationale, though how big a factor, we can't say."

Both agreed that Liberal proposals for a non-sectarian educational system had been misinterpreted by many French-Canadians, and was seen by many of Quebec's rural residents as "tearing God from the schools."

They predicted that "neutral schools"—neither Catholic nor Protestant in doctrine—will be set up soon voluntarily in some areas, "but no one has any thought of imposing them by force."

Minister's Group Has Produced Fear

EDMONTON CP) — Canadian teachers say they are fearful of a new shape on the political scene—the interprovincial committee of ministers of education.

Dr. Gerald Nason of Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers Federation, told of the teachers' fear in an address to 200 delegates to the CTF annual meeting today.

"The ministers' committee destroys the concept of a partnership between a profession and politicians," he said. "It is a new creature on the political scene, responsible to no one—a body where unilateral decisions are made without consultation with people in education by a group of men who are not educators."

Only the Alberta and Saskatchewan education ministers are qualified teachers.

"If the ministers set up as a permament group with a national headquarters, as we understand they plan at the September meeting, it will be the biggest change in education in the last 25 years," Dr. Nason told the meeting.

One problem between teachers and education ministers apparently is communication, Dr. Nason said. Communication with the committee has been "extremely difficult to achieve."

He said the ministers' committe could make "private pacts" on grants to education, which could affect teachers' salaries and other working conditions.

Ex-Pentagon Aide Held for Spying

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former military aide to the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defence information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December, 1959, and March, 1961, from two former Soviet embassy officials who have returned to Russia.

Whalen, 51, and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after posting $15,000 bail.

The two Russians, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumaev, were named as co-conspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The justice department said the Russians were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in the office of the joint chiefs at the Pentagon until Feb. 3, 1961.

Water Short In Bombay

BOMBAY (AP)—All but essential factories and businesses in this Indian industrial city of 4,500,000 were ordered closed today to save water.

Violators of the one-day closing will be liable to six-month jail terms, the Maharashtra state government said in issuing the order Tuesday.

Officials said drastic measures, including possible voluntary mass evacuations to the countryside, have the approval of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Summer monsoon downpours, normally due here in the third week of June, have failed to arrive.

MAO EMERGES AGAIN TO GREET NEPALESE

MOA TSE-TUNG
. . . two-month absence

PEKING (Reuters) — Mao Tse-tung, China's Communist Party chairman, has ended a two-month absence from the public scene.

Peking newspapers today carried front-page pictures of him receiving the Nepalese Crown Prince Biendra and his delegation, currently visiting China.

The 72-year-old Chinese Communist leader appeared in good health.

A brief New China news agency report printed with the photographs gave no details on when or where the meeting took place. But observers said the presence of Premier Chou En-lai, who joined the Nepalese party in Shanghai this week, indicated Mao was staying in or near Shanghai.

'Underground' Rail Color Bar Hot Issue

LONDON (Reuters)—A storm blew up in Britain today following disclosures that workers at the country's leading railway station were operating a color bar in defiance of both unions and management.

The undercover policy of discrimination emerged early this week when Asquith Xavier, 46, a West Indian brakeman, was refused employment as a conductor at London's Euston Station.

Xavier, a former policeman from the Caribbean island of Dominica who has been working on British Railways for 10 years, was rejected because of his color by a staff organization group at Euston. The group turned him down despite a "no-color prejudice" ruling at the state-run British Railways and the National Union of Railwaymen.

NASTY DEAL

The job would have meant promotion and an extra £10 ($30) a week.

The case aroused strong criticism in the press today. The Daily Mail calls the unofficial color bar agreement at Euston "a nasty little deal" and a symptom of "sloppy management."

The Guardian reminds officials at Euston that British Railways are a nationalized industry. "As such it has a duty to set private employers an example."

Australian Oil Could Prove Major Windfall

CALGARY (CP)—Utilization of oil and gas reserves recently discovered off the coast of the Australian state of Victoria could save the country $250,000,000 a year, the governor of Victoria, Sir Henry Bolte, said over the weekend.

Sir Henry is in Calgary for talks with oil and gas officials.

Sir Henry said that when the present gas and oil finds are developed, Australia will not have to use imported petroleum products from the Middle East.

He said that three gas wells and one oil well have been brought in so far. The reserve is estimated at 500,000,000 barrels, enough to serve Australian needs for five years.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Northlode Continues Gain

The Vancouver market continued strong on moderate trade before noon today.

Northlode Exploration Ltd. continued its climb of recent days, and was up .04 to $1.61.

Gary Schell, the company's managing director, said Northlode is staking new silver, lead and zinc prospects in northern B.C., and work is expected to start on the property within a month.

He would not say where the new claims are.

Elsewhere in the market, Northwest Ventures added .03 to .19, and Jaye was up .06 to 50. Croydon added .05 to .55 and Brenda was up .10 to $8.80.

Losers included Canusa, down .06 to .58; Giant Mascot, off .08 to $1.75, and Peso, down .07 to $1.50.

In the industrials, Johnston Terminals was trading at $5.50 after a three-for-one split Tuesday. Sun A was up $1 to $24. Trans-Mountain lost .37 to a 1966 low of $16.50.

Fractional losses marked trading in industrials at Toronto.

Wall Street remained lower in dull trading.

AT TORONTO Distillers Seagram fell ¾ to 31:, Bell Telephone ½ to 51 and Toronto-Dominion bank ⅜ to 62½. CPR and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce fell ¼ each to 64 and 62⅝.

Senior base metals were mixed, with Falconbridge ahead ¾ to 98½ and Inco ⅜ to 98⅜. Noranda fell ⅝ to 53⅝ and Hudson Bay ½ to 77¾.

Uranium issues lost heavily, as Denison dropped 1¼ to 60¾, Roman Corp. 1 to 15, Rio Algom ¾ to 26⅝ and Preston ⅛ to 15⅜.

Golds were higher, behind a gain of 1 to McIntyre Porcupine, at 99. Giant Yellowknife advanced ⅛ to 13⅝.

AT NEW YORK some losses were sharp but the general scope of declines was from fractions to about a point. A Liberal assortment of issues bucked the downtrend.

DuPont lost 4 and Pan American World Airways 3. Mission Corp. lost nealy 3.

Burroughs, reporting a sharp gain in profits, gained about 2. Hecla Mining and Homestake rose more than a point each.

Chrysler, reporting a big drop in early-July car sales from a year ago, sank nearly a point.

AT MONTREAL prices generally remained shaded fractionally.

Noranda fell ⅜ to 54⅜. CPR, up in early morning trading, turned to lower levels and was off ¼ to .64. Alcan recovered some of its morning losses and stood at 36¾, down ⅜.

AT LONDON the market was easier although dollar stocks were an exception. Many losses in equities were extended after Britain's June trade figures were published, and a few improvements in gilt-edged soon were lost.

Most dollar stocks were better on an improvement in the premium offsetting Tuesday's dullness on Wall Street.

In Canadians, International Nickel added 3⅜s, Noranda 3, Massey-Ferguson 2¼ and Canadian Pacific 2.

Consolidated Paper and Brazilian Traction eased.

Improvements in Canadian banks ranged to ⅜. Steels lost a few pence.

Coal Output In Canada Shows Gain

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's coal production climbed 2.3 per cent in 1965 as the bustling prairies found coal a cheaper fuel than natural gas for some of their power plants.

Production of sub-bituminous coal in Alberta was 21 per cent ahead of 1964 to 2,554,752 tons.

In Saskatchewan, a 3.5 per cent increase in lignite production helped offset declines in bituminous production in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and British Columbia.

Over-all Canadian production during the year was 11,588,616 tons compared with 11,319,323 tons in 1964.

Major declines were 3.7 per cent in Nova Scotia to a total production of 4,134,161 tons and 7.5 per cent in British Columbia to 971,465 tons. New Brunswick production dropped .7 per cent to 996,328 tons.

Uranium Find On Property Near Sudbury

TORONTO (CP)—Kerr Addison Mines Ltd. has announced it has encountered encouraging uranium values on a property about 40 miles northwest of Sudbury.

The Toronto-based gold-producing company purchased an 80-per-cent interest in the property last year from Quebec Matagami Minerals Ltd.

J. H. Stovel, executive vice-president of Kerr Addison, said test holes drilled showed widths ranging from 6.7 to 12 feet and uranium content ranging from 1.05 to 2.47 pounds of uranium oxide per ton.

By comparison the ore reserves of Rio Algom Mines Ltd. one of Canada's largest uranium producers, average 2.23 pounds of uranium oxide per ton.

Credit Check To Continue

LONDON (CP)—The British government's squeeze on bank credit is to remain in force until the end of 1967 and perhaps even longer, says James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer.

His statement in the Commons Tuesday indicated a government awareness of a continuing weakness in the economy which has raised fresh speculation about the future of the pound. An opposition member spoke of an approaching "economic blizzard."

REPORTED BAN ON FLOUR FOR CUBA

Three Firms Deny Orders from U.S.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Canadian subsidiaries of three large United States flour mills said today that as a matter of operating policy they don't ship flour to Cuba but the decision was their own. It was not made as a result of orders from their U.S. head offices.

Officials of Quaker Oats Co. of Canada Ltd., Robin Hood of Canada and Pillsbury Canada denied implied charges in the House of Commons that the three firms were under U.S. domination. But all admitted that they don't trade with Cuba which is on the U.S. banned list for shipment of strategic goods. Their reasons:

Quaker Oats: "Common sense. We don't need the business anyway."

Robin Hood: "We're satisfied with what we have."

Pillsbury: "Operating policy."

A person purporting to be a spokesman of Quaker Oats of Canada said in a statement Tuesday night that his company had, as alleged, received orders from the United States not to ship to Cuba but this statement was repudiated today by Quaker's president, J. G. Wharry. He termed it false.

Mr. Wharry said here his company never had received directions from the U.S. on what to ship or not to ship to Cuba but does not in fact process flour for that country.

This was out of respect for the parent company's position under U.S. law and because Quaker Oats of Canada does not need the Cuban business.

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadian subsidiaries of United States flour milling firms will not be barred by American policy from selling flour to Cuba, Trade Minister Robert Winters assured the Commons Tuesday.

He gave this assurance following the suggestion by L. R. Sherman (PC. C. — Winnipeg South) that Canadian political and economic sovereignty was suffering an infringement as a result of U.S. government policy respecting trade with Cuba.

Mr. Sherman said he was informed that directives had gone out to the three U.S. flour mills in Canada, namely, Robin Hood, Quaker and Pillsbury, forbidding them to mill Canadian wheat in Canada for sale to Cuba. He said the order was formulated under the U.S. trading with The Enemy Act and carried with it the implied threat of severe penalties for any offender.

Mr. Winters said that if such orders did exist they were not in keeping with good corporate Canadian citizenship. The minister said that when Mr. Sherman raised the matter earlier Tuesday in the house a check was made with the companies.

Two of them said they had not received any instructions not to sell any of the flour to Cuba. The minister said that the third company would be contacted to ascertain if it had received any directives from the United States that would prevent it from selling flour to Cuba.

PASSED CASE

"However there is this question of the extension of extra-territoriality with which we were concerned in our meeting with the U.S. ministers earlier this year," said Mr. Winters.

"We pressed this case very vigorously. We told them this was contrary to the best interests of Canada and totally incompatible with our concepts of Canadian sovereignty. We told them we intended to take action to let their canadian companies know what we regarded to be good corporate Canadian citizenship. Members of parliament know what the guiding principles are. We have set forth the principles under which we suggest they operate in all respects as good Canadian citizens," he said.

He added that the Canadian government left it with the Americans after pressing "very vigorously" that if any cases came to the Canadian government's attention of a danger of infringement of Canadian sovereignty, then Canada would bring it to the attention of the American authorities. The Canadian government promised the U.S. government that if any such case was found it would take action immediately by going directly to Washington.

"There have been one or two instances recently in which it was alleged that this sort of thing was happening. We took it up with the American authorities. We found out it either was not happening at all, or if there was any shadow that it might be happening, there were proper actions taken to prevent it from happening," said Mr. Winters.

He assured Mr. Sherman that the question involving the three flour companies would be pursued by his department at once. He thanked the Winnipeg member for bringing it to the attention of the Canadian government.

AMERICAN MOTORS

Firm to Hike Production In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says American Motors (Canada) Ltd. of nearby Brampton is planning a major production increase that will raise its annual output of cars to 50,000 from about 30,000.

The newspaper says the higher production will begin Aug. 15 when the firm begins making its 1967 models, and that most of the extra cars will be exported to eastern United States markets.

It says official announcement of the export program and an accompanying production realignment will be made July 25.

A spokesman for American Motors had no comment on the newspaper's story.

The newspaper says the increase in production is being prompted by the Canadian-U.S. auto trade pact which requires the Canadian auto industry to increase its output by $250,000,000 annually by the 1968 model year.

Price Boost Warranted, Says Endako

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for Endako Mines Ltd., which produces 12 per cent of the free world's supply of molybdenum, said Tuesday the company's announced 10-cent-per-pound price increase was warranted "in view of the present supply and demand situation abroad."

In a statement issued following the price increase, Endako officials said: "The increase is warranted in view of the present supply-demand situation abroad and labor costs locally.

The Endako move followed closely a five per cent increase by the Molybdenum Corporation of America. President Johnson's economic advisory council termed the U.S. price increase "unjustified."

Endako recently announced plans for expansion of its Prince George mill capacity to 22,000 tons per day from the present 14,000 tons. The company estimated the price increase will boost revenues $1,000,000 annually.

Molybdenum Corp. In Prices Boost

NEW YORK (AP)—Molybdenum Corp. of America has become the second molybdenum producer to raise product prices an average of five per cent.

The Molybdenum Corp. action Monday followed Friday's price increase by Climax Molybdenum, a division of American Metal Climax. During the weekend, Gardner Ackley, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, called the increase "totally unjustified" and asked other producers to refrain from price increases.

GE Sales Earnings Set Mark

NEW YORK (CP) — General Electric Corp. the world's largest electrical manufacturer, reported record sales and earnings in the second quarter of 1966 Tuesday.

General Electric had sales of $1,768,426,000, compared with $1,522,216,000 a year earlier.

Its net earnings rose to $90,903,000, or 99 cents a share, from $82,426,000, or 90 cents a share, for the similar quarter in 1965.

Also reported was a 13-per-cent increase in earnings, to $172,666,000, or $1.89 a share, from $152,418,000, or $1.67 a share, for the last half of 1965. GE's sales in the period rose 18 per cent to $3,334,205,000 from $2,817,031,000.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE BIG FACTOR

U.K. Trade Deficit Jumps

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's overseas trading deficit rose to £55,000,000 ($165,000,000) last month, almost double the figure for May, the government announced today.

The strike of British seamen which tied up ships and exports for nearly seven weeks during May and June was a major factor in the increased gap.

Exports and re-exports were £361,000,000 ($1,083,000,000) compared with £439,000,000 ($1,317,000,000) in May.

June imports were £466,000,000 against May's £520,000,000 ($1,560,000,000).

The gap between receipts from overseas sales and the cost of overseas purchases was £105,000,000 ($315,000,000). In May this gap was £81,000,000 ($243,000,000).

After taking into account the value of invisible exports, such as insurance and freight receipts, the deficit was recuced to £55,000,000 compared with May's £28,000,000 ($84,000,000).

Government sources stress the effects of the seamen's strike distorted the true picture.

Although traffic in most ships is two-way — bringing in imports and taking out exports — there is a tendency for foreign ships, which were not affected by the strike, to be bigger carriers of imports to Britain than exports from Britain.

This partly explains why the drop in imports last month was not as high as the drop in exports. Exports dropped by £78,000,000 ($234,000,000) and imports were down by £54,000,000 ($162,000,000).

A converse distortion is likely to be seen in the July figures in a month's time because these will reflect shipment after the end of the strike of a backlog of millions of pounds worth of exports.

NO DICE!

It might look like it, but this isn't a crap game. Hamilton Tiger-Cat linebacker Bobby Kuntz (32) lost contact lens during Eastern Football Conference club's intra-squad game in Hamilton and well-wishers joined in search. But again no dice—they never found it.—(CP Wirephoto)

ORIOLE SCOUT DIES

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — Barney Lutz, chief scout for Baltimore Orioles of the American League in the New York and Pennsylvania area, was stricken fatally by an apparent heart attack Monday night.

Americans Get Awards But Nationals Triumph

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"You read what an edge the National League has," said pitcher Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers.

"It's as if we're supposed to go out there and concede the game."

The American League didn't concede. But they didn't win either.

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

But in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't the powerful NL sluggers who took command.

The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim McCarver of St. Louis Cardinals and Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

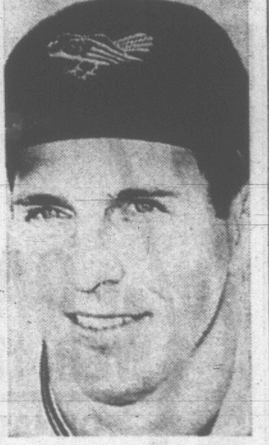
The American League has won only once during that period—there also was a tie—and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its over-all lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the AL Stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore Orioles' third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back his awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the most-valuable-player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nicer to win."

The loss may have taken some of the glitter off things, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came away with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.



BROOKS ROBINSON
. . . most valuable

Sandy Koufax Uncorks Wild Pitch

The 10-inning struggle was played in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers, great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

MISSED CATCH

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field. Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston Red Sox' George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants then started things for the National Leaguers against Jim Kaat of Minnesota Twins, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Roberto Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

PERRY IN TROUBLE

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers. Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yanks and Sonny Siebert of Cleveland Indians for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia Phillies and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National—until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with a pop fly single, and immediately proceeded to second on a wild pitch.

Perry went back to work. Detroit's Norm Cash flied out, Willie McCovey of San Francisco reached into the stands for a pop by New York Yanks' Bobby Richardson and Perry threw a third strike by California Angels' Jim Fregosi.

Then Washington Senators' Pete Richert, a left-hander, came in to pitch for the American with McCarver, also a left-hander, due up. The book called for a pinch hitter.

"It was no hunch to let McCarver bat against the left-hander," Alston explained. "He hits left-handers pretty well."

McCarver pulled a single into right field and was sacrificed to second base.

Wills, after faking a bunt, sliced a pop single to right and McCarver raced home ahead of Tony Oliva's throw.

Gerry's Pitching Boosts Chances

Gerry Macadam, a strong centrefielder who hits ground balls harder than most local players hit line drives, took the mound for King's Hotel Tuesday night at Hampton Park and promptly brightened Kings' Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League playoff chances with a 9-4 win over Rawlings.

The hard-swinging Macadam helped himself at the plate with three singles in four at-bats. The big lefthander scored two runs and drove in one more in a familiar run-producing role.

Don Head contributed two singles and a two-run double to the winning cause as Kings moved to within two games of fourth-place Rawlings.

The top four clubs in the six-team league make the playoffs.

Macadam struck out 12 Rawlings batters and gave up seven hits while Kings collected 12 hits, five of them infield singles, off losing pitcher George Brice.

ROOKIES SPARKLE

Rawlings' brightest moments were provided by rookies John Martin and Lloyd Murphy.

Martin sprinted deep into left field to make a leaping, backhanded catch to rob Dennis Thompson of a potential grand-slam home run.

Murphy clubbed a solid three-bagger to right centre to drive home Rawlings' first run in the third.

Giant German Shadow Hangs Over Cup Rivals

Russia, Brazil's Champions Also Post Soccer Victories

LONDON (CP) — The giant shadow of West Germany hung over the soccer teams of Spain and Argentina today as they faced each other at Birmingham's Villa Park in Group II of the World Cup tournament.

The West Germans, winners of the trophy in 1954 and the last Europeans to take it, hammered Switzerland 5-0 at Sheffield Tuesday night with the kind of form that could make them champions again.

They were led to victory by two powerful midfield linkmen, Franz Beckenbauer and Helmet Haller. Both scored two goals.

In other games Tuesday, Russia beat North Korea 3-0 and Brazil, the defending champion, downed Bulgaria 2-0.

Argentina faces the Germans Saturday, and Spain plays them next Wednesday. With the Germans showing such impressive form, the team losing today's group II match will have only a slim hope of finishing in the top two and making the quarter-finals.

The 16 countries in the tournament have been divided into four groups of four, and the top two in each group will move into the quarter-finals. From that point, things proceed on a straight knockout basis until there are two survivors for the sudden-death final July 30.

A crowd of 36,000 watched West Germany build up an unassailable 3-0 lead by halftime against Switzerland Tuesday.

All three goals came after clever individual dribbles, a hint that the Germans may possess the skill to find the hole in the tight modern defence patterns that threaten to dominate the tournament.

Complaints Over Rough-house Play

Left winger Siegfried Held wriggled past three Swiss defenders to score the first goal, and Haller weaved past two to score the second. Beckenbauer also eluded the defence later on to cap a great individual run to make it 3-0.

Beckenbauer scored again in the second half and Haller made it 5-0 on a penalty shot.

The West Germans, not rated as highly as the defending champion Brazilians, host country England or the Italians before the tournament began, made a profound impression on the British press in their first start.

The Daily Telegraph says: "Uwe Seeler and company are a rare mixture of muscle and skill and it is as certain as anything can be that their qualifying games with Argentina and Spain will be classics. The Swiss, as tidy and industrious as ever, were merely "extras."

Cyril Chapman of The Guardian writes of the Germans, "clearly they are going to be one of the most powerful challengers in the competition."

But, besides German prowess there was another spectre hanging over the tournament: Rough-house soccer.

The Russians and the Bulgarians were on the receiving end of bitter complaints that they are trying to bulldoze their way to victories without respect for the essential skills of the game.

Bulgaria lost 2-0 to Brazil at Liverpool Tuesday in a match that produced raw tempers over tough tackling.

Pele, attacking star of the Brazilian forward line, complained: "I have received more blows than ever before. I don't see why the Bulgarians have to use such tactics."

Peter Lorenzo writes in The Sun: "One second you were watching superb soccer craftsmanship, and next you shuddered at the sight of vicious tackles and physical contact."

The Brazilian players were all checked in the dressing room by team physician Dr. Hilton Gosling, but he reported no injuries immediately apparent.

KOREANS CHEERED

Russia defeated North Korea 3-0 in a match that turned ugly at times, as the taller Soviet players crashed into the short, stocky footballers from Eastern Asia.

The British crowd cheered the underdog Koreans and booed every infringement by the hard-tackling Soviet team.

All the matches Tuesday at least produced results with plenty of goals, and World Cup officials were jubilant.

After Monday's opening match in which England and Uruguay played a scoreless tie, there were fears that defensive tactics might stifle the championship and produce a boring series of non-results.

But 10 goals were scored in [illegible]day's matches, and the outlook for the fans was suddenly better.

In tonight's games, France plays Mexico in Group I, Argentina plays Spain in Group II, Hungary plays Portugal in Group III, and Chile plays Italy in Group IV.

Yankoski's Heave Rescues Carlings

Carlings have collected enough victories this season to grab the lead in the Senior Men's Softball League.

Like all winners, they have the ability to win by big scores or survive close battles.

Despite their habits, things were too tight for manager Lou McCorkall's comfort Tuesday night.

Only John Yankoski's throwing accuracy separated Carlings from Luckies in Tuesday's [illegible] test at Heywood Avenue Park.

Carlings won 5-4 to move two full games ahead of second-place Luckies and Sooke.

Luckies trailed, 5-2, coming to bat in the seventh and final inning. Trouble started for Carlings with one man out as Luckies' Doug Couch reached first on an error. Joe Patterson followed with a sharp infield grounder and Carlings tried to finish it with a double play.

The throw to second was wild and Couch moved to third while Patterson stayed on first. Carlings forced Patterson at second on Lyle Cornett's grounder to leave runners on first and third with two out.

BRANTING SINGLES

Hard-hitting catcher Ralph Branting singled home Couch and advanced to second with the potential tying run on the throw to the plate.

Brian Weston stroked a single to left. Cornett scored and Branting came charging around third.

Carlings' Yankoski gunned the ball home from behind third base to beat Branting by a couple of strides. Catcher Tom Sloan held onto the ball on a crash play at the plate to end the contest.

Bob Holness was the big man with the bat for Carlings. He picked up three hits in three times at bat and drove in three runs.

It was the second close win in two nights for the Carlings, who edged Sooke 2-1 Monday.

EMILE PLANS QUICK KAYO IN TITLE GO

NEW YORK (AP)—Middleweight champion Emile Griffith, 28, will try to score a quick knockout over Joey Archer, 28, tonight in their title fight.

Griffith was rated an even money shot in the betting, however, against the New York challenger for their 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden. Starting time is 10 p.m. EDT.

The Garden predicted a crowd of 13,000 or more will provide a live gate upwards of $100,000.

In addition the bout will be telecast by about 90 stations coast to coast. New York will be blacked out.

Pat Skillings Trips Smythe

Pat Skillings upset third-seeded Ted Smythe, 6-2, 6-3, in men's singles competition in the Victoria open tennis championships Tuesday.

Felicity Graham, 15, beat Vivian Wilkinson, 6-4, 6-1, to advance in women's singles.

'BELLIES BEATEN

Rocks Tackle Tough Adanacs

It's a long way to playoff territory but Victoria Shamrocks plan to give it a try.

Coach Bert Bertoia admits the deck is stacked against the Rocks. His club trails third-place New Westminster Salmonbellies by 11 points with 11 games to play but Bert won't concede the Bellies the third playoff spot in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Rocks will attempt to slice the deficit tonight at Memorial Arena against the leading Coquitlam Adanacs. "We still have some problems with injuries," Bertoia said today, "but we'll go with two lines tonight and I think it will do the trick, as it did in New Westminster last Thursday."

ADDED SPARK

Second-place Vancouver added spark to Victoria's ambitions Tuesday night by drubbing Westminster 17-8 at Kerrisdale.

Salmonbellies had regular goalie Les Norman back from vacation for Tuesday's tussle, but it didn't help a bit.

Norman got little protection as Vancouver forwards continually raced in for point-blank shots.

Ted Hunt and Pete Black had the most fun at Norman's expense. Each potted three goals.

USSELMAN OUT

Adanacs will be without Fred Usselman, who is sitting out a suspension, but they have signed veteran Jack Barclay.

Shamrocks, who own one victory over the leaders, will be without the services of Tom Collett, forced out for the season by illness and injuries, and Tom Black, who will be working. Ted Liebich (knee troubles) and Lonnie Restell (back injury) are doubtful starters.

Back with the Irish after injuries, however, will be scoring ace Bill Munroe and rugged Bob Coutts.

Game time tonight is 8.

Parker Rests Ailing Knee

TORONTA (CP)—Jackie Parker, plagued by knee injuries, asked Toronto Argonauts for a week off workouts Tuesday amid growing speculation he will retire after 12 seasons as a top line star in the Canadian Football League.

Parker sought and received the rest period from Argo coach Bob Shaw to see if his knee problems will respond. He had two knee operations since last season and had hoped the workouts would strengthen his knee.

But the knee was reported to be inflamed this week.

ANNUAL JAMBOREE . . . . . . ROUSING SUCCESS

Tykes Steal Minor Boxla Show

Officials of the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association and their smallest players all beaming today.

Officials were pleased with the success of their annual Minor Lacrosse Jamboree Tuesday night at Memorial Arena. More than 2,000 tickets were sold and the proceeds will assist the association in its boxla-for-boys program.

The little fellows, they call them "Tykes," stole the show and their ears may still be echoing with cheers that followed their efforts.

All under eight years of age, the Tykes are the smallest of the minor lacrosse lads and the fans apparently thought they put on the biggest show of the five-game jamboree.

Geordie Robertson and Jimmy Boyd were big men among the little guys.

Robertson's two-goal display sparked the Victoria "A" squad to a 4-1 victory over Saanich "B".

Boyd scored five goals to pace Saanich "A" tykes to a 6-3 win over Saanich novice "B".

Victoria Novices beat Saanich Novices 5-2, Saanich Peewees trimmed Victoria Peewees 14-2, and Home Service Midgets downed McDonald's Baker Bantams 11-2.

Fans received a total of 12 door prizes but the top award—a camera—went unclaimed. Holder of ticket No. 2126 should contact Doug Fletcher at 386-2793.

Poland Gets Into Act; Boycotts Track Meets

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Poland has joined Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletic Federation takes action against either Communist country.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for Berkeley, Calif., when word came Tuesday of the cancellation. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pullouts.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try to bind the split.

The Communist sports freeze extended to basketball with the announcement that Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia were cancelling games against a touring American all-star team.

PLANS UNCERTAIN

The Americans opened their swing through Europe with a 104-81 victory over an Austrian team in Vienna Monday night, but plans for the remainder of the trip were uncertain.

Meanwhile, the 19-member U.S. swimming team arrived in Moscow to compete in an international meet this weekend. The team was treated routinely in line with a Soviet announcement that it would take no action in events involving other countries besides the United States.

Plans went ahead in Berkeley and Los Angeles for replacement meets. The Berkeley meet was renamed the All-America Invitational and Los Angeles promoters invited Australian and New Zealand teams to compete in their meet.

Frederick Humphreys, manager of the Australian track and field squad, said he thought the Australians would accept the invitation.

At the same time, the Russians and Poles agreed to compete against each other at Minsk, Russia, July 23-24.

Polish officials appeared saddened by the cancellation.

"If only the Russians had waited a day or two to announce their decision," said one Pole, "we would have been on our way."

Vancouver Diver Tower Champion

TORONTO (CP)—Terry Fitzpatrick of Vancouver and Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., were title winners Tuesday in the 10-metre tower diving British Empire Games trials here.

Fitzpatrick scored 391.5 points in 10 events to win the men's Canadian tower diving championships.

Miss Boys, 15, the youngest competitor on the 10-metre board, took the women's Canadian title with 288.9 points in seven events.

City Cadet Hits Bisley Prize List

BROOKWOOD, England (Reuters) — Most Canadians advanced Tuesday through the first stage of the St. George's Challenge Vase match at the National Rifle Association's Bisley meet.

The best Canadian showing was by Nicholas Beckessy of Montreal, who scored 74 out of a possible 75 with his 15 shots at 300 yards. This was one point short of the score of four other competitors.

The three-stage match continues until Friday.

The long-delayed results of Saturday's Aggregate Trophy match, based on the scores in Saturday's four individual events, were issued Tuesday, showing that the top-scoring Canadian placed five points behind the victor.

C. F. O'Sullivan, a former British navy chief petty officer who now teaches school in Plymouth, topped the list with a record 196 out of a possible 200.

LEADS CANADIANS

LAC Jim Hennock of Toronto led the Canadian scorers, placing eighth with 191.

He was followed by Officer Cadet Ralph Grant, Dartmouth, N.S., 14th with 190; Cadet Lieut. W. R. Cottick, Winnipeg, 189; Arne Sorensen, Calgary, 187, and Beckessy, 185.

Scores released Tuesday showed a Scot beating a Canadian by one point for the trophy for the best aggregate in Monday's three events at 200, 500 and 900 yards.

Colin McEachran of Glasgow was the winner with 146, the same score totalled by LAC Hennock last year.

LAC Ernest Roger, 26, a native of Esquimalt, B.C., now serving with the RCAF at Lancaster Park, Alta., tied for runner-up spot at 145 with B. H. B. Wrey of the Oxford and Cambridge Rifle Association, but placed second on the "count-out." LAC Roger's long-range score, 49, was better than Wrey's.

TOM NELSON 13TH

K. Dyer of Wolverhampton, England, and McEachran tied with 48 out of 50 Tuesday in the Corporation of the City of London Trophy competition, 10 shots at 1,000 yards, whose long-range shoot gave many Canadians trouble.

Cadet WO Tom Nelson, 17, of Victoria, B.C., was the best shot, with 45, among the five Canadians who managed to reach the prize list. He counted out to 13th place.

Also with 45s, but farther down the list, were LAC Roger, Park and Sgt. Jack Riches of Oliver, B.C. Flt. Sgt. Alfred O'Brien, RCAF Toronto, had a 44.

Lawyers Again Blast Proposal For Compulsory Fingerprinting

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police chief Ralph Booth Tuesday reiterated a suggestion that all citizens should be fingerprinted and immediately ran into opposition from lawyers.

The opponents said it is just a step toward a system in which numbers would replace names.

In a speech to the Rotary Club the chief advocated fingerprinting in conjunction with a system of compulsory identification.

Fingerprints are the only positive means of identifying human beings, he said. They were essential to police—work and eventually would be used for business purposes.

Bill Deverell, executive secretary of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, asked for comment, said mass fingerprinting would be an unforgivable invasion of human rights.

"The next step will be universal mugshots, then numbers instead of names," he said. "There is enough regimentation with the social insurance numbers."

Douglas A. Hogarth, head of the criminal justice committee of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association, said he was diametrically opposed to the chief's idea.

"I agree that it is just a step from the use of numbers instead of names."

Attorney-General Bonner was not available for comment. But when the chief first mentioned the idea a year ago the minister said society cannot be run for the benefit of law enforcement officers.

Truscott Case Evidence Sound Expert Claims

LONDON (CP) — Professor Keith Simpson, one of Britain's leading authorities on forensic medicine, says the medical and scientific evidence in the Steven Truscott case is "surprisingly sound."

The 58-year-old professor, head of forsenic medicine in the famous Guys Hospital medical school, slipped quietly out of London today and appeared headed for Canada, where the Supreme Court of Canada later this year will review the Truscott case.

Truscott, now 21, was found guilty in 1959 of the murder of 12-year-old Lynne Harper near Clinton, Ont. He is serving a life sentence at Collins Bay Penitentiary near Kingston.

A book on the case, written by Isabel LeBourdais has raised questions about the handling of the case.

Last April, in a letter to the lord chancellor, Professor Francis Camps, one of Britain's top pathologists, said that on the basis of the book, "I do not think the medical evidence for the prosecution can possibly [illegible] up to scrutiny."

Camps later made a trip to Canada and said he conferred with Truscott's lawyers. In an interview Tuesday night he said he did not know whether he would testify on behalf of Truscott during the review.

WROTE REVIEW

Meanwhile, Simpson wrote a review on the LeBourdais book, published in the current edition of Britain's Medico-Legal Journal, a quarterly.

In his review Simpson said the book is "so biased by the outraged feelings of the authoress it is difficult to weigh the facts."

He described Truscott's defence by his lawyer, Frank Donnelly, as "colorless" and observed that no major legal figure appeared on either side of the case. Except for the young age of the accused and the victim, he wondered why this case, which seemed "like so many others," was selected for "such a meticulous scientific dissection."

"The medical and scientific evidence given seemed to us surprisingly sound coming as it did from quite moderate experts and we do not subscribe to the feelings of outrage that are repeatedly called for in this account of the Truscott case," he concluded.

FORMOSA FIRM SENDS SHIPS TO VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Orient Overseas Lines of Formosa will inaugurate a regular service between the Orient and Vancouver next month.

If business warrants, a new passenger service recently inaugurated by the line between California ports and the Orient will also include Vancouver as a port of call.

Orient Overseas is an affiliated company of the C. Y. Tung group which operates more than 1,000,000 tons of shipping.

Cominco Workers Set Strike Date

TRAIL (CP) — Employees of the giant Cominco Ltd. operation here voted Tuesday night to strike at 3 p.m. Monday, July 18, if there is no settlement of their contract dispute.

About 3,000 members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers are involved.

The strike date was set at a union meeting attended by some 1,500 members and wives. The union encourages wives to attend meetings as an indication of solidarity. They may speak, but not vote.

Earlier, members at Cominco operations throughout British Columbia voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action, but no date was set.

Tuesday night's meeting was called to hear a report from a provincial conciliation officer that said he was unable to help the parties reach agreement.

UNLOADING POINT TO BIG PINK RUN

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Fishing vessels are unloading here what could be the start of a very heavy run of pink salmon.

"It's either a very early run or the vanguard of an exceptionally heavy run," protection officer P. D. Murray said on Tuesday.

"There's nothing to compare with it on the whole coast."

HOME GARDEN

New Annuals In Colorful 1966 Debut

By HILDA BEASTALL

Nearing the middle of July, we are able to take a look at some of the new annuals which make their debut in home gardens this year.

Hilda

One of the first to flower from an early February sowing indoors has been the new snapdragon with the open blooms in place of the usual pair of snapping jaws

Under the name of Bright Butterflies from one seed house, and Bellflowers from another, these new snaps appeared this year only in a mixture of colors, but some are so captivating with the round open throat of exquisite warm orange, velvety crimson or blush pink that we hope next year to have them in separate colors.

Look for them in your friends' gardens or public plantings wherever you may be visiting this summer.

NEW GREEN

The new green nicotine is just as fragrant as the white, and the same size blooms. By evening they are quite charming when planted with the Crimson King variety, or used indoors displayed in tall slender glass vases for evening perfume.

Making a good showing before July 1 in spite of cool weather, the butter yellow petunia Sunburst proved to be a fine bushy plant with plenty of early blooms. Since the color is not bright, it looks better when near flowers of dark blue or purple, for then it does indeed appear as a burst of sunlight.

Perhaps we have been underestimating the ability of zinnias to grow and flower in cooler weather. This year the plants have made lovely growth and first flowers 10 days ago.

NEW ENVY

The new green zinnia, named Envy, is just expanding its petals and it is still too early to decide just how green it will be under our conditions. It has been recommended for growing where shaded from hot afternoon sun, the green color developing without fading.

Since blue is a cool color too, it is nice to imagine a planting of those green zinnias associated with the light Cambridge Blue lobelia. Envy may reach 24 inches, but is very well branched and bushy.

A patio or other sitting-out-place in sun from early morning until noon, and then dappled shade, would be an ideal spot to try these next year.

Shingle Mill Work Starts At Lime Bay

Construction of a $65,000 first-phase cedar shingle mill has started at Lime Bay near the Island Tug railway terminal.

The mill, being built by the long-established McCarter family, replaces a 50-year-old operation on Rock Bay at Bay Street which closed a year ago.

Patterson Construction has excavation, blasting and foundation work under way at the new address, 199 Songhees.

United Engineering is the other major contractor that will be involved later with the installation of electrically-driven machinery. Kiln drying will be by propane gas for completely smokeless operation.

U.S. MARKET

The new McCarter Shingle and Shake Co. has an eye on the lucrative California shake market for some of its output.

Waste material will be put through a chipper and disposed of by the barge load.

The mill site overlooks a log storage area near the foot of Catherine Street in Victoria West.

White Men Charged

GRENADA, Miss. (UPI) — Two white men were charged with attempted murder Monday in connection with a submachine-gun attack on a federal official and two civil rights figures outside a Negro church here Saturday night.

Bobb Todd of Grenada and B. C. Bennett of nearby Montgomery County were arraigned before a local judge. Preliminary hearings were set for Wednesday, and bond was set at $1,000 for Bennett and $2,000 for Todd. No one was hit in the attack.

BCT President Launches Tour Of Island

Inspection tour of Vancouver Island was started Tuesday by B.C. Telephone Co. president and chief executive J. Ernest Richardson.

His three-day visit to company installations covered the two main Victoria headquarters and was to move up-Island to Nanaimo Wednesday and Campbell River Thursday.

Mr. Richardson met Mayor A. W. Toone between company conferences.

20 DEATHS IN ST. LOUIS

Heat Wave Scorches U.S. Central Area

CHICAGO (AP)—The longest heat wave of the summer gripped most of the eastern two-thirds of the U.S. today, causing widespread misery and inconvenience.

Temperatures have soared to 100-plus for five straight days in parts of the U.S. midsection and in the South.

In St. Louis, where the mercury climbed to 105 Tuesday and has been 100-plus for four days, 20 deaths were attributed to the hot weather. More than 100 persons at the all-star baseball game in St. Louis were treated for illnesses caused by heat.

The Union Electric Co. in St. Louis said it planned to continue rationing electric power to 600,000 customers in an attempt to avert a blackout.

Many cities reported record consumption of power because of round-the-clock use of air-conditioners and cooling devices.

In Washington, Chairman Lee C. White of the U.S. Federal Power Commission said the heat wave is causing a critical electric power situation in most of the U.S. east of the Rockies.

But he said he does not foresee any massive power failure such as the one that blacked out the northeastern U.S. and part of Ontario last November.

Severe thunderstorms struck Sandusky, Ohio, and nearly a foot of rain caused flooding. About 200 persons were evacuated.

Heavy thunderstorms cut electrical service in several suburbs of Detroit.

HYDRANTS TURNED OFF, HOT NEGROES RUN WILD

CHICAGO (AP)—Bands of Negro youths ran through a Chicago neighborhood Tuesday night, breaking windows, looting stores and hurling rocks and homemade bombs.

The disturbance was ignited during the late afternoon when police turned off a water hydrant in the Negro neighborhood during hot, muggy weather.

It is common practice on hot days in Chicago for residents to open water hydrants for children to cool themselves.

'Brilliant Performance' By Ex-Vancouver Actress

By AUDREY JOHNSON

After taking in the Vancouver Festival premiere of the musical, Oliver, one thing can be said with certainty.

By no means an unflawed production, it is still likely to emerge as one of the half-dozen most memorable in the nine-season history of the festival.

An important part of this is attributable to the genius of Lionel Bart whose book and lyrics so vividly capture the flavor of Charles Dickens—the poignancy as well as the humor and eccentricity.

Dynamic

But the production also has a director in New York's Stone Widney, who is authoritative, dynamic in his invention and who provided the performance with a powerful rhythm and a boiling, flowing sense of movement.

There are also two soaring pinnacles in the acting area: nimble-footed, entirely captivating Jules Munshin who makes Fagin a lovable rapscallion, and Roma Hearn who gives the role of Nancy a rich, full characterization.

Vital, rowdy, vulgar, tender and poignant in a rapidly shifting overlay of qualities and emotions, this was a brilliant performance by the former Vancouver actress.

At moments she came near stealing the honors from the Broadway star, but Mr. Munshin's lustre was not to be dimmed when he led the cast of ragamuffins in the irresistible "You've Got to Pick a Pocket or Two," or gloated over his secret hoard in "Reviewing the Situation."

Alan Crofoot as Mr. Bumble the Beadle, Rae Brown as the workhouse mistress, and Marjorie Le Strange in two roles, were Canadian performers who were little less effective than the two stars.

Before commenting on the young people in the cast, a word on the set design is in order.

Rapid Changes

Oliver is divided into two parts with six scenes in each.

In order to deal with this problem the original designer created ingenious and immensely fluid scene units which shift before one's eyes with the rapidity of a television transition.

These have been translated in toto (with costumes) from Broadway to the Queen Elizabeth Theatre stage.

But they have also brought with them a problem which develops into Oliver's major flaw—they consistently dominate the stage and diminish the actors except when such strong performers as Miss Hearn and Mr. Munshin are the contenders.

Children Suffer

It was inevitable that the children would suffer under these circumstances.

Young Brett Smiley, first understudy to the role of Oliver in the Broadway production, could not rise to effective heights against the continuous subordination of both stage design and story line.

Even the Artful Dodger, teen-aged Mark Novak, who is participating in his sixth production of the show, had a struggle although he is clearly a gifted young actor.

Excellent musical direction by another New York luminary, Stanley Lebowsky, was responsible for the immense vitality and superb pacing of the show and for the at all times ideal relationship of orchestra and voice.

Deservedly popular at the box office, it still has several performances to go—it ends with matinee and evening performances on Saturday—and should be high on the itinerary of anyone Vancouver bound.

The fact that opening night's capacity audience saw a performance that was certainly not "dead on" technically was attributable I later discovered, to the last-minute collapse of lighting designer Gail McCance.

Opening today and running through to the end of the month at Queen Elizabeth Playhouse, is The Threepenny Opera, scalp-tingling Kurt Weill-Bertolt Brecht version of Gay's Beggars' Opera.

Almost Sold Out

The Bolshoi Ballet, already almost 100 per cent sold out, is not, of course, a Vancouver Festival production.

Of two productions already gone by, the opera, Hansel and Gretel, was more popular than the play, Big Soft Nellie.

There is nothing incomprehensible about this.

I caught the last but one showing of the latter and could imagine that for many people it would make little sense.

Basically the English comedy represents the struggle of human beings to achieve status in the eyes of others.

Cleanly directed by Malcolm Black, the Playhouse Theatre Company cast was wholly excellent.

However despite an admirable performance by Hutchison Shandro as the "big soft Nellie" of a television repair man, kudos for the most memorable portrayal—of a beatnik, semi-moronic odd-job boy—belong unequivocally to Wayne Robson.

SECOND CANADIAN to join Royal Society of Artists, 93-year-old Saskatchewan artist Barbara Barber died in Regina hospital Tuesday. The former Barbara Muir of Brantford, Mrs. Barber lived in Regina since 1912. (CP Wirephoto.)

'Last of the Tsars' Splits Stratford Festival Critics

By DONALD PHILLIPSON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The first-night audience loved it but critics disagreed sharply Tuesday about The Last of the Tsars, the Shakespearean Festival's fourth of five dramatic productions this season.

Written by Michael Bawtree, a young English lecturer at Simon Fraser University, Vancouver, the play recounts the last five years of Grand Duke Michael Romanoff, the man who dissolved the Russian monarchy when Czar Nicholas II abdicated in his favor in 1917.

Robert Tanner called it "a very considerable success" in the Belleville Intelligencer while Nathan Cohen of the Toronto Star found it a "fiasco" and "bad theatrical hokum."

Mr. Cohen said "the prediction is made here, with absolute certainty, that The Last of the Tsars is not only having its premiers performance at the Avon Theatre but also its last public engagement."

Produced by Michael Langham, the festival's artistic director, the play is "what amounts to a historical revue," with a "semi - documentary, semi-fanciful approach to the events," wrote Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The Grand Duke, William Hutt, narrates the play together with a revolutionary called Samoilov, played by Tony van Bridge.

The characters discuss the play in flashbacks while it takes place and speculate about what is real and what is play-acting. Both this aspect and the lively style of presenting history, said Mr. Whittaker, suggest the English show about the First World War, Oh What a Lovely War.

Mr. Langham mixed elements of this style, made famous by Joan Littlewood in London, with his own "gift for deploying his people" on a bare stage, said the Globe and Mail's critic.

"It is this constant intriguing of the eye that makes The Last of the Tsars seem more dynamic than it truly is," he added.

Mr. Bawtree came to write the play when another on the same subject, written for Mr. Langham by William Kinsolving, proved a critical failure at Winnipeg's Manitoba Theatre Centre earlier this year. There has been controversy over whether enough critics saw the play to give it fair treatment.

Inglorious End for Namu

SEATTLE (AP) — What was left of Namu lay Tuesday in an Everett rendering plant waiting to be turned into poultry feed, but scientists here said the dead killer whale was continuing to provide "valuable information."

The Virginia Mason Research Centre, which did an autopsy on Namu and removed vital organs Monday, said the results and samples were still being analyzed and the findings would not be available for a day or two.

One thing appeared to have been established: Namu drowned when he became entangled in the steel minesweeper net around his waterfront pen here Saturday night trying to escape.

The autopsy also settled once and for all Namu's size. The gentle, trained killer whale weighed 7,520 pounds and was 21 feet 11 inches long.

Munitions Cutback

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara said Monday he is ordering a $1,000,000,000 cut in air munitions production because production is exceeding use in Viet Nam.

Wrong Address

Robert Richardson, 19, convicted Friday in central court of impaired driving, was incorrectly reported in Saturday's Times as living at 963 Bray.

CLOWN PLEADS NOT GUILTY

CALGARY (CP) — Famed bull rider and rodeo clown Buddy Heaton of Dewinton, Alta., pleaded not guilty Tuesday to three charges of assault causing bodily harm.

He was charged by police after three spectators were injured, none seriously, when Heaton's 1,800-pound buffalo went into the crowd during the Calgary Stampede parade Monday.

FOR REAL SUCCESS

Christian Ethics Necessary

When commercial success can be achieved only at the expense of Christian principles the businessman must be prepared to slit his commercial throat, Canon Hilary Butler of Christ Church Cathedral told a Tuesday luncheon of Kiwanis.

"It is for example more Christian to aid slum clearance than run a soup kitchen," he went on to say. "The Christian pawnbroker must try to put himself out of business."

Pointing out that "Christ was the greatest radical of all," the canon-lecturer urged businessmen to actively strive for progressive social change rather than unthinkingly defending the status quo.

PLAIN DUTIES

Canon Butler outlined certain plain duties of the Christian entrepreneur:

- He must shun intrinsically evil undertakings such as obscene publishing.
- He must err on the side of honesty rather than cutting questionable corners, "even when honesty is not the best policy."
- He must realize that all relationships, even business relationships, are of Christian value. He must not depersonalize his commercial relations. "He should for example ask if he is in a position to better the condition of his employees without waiting until he is forced to act;" and,
- He must give "not what he will but what his fellow man most needs."

DEATH by strangulation was reported to a coroner's inquest Monday night probing the lover's lane killing of Mrs. Anna Whitby, 28, near Coquitlam. Police have questioned dozens of suspects. A Vancouver radio station has posted a $2,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

$4,500 Reward

VANCOUVER (CP)—Reward money now totals $4,500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suburban Coquitlam's lovers' lane slayer.

Coquitlam council Tuesday night posted a $2,500 reward, on top of $2,000 offered earlier by New Westminster radio station CKNW.

Council also decided to barricade off the lane in which Mrs. Anna Whitby, 28, was strangled last Thursday evening with her own slacks.

Her nude body was found Friday in a water-filled ditch alongside the lane. Police believe her six-year-old son, Murray, who was found wandering in the lane earlier Friday, saw his mother attacked. Police believe Mrs. Whitby had taken Murray to the bushland area for a birthday picnic.

KID GLOVE TREATMENT PROMPTS RETURN TRIP

Two Saskatchewan schoolteachers got an unexpected welcome to Victoria when they were chosen as tourists of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Plunz of Weyburn, Sask., were picked from passengers aboard the Mv. Queen of Victoria by Jaycees Ken Yip and John Moore.

They were treated to lunch at Woodward's Mayfair dining room, dinner at King Arthur's Round Table, a stay at the Cherry Bend Motel as well as a tour of Victoria's Inner Harbor and other points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Plunz were so impressed with the kid glove treatment that they plan to visit Victoria again on their return from Mexico.

NEW BURUNDI GOV'T

PM Displays Military Power

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (AP) Burundi's new prime minister, a 26 - year - old former army captain, Michel Michombero, named his government Tuesday night, then sent a column of vehicles armed with machine-guns through the capital in a show of military strength.

Steel - helmeted troops, their fingers on the triggers, drove in convoy around the lakeside city, ready to crush any demonstration of dissent.

Michombero announced his cabinet four days after the bloodless coup which deposed Burundi's long - reigning King Mwambutsa IV and installed his son, 19 - year - old Prince Charles Ndizeye as the new head of state.

The new prime minister picked a cabinet made up mostly of specialists and military men.

Many in Burundi believe the coup may be the first step toward turning the country into a republic and that Charles is being retained temporarily as a front to keep the royalty-conscious masses happy.

Abortion Ban Eased

JERUSALEM (AP)—Self - induced abortion would no longer be considered a crime under an amendment to Israel's Criminal Code which passed a second reading in Parliament Monday. The amendment, which requires a third reading before becoming law, was supported by most women members.

October Opening Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Government plans to reconvene Parliament in early September have been abandoned and the target date now is Oct. 3, government House leader McIlraith told the Commons Monday.

HEAD INJURIES CAUSED DEATH OF SEAMAN

Either of two head injuries could have caused the death of a sailor in an aircraft at Pat Bay Airport Monday.

This was disclosed Tuesday night at an inquest into the death of LS Roy Masales, 24, of Halifax.

He died when a fire extinguisher he was holding suddenly discharged carbon dioxide under 2,000 pounds pressure.

It is still not clear whether he was knocked off his feet or whether the extinguisher hit him after the sudden release of pressure.

But the medical evidence showed he suffered a brain hemmorhage and a skull fracture. He apparently died instantly.

SPARKED BY ARCTIC OIL SEARCH

Indians Claiming Land

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (CP)—Alaskan Indians, invoking an act passed by congress in 1884, are claiming title to 9,000 square miles of land in the Yukon Territory, a spokesman said today.

The claim is part of a request for title to 38,000 square miles of land in the upper Yukon and Porcupine River country of Alaska and the Yukon, Ernest Black, manager of the U.S. land management bureau at Fairbanks, said in an interview Monday.

The claim, filed early in June by the village of Chalkyitski, 50 miles east of Fort Yukon, Alaska, includes 29,000 square miles of Alaska, Mr. Black said.

The action "likely" evolved from oil exploration on the Arctic slope, 300 miles north of Fairbanks, he said.

"If oil companies should ever start pumping oil there, the Indians would like to get in on the royalties.

"Congress has been advised but it is impossible to anticipate what its reaction will be," he said.

Leonard Marchand, special assistant to Canadian Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, said that Ottawa is aware of the claim.

The claim by the Chalkyitsik Indians is based on the Aboriginal Act pwssed by congress in 1884. The act states that land which natives then used, occupied, or laid claim to, should remain for their use.

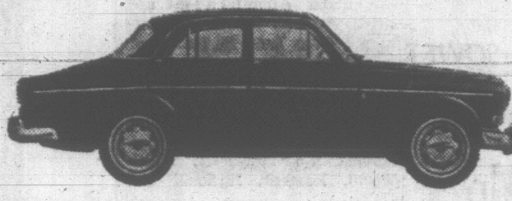
It'll last longer than the payment book



It takes about three years to go through a payment book.

It takes about eleven years to go through a Volvo.

That eleven years, incidentally, is based on the average life of a Volvo in Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime.

You may not want to keep your Volvo eleven years, but if you do, nobody will be the wiser. We don't follow the wasteful practice of making new models look different just to make old models look obsolete.

But no matter how long you keep your Volvo, you won't tire of it. A Volvo will run away from every other compact in its class, yet deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

Drive a Volvo Canadian at David Motors Ltd., And don't look at it merely as a superb automobile.

Look at it more as a way to get out from under car payments into swimming pool, boat, or cottage payments. After all, there's more to life than owning the newest car on the block. Even for us.

INTERIM ORDER KILLED

Airlines Return To Bargaining

FIFTIETH president of Lions International, Edward M. Lindsey, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., was elected at annual convention of Lions' associations in New York last week. Club is world's largest service group with 797,159 members.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators met again today in an effort to resolve the U.S. airlines strike after a dispute over a "status quo" agreement abruptly broke up talks Tuesday.

The International Association of Machinists (AFL - CIO) halted the talks and accused Northwest Airlines, one of five companies shut down by the walkout which began last Friday, of putting economic pressure on its employees living in the airline's compound in Tokyo.

Northwest agreed to kill its order requiring striking Tokyo employees to pay outstanding bills at company stores and housing facilities.

Northwest denied knowledge of any violations of the Aug. 9, 1965, union-management agreement "to keep things the way they are" pending the outcome of contract talks.

Today's meeting, sources said, will attempt to determine whether there is any basis for the union complaint and whether the Tokyo developments were local in nature or connected with the Northwest headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn.

More than 35,000 machinists walked off their jobs Friday against Northwest, Trans-World, Eastern, National and United.

The strike has halted 60 per cent of the air travel in the U.S. at a cost to the airlines and labor of an estimated $8,000,000 daily.

The strike's impact continued to grow in intensity and variation across the U.S.

Miami reported thousands of empty rooms in its oceanfront resort row with workers being laid off by the hundreds. Some hotelmen predicted a full-fledged financial crisis if the strike lasts two weeks or more.

Air freight shipments were delayed and flower lovers in New York and lobster lovers in the Midwest, South and Southwest were doing without. New York officials said the slowdown in air freight will "interfere" with production in the area's electronics manufacturing plants.

The chief dispute is over a union demand for wage increases of about 53 cents an hour over a three-year contract period.

ARMS FROM SOVIET

East Germans Building Up Defence Forces

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—East Germany's national peoples army, formed 10 years ago, has increased its air, sea and land power "enormously" since 1956, says Defence Minister Gen. Heinz Hoffman.

Since the beginning of the year, Gen. Hoffmann says, new Soviet T-55 tanks have been replacing the T-54s. The air force now has supersonic MiG all-weather fighters in the mach-2 range while the navy has eight times as many torpedo and rocket-launching speed boats as in 1957.

The fire power of the army has been increased by bigger calibre artillery and the introduction of tactical, anti-tank and other kinds of rockets.

The border guards on the Berlin wall and on the mined fences between East and West Germany were equipped with modern sub-machine-guns and "other heavy weapons" and new vehicles, signal and communications equipment.

In an article published here, Hoffmann went on to say that East Germany's armament industry was supplying small arms, vehicles, ships and communications equipment while Russia supplied "the most modern weapons."

Reports in West Germany last year estimated that the East German army came sixth, with a total manpower of 195,000, among the Communist Warsaw Pact countries. The Soviet Union topped the list, followed by Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria.

By comparison, West Germany has 438,000 men under arms in a population three times the size.

Driving Conviction

William Wilson, 2557 Macdonald, was fined $40 in traffic court Tuesday when he was convicted of careless driving.

The charge was laid after the driver was in an accident on Bay Street, May 7.

20 From Haney Institute Attending Camp

Twenty young men from Haney Correctional Institute are spending the week at Albert Head military encampment near Metchosin.

The group, known as the Blue Mountain Cadet Corps, arrived Sunday and will stay a week.

They are a regularly constituted cadet corps, under army instructors and four staff members from the institute.

The cadets are lodged in tents in the vicinity of other cadets and army personnel at Albert Head.

Director of B.C. Corrections J. S. Rocksborough-Smith said Tuesday it is the first time inmates of an adult correctional institute had attended such a camp.

The camp, under the jurisdiction of the Department of National Defence, provides young men with junior leaders' training.

Arthur Mayse

Among my favorite television spectoramas are those automobile manufacturers' commercials in which their sleek and shiny products are put through the cruellest tests that men of sadistic inclination can devise.

The cars, poor things, are racked, bounced, twisted and jolted. They crash through creeks and hurtle up near-perpendicular grades. Sometimes they course bumpity-bump along railway ties, knees churning furiously, while a reassuring voice bids us observe the level ride.

Until Ralph Nader, present scourge of a perturbed automotive industry, wrote a book grimly titled "Unsafe at Any Speed," most of us were pretty thoroughly convinced by these demonstrations.

Safety was something to be provided by the driver, through the use of his brain and the non-use of alcohol. It could be furthered by padding the instrument panel, recessing the more aggressive knobs and handles, and keeping our seat-belts snugged up.

But mechanically, the car itself was safe as research and testing could make it.

★

Not so, Mr. Nader has declared in print and before the United States Congress..

His charges have been detailed and emphatic enough to erica's industry down on his head.

However, certain facts exposed by the young crusader for safety can't be hollered down, and one of these is that the testing of an automobile does not necessarily end, as it should, on the company proving grounds.

★

The purchaser finishes the job—and there are occasions on record where it has finished him.

For the detailed story, we must turn to the sources within the industry from which Mr. Nader drew much of his damning information. These are leaflets issued by each manufacturing company to dealers who sell and service its line.

They are known as "campaign change," or, more simply, "campaign" letters. Although not meant for the public eye, they provide interesting reading.

Since a random breeze from automobile row has blown a batch of campaign letters to my desk, let us glance at a couple of these cheerily-titled bulletins.

"A few cases of interference between the hood hinge spring hook and the power brake to reservoir tank hose have been encountered . . . This could result in failure of the brakes if the hose or pipe on the reservoir tank becomes worn or damaged."

★

I don't know how many thousand cars were hauled in to correct that defect unspotted during company tests.

What concerns us is that a lot of drivers drove a lot of miles with a lurking killer.

Here's another little flaw that developed, in highway use, on other cars:

"There is a possibility," the campaign letter runs, "that the rear axle lower control arm front bracket has been improperly welded in production . . . Failure of the welds will allow the control arm bracket to break away from the rear frame extension and permit the front end of the control arm to break away and release the rear spring."

We could go on to review the lying dipstick that indicated an oil supply where there wasn't any, and the clutch pressure plate that failed, and the frolic some engine that insisted on revving up on sharp right turns, or the steering that proved erratic beyond a certain highway speed.

However, it's enough to know that, due to the frantic haste to get new models on the road, a number of potentially dangerous cars do go out to buyers each year.

I hope we'll go on bearing down on the tosspot driver. At the same time, let us not forget that an industry never notably safety-conscious owes the driver more than it seems to be giving him.

'Press Trying to Shoot Me Down with Lies!'

PHIL GAGLARDI
. . . "jump in the lake"

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

"Flying Phil" today seemed as angry at the press as Snoopy is at the "Red Barron" — claiming it was trying to shoot him down with lies.

"Flying Phil," Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi, is currently under fire for his successful campaign to add a twin-jet lear executive aircraft to the government's air squadron.

He bitterly denied reports that his department will spend $1 million converting four more Beechcraft Expediters to turbine engines this fall.

He also angrily denied that he flew to Calgary Tuesday in the six-passenger Lear just to attend the Stampede.

•

He said there are no plans "at the moment" to convert the Expediters and he flew to Calgary on business, only attending a few chuckwagon races at the stampede grounds Tuesday night.

When contacted by the Times in Vancouver this morning to check the reports, his first response was:

"You find yourself a nice large lake where you can put a 50-pound anchor around your neck and jump in!"

He simmered down only enough to deny the report his department will convert the four remaining piston driven Expediters after having successfully test a conversion to turbo-prop engines for the first in recent flights at Patricia Bay airport.

"There is absolutely no foundation to any story that the department of highways is spending $1 million for converting anything," he said.

"That's just speculation of the worst type. That's just propaganda."

He assailed the report as a newspaper plot in which "they printed things they did not check with me and they knew were not true.

"All they're trying to do is give me a lot of problems. I don't mind that but they should print the truth about me."

Mr. Gaglardi confirmed that the Beechcraft turbine conversion has been successful and that there are four more such planes in the government fleet still using piston engines.

•

He said the conversion cost "about $150,000" and had raised the aircraft's "redlined (normal top speed) to 200-miles-an-hour."

Asked its previous speed, Mr. Gaglardi said it had been 185-miles-an-hour, then quickly added the explanation for so little difference.

"It wasn't speed that we were after. It's reliability. Piston engines are on the way out."

Asked if that meant the four Beechcraft would be converted sometime in the future, Mr. Gaglardi charged the query was intended to trick him by "fishing for information.

"I've been around long enough to know that," he stormed. "You just ask the question, don't try to fish around for it.

"There are no plans on the books at this moment for converting any of them (Beechcraft)."

Asked if the stress on "at this moment" implied there would be plans in the future, Mr. Gaglardi replied:

"I don't know. I can't tell what I'll be doing 50 years from now. I'm just telling you there's nothing at this particular time."

•

Mr. Gaglardi also slammed back at reports that he could not be located Tuesday and his own staff didn't seem to know where he was because he had gone off to the Stampede in the 520-mile-an-hour jet.

(The Hotel Vancouver, where Mr. Gaglardi maintains one of his three offices, said it thought he would be there today and that's where the Times reached him.)

"You didn't have any trouble getting me, did you?" he demanded. "They (newspapermen) are just trying to make trouble for me."

"I was in Calgary yesterday but I didn't go down for the Stampede," he said.

"The reason I went there was that I was working on a bridge at McBride. (He later corrected this to identify it as the Smithers bridge project in which bids of over $500,000 were rejected recently.)

"There's a consultant firm there (in Calgary) a prefab outfit, which I asked some time ago to try to find a cheaper way for building that bridge.

•

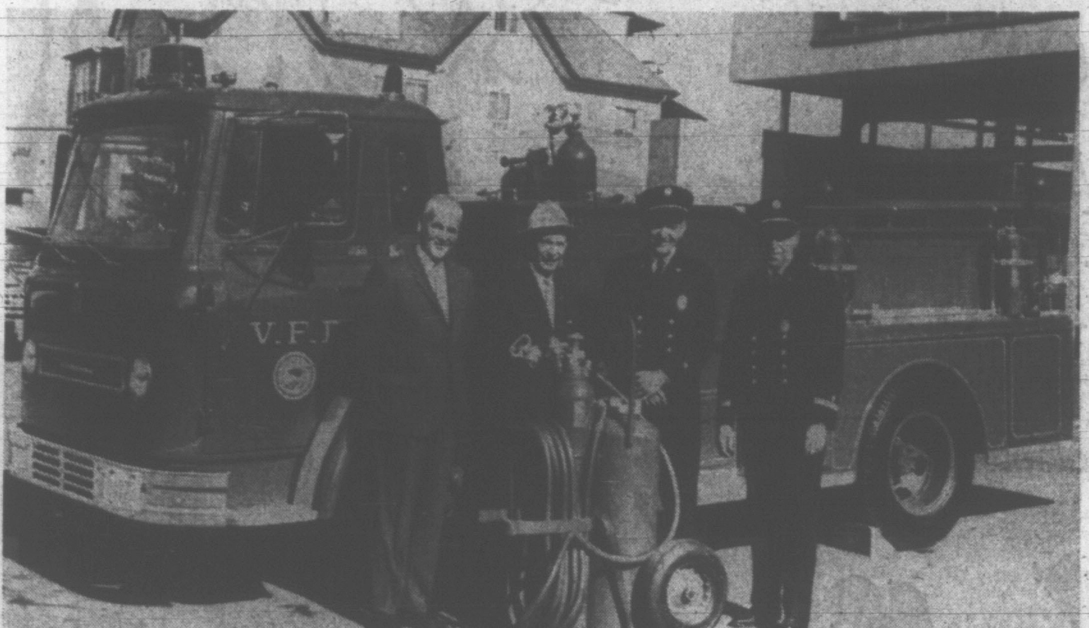
"I took Norman Lee, my consultant who designed the bridge, with me and we had a very good meeting with the prefab outfit (which he later identified as "Conforce Products" after once again charging the question was intended to trick him.)

"They came up with a design and I brought it back and Mr. Lee and his associates are studying it now."

Mr. Gaglardi said he did not know if the design would be accepted or put to tender because the study was not completed.

Asked if he did attend the Stampede during the Calgary visit, Mr. Gaglardi said:

"Yes, I was there for a while, watching the last chuckwagon races."



MAN OF MANY TALENTS is Lieut. Bob McKean, mechanic inspector for the Victoria Fire Department. At nine this morning he was honored by Mayor A. W. Toone and members of the city's fire wardens committee for his latest creative effort—a $20,000 oil fire-fighting truck. Lieut. McKean built the truck himself for $10,561, including wages. The project took him four months, with the work being done in between regular chores. Ald. Clyde Savage, Mayor Toone in the fire chief's helmet, Lieut. McKean and Acting Chief Eric Simmons pose before the custom-built beauty.

'Glad He's On Our Side'

Safe crackers are notoriously shy of publicity.

In Victoria the rule applies whether the man is a legal professional or a crook.

So when the door to the records vault at city hall defied normal opening procedures Tuesday the professional lock-puncher called in to rectify matters shied skittishly away from a Times photographer.

He got the vault door open about an hour after arriving on the scene by neatly punching the combination lock.

"A masterly job," said a veteran policeman. "Glad he's on our side."

NEW COMMANDER of the destroyer-escort Yukon is Commander S. I. Ker, 38, of Montreal. He succeeds Cmdr. Richard Carle, 39, of Victoria, who takes over as officer-in-charge of the Fleet School weapons division in Halifax. Cmdr. Ker's naval career began in 1947 when he specialized in navigation-direction. He was executive officer of the destroyer-escort Athabaskan from 1960 to 1963. Following an RN staff course, he went to headquarters in Ottawa in planning appointments. He takes over his appointment on Yukon in September.

'Holy Legislature' It's Batman for Pres

Peter Baxter, a controversial figure who now lives in Los Angles but makes periodic trips here, marched outside the Legislative Buildings today in a blue-hooded "Batman" mask.

He wore placards proclaiming "Batman Baxter for AD HOC (Viet Nam) President of the United States" and "Batman Baxter is a Nervous Nellie."

Mr. Baxter said he would stroll through the downtown areas of Victoria and all up-Island communities this week.

He said it was his method of appealing for the attention of all university graduates in B.C. in the hopes they will invite him to express his protests against the war in Viet Nam.

Mr. Baxter made the headlines three years ago when he picketed the University of B.C. announcing he would refuse to kneel as tradition prescribed when he received his degree. He did not graduate at that time.

Car Travelled Up Steep Bank

Michael Palfi, 4145 Barber, injured in a spectacular accident at midnight Monday, is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Palfi sustained chest injuries after the car he was driving went out of control on the Trans-Canada Highway near the entrance to Thetis Lake Park, ran 75 yards up a steep embankment and came to rest on its roof about 40 feet above the road.

Victim 'Armed' Argues Lawyer

Argument this morning in central court took up where the Marquis of Queensbury left off.

Speaking for a client charged with assault causing bodily harm to a one-armed man on June 12 on the Pat Bay Highway, Herbert Matthews said in effect, the complainant was "armed" with a steel device.

Mr. Matthews, lawyer for Donald Logue, 3471 Seymour, argued that where one man in a fight has a dangerous weapon (the hook on the end of an artificial arm) the other party has a right to use whatever force necessary for self-defence.

NEEDED SURGERY

William Mizewich, 64, of 285 Burnside W., had been kicked in the groin causing injury needing surgery and a week's hospitalization.

The incident occurred shortly after Mizewich had pulled out of Royal Oak cemetery in front of a truck driven by Logue.

Logue testified he pulled over to the side of the road because he was "shaken" by a near-collision.

Court was told Mizewich pulled his car up behind Logue's truck and went to the truck window.

Logue said he asked Mizewich "where did you get your licence? In a box of cracker-jack?"

A fight outside the truck ensued. Logue said Mizewich swung at him with his hook and in self-defence he kicked him.

He said after kicking him he ran back to his truck and drove away. Mizewich followed him, he said, later throwing a tire iron in the direction of his truck.

Mr. Mizewich, who lost the lower part of his forearm 30 years ago, has been loading timber for the past 23 years.

The complainant said Logue swore at him and tried to choke him.

Magistrate William Ostler reserved judgment until Tuesday.

Lighthouse keeper Ken Nelson jumped into his rubber dinghy Tuesday and saved a troller about to smash onto the rocks of Leonard Island.

The West Coast keeper managed to tow the 35-foot troller, Louisville, until a second fishboat took over the tow.

When the dinghy, powered by a 10-horsepower motor, took over the tow, the fishboat was only 100 yards from the jagged rocks west of Tofino.

The second unidentified troller towed the Louisville into Tofino for repairs to the engine.

Open Pit Mine Eyed For Sooke

By AB KENT
Business Writer

A far-reaching mineral development for the southern tip of Vancouver Island was proposed today by veteran miner Oswood G. MacDonald.

He envisages a complex of open pit mines, ore treatment mills, smelter and fertilizer plant to exploit the resources of a rich belt 35 miles long and from two to eight miles wide along Juan de Fuca Strait between Sombrio Point and East Sooke.

300 CLAIMS

His Macsan Explorations Ltd., formed in April, 1963, holds more than 300 mineral claims west of the Sooke Peninsula and straddling what is known as the Leech River fault.

According to geological consultant D. C. Malcolm, the area could support a series of open-pit mines.

Mr. MacDonald was asked what the cash from a newly authorized issue of shares would be used for.

He said work done over the past three years warrants intense diamond drilling. Fewer than 100 surface holes have been drilled to date, but all of them have intersected one or more ore-grade copper zones, according to reports.

GOOD POTENTIAL

Mr. MacDonald feels the quality of ore, the demand for metal and the seaboard location of mine sites makes the potential of this area extremely attractive.

Not worried by the high cost of setting up a smelter and such adjuncts as a fertilizer plant, Mr. MacDonald said:

"I can get the money once I've proved there's ore."

He said the mineralization includes nickel, cobalt, iron, palladium and gold, besides copper.

B.C. Securities Commission has approved the issue of 300,000 additional shares at 60 cents each to realize $180,000, of which $30,000 would go to Mr. MacDonald for exploration work he has already done; to further prospecting, trench sampling, assaying, surveying, diamond drilling, engineering, mapping and administration, leaving $30,000 for unexpected costs or capital spending.

The recommendations are concurred in by Mr. Malcolm.

SEVERAL ORE BODIES

Mr. Malcolm, reporting April 29, 1966, said there are several large, low-grade copper ore bodies, one averaging .26 per cent.

Mr. MacDonald, president of Cowichan Copper Ltd., whose mine is at Jordan River, is credited with salvaging the Sunro Mine after a disastrous flood 2½ years ago.

NEW CAR FOR MAYOR

Victoria's Mayor A. W. Toone will soon be riding in the city's new prestige car—a $3,939 Buick.

At this morning's meeting of the police commission it was agreed to place the order for the car immediately.

MOTHER WON'T LEAVE . . . ALIVE

Tubby, Sightless and Lovable

By GLEN ALLEN

There are five of them and right now they are fat and sightless and look a little like rats.

They are just a couple of nights and mornings into a world that has already abandoned them.

Born Monday to a three-year-old black and nameless and gentle mongrel, the five most recent members of the Greater Victoria SPCA community will be all right for a while.

"We'll raise them and wean them" said Wes Desjardins, acting manager of the society. "And since they are young and lovable they will probably find homes."

★

Their mother, a black, part cocker, part border collie will be one of the animals—there are seagulls, sometimes alligators, snakes, cats and dogs—that won't leave alive.

Along with about half the population of the dog compound at the building on Napier Lane, she will be electrocuted.

The mother had been found at large and impounded.

"Many of the older ones can't be adopted," said Mr. Desjardins. "They get set in their ways, and don't take to new families.

★

"We keep them as long as we have room."

Mr. Desjardins, a retired warrant officer who keeps orphaned fawns and ducks at his Saanich home and brings his dog Teddy to the office with him says that last and final resort is often less cruel than the life that led up to it.

Nameless Mongrel Guards Her Pups

"People aren't pointedly cruel to their animals, they just neglect them."

If dog is man's best friend, man doesn't always return the friendship.

"For instance," he said, "people go away on holiday and all of a sudden want to get rid of their pet. They take it up on the Malahat somewhere and leave it.

"Many of the animals we have," he said during a tour of the pens and cages full of affectionate dogs, "have been with one family all their life."

He said another frequent and heartless act is the abandoning of day-old kittens at the front door of the shelter.

"They're left overnight in the cold. Of course they have to be destroyed in the morning.

★

"We can't feed them."

The society handles pound duties for Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Foundling or captured animals are kept four days in the pound and then put up for adoption.

The pound and residential areas are kept clean, the floors are heated in winter and the animals are fed a specially prepared (and expensive) formula food.

The SPCA is financed by municipal grants, legacies, donations and the Community Chest.

But no matter how good the care, how fine the fare, or how desperately or how long Mr. Desjardins tries to keep the dogs and the cats and the birds and the alligator—they look lost.

CONVENTION TOLD:

Share Responsibility As Well as Equality

In England when a marriage is dissolved, the man, "if he is incapacitated, can go to a magistrate and gain an order requiring the woman, if she is fully capable of earning, to pay for his maintenance."

The statement by Lady Littlewood brought a few groans Tuesday from delegates attending the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. "Well," returned the speaker, "if you expect to have equal rights with men, you should be prepared to accept equal responsibilities!"

Speaking to the 20th Biennial convention of the CFBPWC at a banquet in the Empress Hotel ballroom, Lady Littlewood, president of the International Federation of BPCW, was also discussing the political rights of women. "In Canada . . . women have equal political rights in provincial and federal governments . . . economic rights and opportunities.

"In a number of places . . . women aren't given equal status. Some women, however, have taken chances and opportunities into both hands. In England, there is a woman high-court judge; India has a woman prime minister.

"But there are only one or two women at the top. I'm looking forward to the day when it's not news for women to get to the top; I'd like to see it expected."

Lady Littlewood stressed the importance of education for women today. She commended the Canadian Federation for their work with Ramallah, a college for training refugee girls, and expressed hope the project would continue because of the number of refugee girls needing training. She also mentioned training and retraining of women who have raised their families and who are looking for employment. The marriage age seems to be decreasing, she said, and women, who have raised families are eager to return to work.

"The BPWC should encourage these women to come back." She also mentioned that the organization should urge the government to provide a retraining program for these people.

Membership, said Lady Littlewood, was an important factor in the organization and said that with a greater membership, they would be able to speak for business and professional women all over the world, and therefore give encouragement to these women.

"We are all citizens of the world," said Lady Littlewood. "It is important for us all to make . . . contributions to our communities. We can do this through our club."

The clubs also "enable women of one country to help those of other countries," she said. "It makes the world a little better place, and I believe a more peaceful place."

Lady Littlewood was introduced by vice-president Miss Lucy Milne and thanked by the president of the Nova Scotia BPW Clubs, Miss Margaret Fitzgerald.

The unique necklace worn by Lady Littlewood is really her badge of office. Each of the small coins is engraved with the names of the past presidents of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, including one from Canada.

Of Personal Interest

ENTERTAIN

His honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will entertain delegates and observers of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at tea Thursday afternoon at Government House.

Women

Women's Editor Pat Dufour

International Head at Biennial

Though both are lawyers, "my husband and I don't practice together," says Lady Littlewood. "On occasions we have appeared against each other," as representing claimant and defendant, "and on the first occasion I was the successful one!"

Lady Littlewood, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is here from England to attend the 20th Biennial Convention, Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Her remarks seem typical of this highly successful and humorous business woman.

Lady Littlewood studied law on the suggestion of her husband and now the whole family has entered the profession, including son Paul.

Her husband has supported her work, which she has practised continuously since passing her final examinations in 1935, and she doesn't believe her son was wrongly affected by having a "working mother." Lady Littlewood considers herself fortunate to have obtained a firstclass "nanny" and feels that her work made her a better and more interesting mother because she'd broadened her world by working. She does believe, however, that if a woman cannot arrange for good care for her child and cannot arrange her life so that she can spend time with him in his formative years, her place is at home.

Much of the visitor's work deals with matrimonial problems—she is a member of a marriage guidance council. Unlike some, she doesn't believe that an unhappy and incompatible couple should remain together for the sake of their children—she feels that sometimes it does more harm than good.

She also presents the belief that perhaps society's attitude toward broken homes may cause as much unhappiness for children as much as the breakup of the marriage itself.

Regarding her position as head of the International BPW, Lady Littlewood considers it a job to be done, rather than a round of social engagements. She would like to see the federation taking a bigger role in world affairs; to see the national federations strengthened and all recognized in their own countries as the official voice of business and professional women and matters concerning them; and also that women demanding equal rights with men, recognize and share responsibilities.

GOVERNMENT ACTION TO BE ASKED

Labor Study, Prison Program Figure in BPW Resolutions

Requests for a new correctional plan for female prisoners in federal institutions and for a motivational study of Canadian women who enter the labor force were the outcome of resolutions passed Monday and Tuesday at the 20th biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club's.

The organization will petition the federal government for action on the resolutions, both submitted by Toronto delegates, and which were among 11 resolutions passed before the assembled group at the Empress Hotel.

The resolution for a correctional plan stated that since "most female offenders . . . are not involved in organized crime, but in crimes rooted in inadequacy, self-destruction, prostitution, alcoholism and drug addiction" their requirements are different from those of men offenders.

The correctional plan suggested in the resolution would be based on a study of the needs of female prisoners "with a view to their successful rehabilitation on release."

The request for the labor study to be made by the Economic Council of Canada, is based on the proposed goal of one million women being integrated into the national labor force by 1970, and is aimed with a view to suggesting changes in social, educational and industrial policies to encourage women to develop their potential to the full.

Requests for a conselling service for middle-aged women entering, or re-entering, the labor force; ballot boxes in hospitals and nursing homes at federal elections; revision of the Canada Pension Plan to allow for "employment of a person by his spouse," and partial benefit of Pension Plan contributions to a dependant on the contributor's death, were other resolutions passed at the convention.

Also resolved were requests for changes in the federal Estate Tax Act, and an increase in basic income tax exemptions for single persons, both male and female.

This year's summer sessions at the University of Victoria will have an "international" aspect as faculty members gather from as far away as England and Hawaii to take part in the summer educational program. Tuesday, the visiting faculty and their wives were entertained at a reception in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel by University president Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor and acting director, Dean R. T. Wallace. Among the visitors who attended the affair were, left to right, Mrs. Larry Bakke and Mr. Bakke of Syracuse, N.Y.; Miss Jane Cowell of London, England; Mr. and Mrs. John Clayton of Boston, Mass.; and Mr. Charles Higa, Honolulu, Hawaii.

DEAR ABBY . . .

These Guests No Longer Welcome

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We recently had house guests from out of town who came here looking for a house to buy. They were not close friends. In fact they invited themselves. We had just bought our own home, so our guests asked us how much we paid for it. Since they were in the market for one, we told them.

When a realtor came to our house to get our guests and show them what he had lined up for them, Mrs. X asked the realtor (a stranger to us) to appraise our newly purchased home. I was appalled, and the realtor was as embarrassed as I was, but Mrs. X pursued the questioning with, "Oh, come on, they told us what they paid for it, I just want to know what you think it's worth." How would you have handled this?

ON THE SPOT.

DEAR ON: I would quickly have put the realtor at ease by announcing the price of the house. Then I would have hoped that the realtor would reciprocate and find the house-hunters a nice house, as far away from mine as possible.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a soldier who is in Korea. He will be there for another 10 months. I am only 19 and when I see all my friends out having a good time I am sorry I accepted his ring before he left. I realize now it was a mistake getting engaged so young, but at the time I wouldn't listen to anybody.

I write to my fiance every day, and he writes to me, too, but that doesn't satisfy me. Would it be wrong for me to accept dates just for fun? I wouldn't get real serious with anyone else, because I think I really love my fiance. But a girl gets awfully bored sitting home every night.

BORED.

DEAR BORED: When you became officially engaged, you gave up the right to date others, for "fun" or other reasons. I agree, you were probably too hasty, but a promise is a promise. Make the best of it (alone) until your Johnny comes marching home.

DEAR ABBY: When that kid wrote in and asked you who should take a boy to the barber shop, his mother or his father, and you said, "His father," I nearly fainted!

Abby, Saturday is the only day most fathers can get to the barber shop; mothers can go any time.

If the boys are pre-school age, let mother take them during the week. If they're in school, let them go after school, alone. But for crying out loud, don't clutter up the barber shops on Saturdays with fathers and sons. You can sign this,

"SOLLY": CHAIRMAN OF THE SAVE-SATURDAYS-FOR-THE-MEN MOVEMENT IN BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF., or "A BARBER."

Confidential to "Second Fiddle": Don't be childish. Tell him to put the lovely diamond in another setting. It takes a lot of lettuce to replace two carats.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Place for Extra Pounds Waist Provides Favorite

Lowman

Most women, even those who are the correct weight, have at least one measurement which is out of proportion and many have more than one. Suppose that you had a fairy godmother or an Aladdin's lamp and could make one wish only, so far as your silhouette is concerned. What would you wish for? If you were wise, you would ask for a slim waist.

If you have a slim waist, you can carry a few extra inches in the hipline and still appear slender. Of course lax abdominal muscles help thicken the waistline.

The waist seems to be a favorite meeting place for extra pounds from middle age on, and sometimes sooner. What these pounds chat about I can't imagine, but I am sure that their selection of a spot to land on is not beneficial to us.

Use the following exercise as a weapon with which to banish them.

Stand erect with good posture (abdomen in, hips tucked under, chin parallel to the floor and spine straight). Now raise your right arm forward-upward as you raise your left leg up and back. Feel the stretch. Return to position. This time raise your left arm forward-upward as you lift your right leg back and up. Return to position. Continue, alternating.

This is the second part of this exercise. Take starting position. Raise your right arm back and up as you raise your left leg forward-up. Return to position. Now raise your left arm back and up as you lift your right leg forward-upward. Return to position. Continue, alternating. Keep knees stiff throughout the exercises.

These two exercises will help flatten the abdomen and slim the waist.

If you would like to have my "Isometric Exercises" which I selected especially for women, you may want that booklet. If so send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Belles Rebel Over Fashion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There are buzzings of a mini-skirt rebellion among owners of the world's loveliest legs.

Most of the 57 girls vying for the Miss Universe crown put their foot down on the short, short skirt. Some stand up for it. Still others skirt the issue.

The skirts came in for discussion during rehearsal breaks for Wednesday night's semi-finals of the beauty contest. The finals are Saturday night.

Carol Whiteman of Britain, a country where the well-above-the-knee skirt is riding high, said she has one but can't decide whether to wear it.

"I am tiny and it would make me look tinier," said the five-foot-three supermarket clerk from Southampton.

"You have to be careful how to sit down," commented Miss Chile, Stella Dunhage, a 20-year-old daughter of British parents. The blue-eyed honey blonde added: "It (the mini-skirt) is anti-esthetic. You look too short on top, and below that you look short, and then there are long legs."

Miss Korea, Yoon Quee-young, opined: "It is not so good." She wouldn't say why, just giggled.

Miss Guyana, Umbeia Van Sluytman, commented: "It looks lovely on girls who have long legs, but not short girls."

One of the longest legged, five-foot-nine Lynn Carol de Jager of South Africa, voted yes: "If it's new, I'll like it. Anything comfortable."

Canada's representative in the contest is Marjorie Schofield, 18, of Burlington, Ont., runner-up to Miss Dominion of Canada, Diane Coulter, 18, who became ill in Grand Falls, N.B., while attending a potato festival.

Mirror on the Wall— Is Fairer Than All!

By Penny Saver

Perhaps the first mirrors in existence, or reflectors, at any rate, were crystal-clear pools of water. Pity the fur-clad cave princess who, after ordering her servant to bring her mirror, spilled a drop, thus bringing the poor princess seven years bad luck! Then there was, of course, the ingenious mind that thought to polish metal to such a brilliance that this was used as a looking glass to preserve the vanity of maidens. Yesterday, the conventional square, round or oblong mirror took its stand.

It is the mirror of today that has taken "shape" to reflect a note of modern decor to your home. These mirrors are a far cry from the usual mirror design. Some begin with the oblong look with almost squared corners to give the sleek look of today.

These have teak frames. Some even have little shelves under them for personal items. Princes range from $18 to $30.

A novel gift idea for the July bride on your list is a set of stainless steel knives. These are available with teak or rosewood handles. The dual-purpose knives have a razor-sharp cutting edge on one side, ideal for steaks, and the other edge is for buttering bread. Individually, they sell for $2.20. A set of five is priced at $10, placed in an attractive, easy-to-wrap box. You can purchase these in larger sets too, if you wish.

An ideal item for patio fun, especially when the lights are dim, is a patio torch. The flambeaux stand six feet tall to enhance your "outdoor living room." The brass-finish bowl has a chrome top and a snuffer attached to a chain so that it can't be misplaced. Selling for $2.98, these are bug-repellent torches to make patio evenings so much more enjoyable.

Brighten your home with these items. Give Penny a call at 382-3131. She'll tell you where she shopped.

MUST "RE-BUILD"

Adjustment Proves Hard

CALGARY (CP) — When a woman is released from jail a "type of rebuilding process" is necessary before she can successfully join society, says Don Maeers.

"Women often have a low opinion of themselves if they have been convicted of a criminal offence," says Mr. Maeers, executive secretary of the John Howard Society here. "They feel others regard them as second-class."

Female offenders often locked themselves in a room and stayed there after their release from jail because they were not willing to meet people.

"In many cases family relationships have been severed. It is difficult for them to function without assistance so they often re-enter a life of criminal activity."

Such women are not accepted in the community as readily as former male prisoners, Mr. Maeers says.

The John Howard Society tried to help former women prisoners as quickly as possible because "they find it difficult to survive."

Set Date

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Blake, 821 Craigflower Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Barbara Ann, to Mr. Charles Bernard Lahey, son of Mrs. Catherine Lahey, Penticton. HAWAIIAN FRUIT SALAD . . . . . . HAS TOUCH OF EXOTIC

Boy voyage anyone? This pineapple shell boat with fruit aboard, the pick of the season's finest, makes an elegant luncheon dish for a farewell meal or an unusual fruit salad for the stay-at-homes. Spicy dressing accents the sweetness of the fruits.

This is the time of year when wanderlust hits hard. It seems everybody we know is off on a trip, just back from one, or planning one.

For the "Stay-at-home Club" we suggest a luncheon salad which is, if not a trip to Hawaii, at least a pretty good substitute.

As exotic as the Islands themselves, this pineapple shell fruit boat has as passengers an elegant combination of the season's finest fruits.

Strawberries, orange sections, seedless grapes, bananas and fresh pineapple form an exotic mold. They're topped by a sophisticated garnish of cream cheese balls which have been rolled in chopped nuts.

The lively French dressing is extra good with fruit flavors and adds a note of spicy interest to the sweet fruit flavors.

HAWAIIAN FRUIT BOAT

Three fresh pineapples, cut in half lengthwise, 1 cup seedless grapes, halved; 1 cup strawberries, halved; 2 bananas, sliced; 1 cup orange sections; cream cheese; French dressing.

Remove the fruit from the pineapple halves, leaving a one-inch shell. Discard the core and cut the fruit into cubes. Toss pineapple with remaining fruit and fill shell. Garnish with cream cheese formed into small balls and rolled in nuts. Serve with dressing.

Seafood never seems, somehow, to taste as good away from the roar of the ocean. But Digby Devilled Seafood is a dish which bring the tang of the ocean to land-locked dwellers.

DIGBY DEVILLED SEAFOOD

One and one-half cups (6½ ounce tin) crabmeat, 1 cup (4½-ounce tin) small shrimp, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 cup chopped celery, ½ cup chopped green pepper, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Combine all ingredients except crumbs and margarine; place in four individual seafood shells or a 6-cup casserole. Sprinkle with crumbs sauteed in butter or margarine. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate) for 30 minutes. Serves four.

From England

Guests in the Vista Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Jarvis are Mr. and Mrs. George Rowarth. The couple will stay in Victoria for a few days and then travel to Vancouver to visit with their son before returning to their home in Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, England.

Realize $68

The sum of $68.85 was realized Saturday when the HMS Ganges Chapter, IODE, held a bake sale in the Shell Service showroom, Ganges. Regent Mrs. F. K. Parker was in charge of the event.

EXCITEMENT MOUNTS

WASHINGTON (CP)—Washington is working steadily toward the appropriate emotional pitch for the first White House wedding in 52 years.

Daily snippets of information are building up a picture of the events to reach a climax at noon Aug. 6 when Luci Baines Johnson, 19, walks down the aisle on the arm of her president-father to be wedded with John Patrick Nugent, 23.

Seven hundred guests—for the wedding mass and for the White House reception—have been invited.

Identity of those invited is a well-guarded secret but undoubtedly Texas and Illinois, home states of the bride and groom respectively, will be well represented. The invitations are for personal friends only.

IN QUEBEC

Boundary Feud Holds Up Hydro

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's refusal to recognize the Quebec-Newfoundland border may force the former into spending $200,000,000 prematurely, top Hydro-Quebec officials say.

Two men, Michel Kazanovitch and Rene Levasseur, were interviewed separately Monday and Tuesday during a visit to Quebec's gigantic hydro-electric project on the Manicouagan and Ugardes rivers in northern Quebec.

Mr. Kazanovitch, who co-ordinated building of the project's Manic 2 dam, costing slightly more than $150,000,000, said that if agreement is not reached soon on the proposed Churchill Falls project in Labrador, Quebec will be forced to accelerate its hydro projects.

"An agreement to develop Churchill Falls must be signed by September and the work begun there immediately because there will be a hole in Quebec's electricity-producing system by 1971 or 1972 and some way of filling that hole must be found."

In its long - range planning, Hydro-Quebec had thought the "hole" would be filled with power from Churchill Falls, having a capacity of 9,000,000 horsepower.

MUST FILL GAP

Mr. Levasseur, co-ordinator for the still uncompleted Manic 5 project, said the province will have to turn to the projected Manic 3 scheme to fill the gap.

"The putting into operation of the Manic 3 scheme is therefore dependent on Churchill Falls," said Mr. Levasseur, whose Manic 5 project will cost $500,000,000.

Mr. Kazanovitch felt negotiations, to set the Churchill project in motion now involve politics rather deeply and that economic issues are not the only ones at stake.

Churchill Falls would be put into operation by the British Newfoundland Corp., and the Newfoundland government. However, before beginning the project, markets such as Quebec and the United States, must be assured.

One of the difficulties Mr. Kazanovitch saw in the negotiations for marketing the power by the provincially-owned Hydro-Quebec was that "signing of such an agreement implies approval of the present Labrador boundary between Quebec and Newfoundland."

Such an agreement would be directly contrary to the Union Nationale's policy on Labrador. In their campaign in the June 5 Quebec election, the Union Nationale promised it would not recognize the present boundary and would try to get this area for Quebec.

WATER SYSTEM TAKEOVER LIKELY

The administration of Sidney's water supply may be taken over by the village.

F. S. B. Heward, chairman of the Sidney waterworks board, said the board agrees with the idea in principle.

"But there are quite a few technicalities involved before a turnover could be completed," he said. "The matfer has to be studied first."

The proposal was made by the municipal affairs department.

Sidney council has indicated it is prepared to take over.

Post Office Gets Support

LAKE COWICHAN—The village is likely to get a new post office building on the main street opposite city hall.

Council was advised Tuesday by the federal department of works authority is required from Ottawa before work can start on the new building.

The present leased premises are inadequate.

Mrs. Mildred Child, chairman of the Village Commission, confirmed members' support of the new site.

New Laws for Space To Avoid 'Planetics'

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States Tuesday proposed new laws to regulate space exploration which would avoid "the old political problems of our planet."

Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said it is not too much to hope the space age would evolve in an environment of peace, law and co-operation.

He was addressing the opening session of the UN's legal subcommittee on the peaceful uses of outer space, meeting here to consider U.S. and Soviet draft treaties governing space exploration.

Goldberg said that although the U.S. and Soviet drafts are different in scope, they should be reconcilable to a large degree if there is good will and common purpose to reach agreement.

Both treaties say planets should be free for exploration and use by all states; no state should be able to appropriate a planet by claiming sovereignty or by use of occupation or other means.

MILITARY BASES

The U.S. draft would permit military establishments on planets for scientific research or other peaceful purposes.

The U.S. draft also orders states to report to the UN secretary - general about their planetary activities and provides for disputes to be referred to the International Court of Justice.

The Soviet draft includes an article on legal liability for damage caused to another state by objects launched into space, and for the return of astronauts who land in the wrong country by mistake.

Cement Dropper Said 'Immature'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (Reuters)—A lawyer said today a 17-year-old youth dropped a block of concrete on The Queen's car here last week "to draw attention to himself and to his own private and immature opinions."

The boy was not a member of any illegal organization, lawyer John Toner told a court.

The youth, John Francis Morgan, an apprentice plumber, was ordered held in custody until July 25 on a charge of throwing the concrete block from a building with intent to injure The Queen. The charge was laid under the Treason Act.

Death Just a Tree Away

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Logging is the most dangerous occupation in B.C.

For the 22,000 men who cut and haul trees from the forests, death and injury may be only a step away.

This was pointed up sharply when two men were killed and a third severely injured on Vancouver Island last Friday and Monday.

The cold figures from the Workmen's Compensation Board for 1965 tell just how dangerous the work is.

Logging led all occupations in numbers killed, injured, and permanently disabled, costs of accident claims, working days lost, wages lost and time-loss injuries.

The figures: killed, 49; permanently disabled, 224; total deaths and injuries, 8,504; time-loss cases, 3,792; cost of accident claims, $5.4 million; wages lost, $3.5 million; working days lost, 197,026.

●

Andy Smith, regional safety officer for the International Woodworkers of America, described the human loss this way in a recent article in the Western Canadian Lumber Worker:

"The pain and suffering of these thousands of workers cannot be evaluated.

"A worker's ambition to own his own home, provide advantages for his children, indulge in pleasures and hobbies and live comfortably after his working life is over, depend on his ability to earn a good living

"Injuries impair his ability to buy, to enjoy, and to save by about $5 million annually.

"Death or a crippling injury alters the entire life of a family, whether the worker is in an accident on the job or drowns while on a fishing trip.

●

"Sorrow, despair, insecurity, a lower standard of living, hardships and even separation of a family follow the death of the wage earner.

"Payment of compensation and medical expenses help to alleviate the plight of the family in the case of a serious occupational injury or death.

"Such payments for the most part are a poor substitute for the prevention of an accident. Compensation provides temporary financial relief but does not solve major problems created by the death of a wage earner."

If the picture looks black, spokesmen for all sides agree it is much better than in years gone by.

A spolesman for the Workmen's Compensation Board said the number of loggers killed in the 1920s and 1930s was double the number that die today.

Industry and the IWA, with the WCB, work together, to instill safety through educational campaigns.

The biggest corrective measure is educational, said W. M. Allison, senior safety officer at the accident control division of the Council of Forest Industries.

"The Workmen's Compensation Board rules have to be enforced, and generally speaking they are," he added.

The WCB rule book, Accident Prevention Regulations, devotes 12 pages to logging. Only the handling of explosives rates more space—one more page.

●

Spokesmen for both sides point out that logging takes place under naturally hazardous conditions.

Men are often working on steep slopes, in inclement weather, where a falling rock can kill a man or move a log.

"There is more potential here for accidents than in operating a telephone," remarked one person.

The human element is part of the picture.

Said Mr. Smith: "Safety committee men must be just as ready to insist on the observance of safety rules and safe procedures by members as to insist on the correction of unsafe conditions."

Union efforts, he said, must be directed at both a safe environment and learning to work safely in that environment.

Mr. Allison said he has a staff of eight working to reduce accidents. Educational campaigns are carried on all the time.

●

"We have training courses in safety procedures. They are usually held at the camps."

Mr. Smith said the accident figures in logging are "frightening" and this is largely attributable to boom conditions.

"Many skilled people are seeking work elsewhere. Many inexperienced people are going into the woods.

"They are not paying as strict attention as they could. There is a larger work force now. The tempos is speeded up. There is a tendency to be a little lax."

He called the safety programs one of the best on the continent.

"But we have this problem—it is the most hazardous industry in North America."

'No Fighting By Councils If Merged'

NORTH COWICHAN — Coun. John Cannon thinks the municipality of North Cowichan and the city of Duncan should be one unit.

But he isn't trying to bring it about at the local level.

Coun. Cannon said he is hoping to persuade the Union of B.C. Municipalities in September that a general program of amalgamations is a good thing.

His resolution for the convention at Penticton has the support of North Cowichan council.

It calls on the provincial government to set up an independent commission to study the question.

NO ONE TO FIGHT

On the local situation, Mr. Cannon says: "The best way is to dispose of one of the councils and then there would be ono one for the other to fight with."

Mr. Cannon said: "North Cowichan and Duncan have never really got along. This has been the history of these two councils."

And Mr. Cannon knows the extent of co-operation today.

He is a member of a joint committee examing the question of a joint water board.

It has been in existence almost a year and is getting nowhere, he said.

Mr. Cannon says he has been thinking of a program of amalgamation "because we have too many governments in Canada."

He said it appears to him the only field in which economy can be practiced is in municipal government.

A commission could recommend where amalgamations could best serve the residents.

Mr. Cannon said setting up a commission would take this controversial issue out of the realm of local politics.

He said: "Amalgamation will come eventually but the sooner the better for everyone concerned.

"Its chief advantages are joint development of services such as water and recreation facilities. There would be no overlapping."

Mr. Cannon will be taking holiday leave from his job as a steam engineer to press his resolution at the convention.

He says: "It remains to be seen what support I will get."

'ONE BAD EXPERIENCE'

Duncan Hesitates On Apartment Bid

DUNCAN—George Schmidt said that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation feels there is a definite need in Duncan for apartments.

He said the corporation looked favorably on financial applications regarding the building of apartments.

Mr. Schmidt, a principal in Sands Construction Ltd. has asked city council to rezone Beech Avenue property for apartment use.

His firm plans a 34-suite apartment block of three storeys including an indoor swimming pool.

Ald. Barney Cocks said: "I feel an apartment would be attractive on that site but we have had one bad experience with a promoter and there should be a firm commitment.

"We don't want to rezone the property and then have it used for some other purpose."

Ald. Cocks' reference was to a building permit issued in November for a Trunk Road shopping complex which has still not been started.

Mr. Schmidt said: "We hope to start work this winter or as soon as the tight money situation eases."

Ald. Tommy Kilpatrick said the Advisory Planning Commission is against apartments in this residential zone.

Ald. James Saunders said it was not first-class residential and an apartment would be the best use of the property.

A decision was deferred to committee.

HOTEL CHAIN BANKRUPT

NANAIMO—The company which owns the Malaspina Hotel has gone bankrupt and the 38-year-old waterfront landmark is up for sale.

Elgin Investments Ltd., announced it has gone into bankruptcy along with the Malaspina, owned by a subsidiary company, and two hotels on Grand Cayman in the West Indies owned directly by Elgin.

Other hotels in the same chain in Kimberley and Prince George are also up for sale.

The Malaspina was built in 1928 as a community project of several Nanaimo businessmen. It was purchased by the present chain in 1962.

Reeve Supports Objection

MAPLE BAY — Local residents' objections to a B.C. Hydro proposal to lay power lines across their property have the support of Reeve Donald Morton of North Cowichan.

Reeve Morton Tuesday wrote to Lon Chaney, superintendent of land appropriation, asking him to call a public meeting to explain Hydro plans.

The reeve said he has received strong protests from landowners about the laying of high voltage lines across their property.

George Whittaker, a Maple Bay resident and municipal councillor, said the Hydro plan is unnecessary.

He said: "The Hydro authority already has two easements across North Cowichan land and either of them could be utilized."

The new line is to carry power coming by submarine cable from the mainland to a new convertor station presently under construction

Lake Cowichan Eyes Fire Plan

LAKE COWICHAN — Village council Tuesday decided to get more information from the provincial fire marshal's office on the fire defence plan under which municipalities buying major fire fighting equipment would be assisted with grants.

Fire chief Bob Weismiller said his volunteer members agree the village should join the new plan.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

The Jacobys discuss the problem of responding with a bad hand.

Oswald: "Expert bidding does not always lead to the best contract. When you respond with a bad hand you risk ending up wishing you had passed. Furthermore, once you start with an unsound response you may find yourself trapped into making a second bid."

Opening lead—♥K

Jim: "If North merely rebids two clubs South will pass and his spade response will have paid off. Against the normal lead of the king of hearts North will make two clubs."

Oswald: "You may wonder why South found a second spade bid after North's jump in clubs. The answer is that the jump to three clubs was forcing and South hoped that it might well be preliminary to a spade raise."

Jim: "North would have made the same three club bid with ace and two small spades and a singleton heart. In that case game in spades would be a cinch."

Oswald: "South knew he was in trouble when North went to three no-trump but South wasn't going any further. At least, no one had doubled."

Jim: "Excellent defence set North four tricks. East opened the king of hearts. North ducked a couple of heart leads, then he played ace-king and a small diamond. East cashed his fourth heart and led his queen of spades. Dummy's king was covered by West's ace and North's jack dropped. Later East got in with a diamond and led another spade so the defence held poor North to his three aces and two kings."

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Remember Don Ameche? The inventor of the movie telephone, something he has never been able to live down, used to emcee a highly-successful circus series, International Showtime.

Stephen

The series carried on from circus to circus around the globe, dishing up a very palatable piece of entertainment, week after week.

It was good television fare with a definite family appeal. Any imitators were sure to fail. And fail CBS-TV's Hippodrome did in its initial appearance.

The made-in-Britain product is a comedy-variety-circus series taped in England, replacing Red Skelton for the summer.

Presumably the show is geared to appeal to the family but someone should have told comedian Jack Carter. A strong, standup comedian, on this occasion he chose to deliver borderline gags which, fine before a highly-sauced night club audience, offended because of the presence in the den of tiny tots enamored by the show's dazzling color.

Another drawback was that the performers, Jane Morgan, Gerry and the Pacemakers and Carter himself had to work in the round.

They worked to the cameras and the void without playing to the people around them, which meant of course that the British audience had the artists performing away from them. An uncomfortable feeling for them and those at home. It was unnatural.

The saving grace was the color, though even this was not helped much by the erratic hue transmission of Channel 12, Bellingham. The American station seems to have trouble sending out a strong, steady color signal.

Even with the color, Hippodrome pales by comparison with forerunners in the television circus presentation, of which International Showtime was the prime and excellent example.

TIDBITS: The highlights of the Calgary Stampede parade will be seen twice on Channel 6 Thursday.

The first showing of the highlights will replace Lloyd Thaxton (it's about time) at 5 p.m. They will be repeated at 11:30 p.m. following the news . . . CBC-TV will introduce an eight-part public affairs series July 20 to help Canadians better understand what makes their French-Canadian friends tick.

PROFESSORS PETER, SKELTON SHARE DUTIES

LITTLE MONEY, MANY CONTACTS

'Big Ambitions' Launch New Quarterly Magazine

By DESMOND BILL

Two University of Victoria professors with large ambitions and a small bankroll are preparing the first issues of a new magazine aimed at an international audience.

Robin Skelton, bearded, English-born poet, and John Peter, smooth South African-born novelist, have something that is just as important as money, however.

Between them they seem to have at least nodding acquaintance with the best known contemporary writers in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Partly as a result, the list of contributors to the first four issues of The Malahat Review, as the magazine will be called, reads like an international Who's-Who of literature.

20 LETTERS

The first few issues will feature 20 hitherto unpublished letters of D. H. Lawrence, work sheets showing the progressive drafts of some of John Betjeman's poems, a memoir of Miro in New York illustrated by the Spanish painter's own prints, and exclusive photographs of the most recent sculpture of Henry Moore.

They will also include previously unpublished poems of 19th century poet John Clare, a previously un-translated essay on Cervantes by Miguel Unamuno, critical essays by such contributors as Bonamy Dobree, George Woodcock and G. Wilson Knight, work sheets of poems by Irving Layton and Irish poet Thomas Kinsella, an illustrated article on Pop art by Allan Kaprow, originator of the Happening, and a Strindberg play translated into English for the first time.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Other contributions will be as varied as the The True Story of Billy Buckles, sections of a Central African Journal by Paul Theroux, a translation of a radio play by German writer Gunther Eich, poems by Kingsley Amis, translations of poetry from Germany, Mexico and the Phillipines, and short stories from Germany and Yugoslavia, among other countries.

Nothing appearing in The Malahat Review will have been previously published in English and the two editors prefer to print original documents rather than critical commentary. The exceptions are made only for "big-name" critics such as Knight, Dobree and Woodcock.

As Professor Skelton says, "This will not be a place where academics will come together and publish each other's work."

Nothing will go into the quarterly unless both editors approve unless, as hasn't happened so far, one feels so strongly about a contribution that he feels it must go in.

All the material scheduled to go in the first year's four issues has been asked for by the editors although unsolicited contributions are now being received.

SOME REJECTED

Dr. Peter admits that some contributions they invited have not been up to expectations and, in such cases, they have been rejected.

Says Dr. Peter: "That's the advantage of having two editors. One can ask for stuff and, if it is not up to our standards, the other can reject it."

With the exception of Layton's poetry and work sheets, the only Canadia ncontribution in the first few issues will be some poems by David Summers, a young Uvic student who, says Dr. Peter, "is remarkably good."

Both editors expect to be criticized for the lack of Canadian representation but, they point out, magazines already exist for Canadian critical and creative work. They will likely include more Canadian content in later issues but are concentrating on putting out a magazine with international appeal, rather than a specifically Canadian one.

1967 START

The first isssue is scheduled to come off the presses of the Morriss Printing Company of Victoria and to be on sale for Jan. 1, 1967, the start of Canada's Centennial year. That's not a coincidence.

At present there is no broadly based international quarterly, such as The Malahat Review is planned to be, with an appeal to the general public as well as scholars.

Prof. Skelton, who first throught of the idea in summer 1965, says circulation of the magazine will show that Canada, in its 100th year, can make a significant contribution in life and letters.

Publication of The Review will also show, he says, that Victoria "is not a cultural suburb." Both editors hope that city businessmen will appreciate this aspect of quarterly.

'NEED AN ANGEL'

The university, they say, has shown "sympathetic support" for the magazine but "we really need an angel to support us in our first year or two. After that, we'll be able to pay our own way."

Subscriptions to the magazine at this time would also help. A year's subscription, for four issues of between 120 and 128 pages each, costs $5.

The first press run will probably be for 3,000 copies and, if the quarterly catches on, it will not be possible to later obtain a full set because back numbers will not be reissued even if each issue is sold out. Subscriptions should be sent to The Malahat Review, University of Victoria.

Too Many Doctor Specialists Today

WINNIPEG (CP)—The dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia sees danger ahead for Canadian patients.

More than half the doctors practising in Canada are specialists, Dr. John F. McCreary said in a recent speech. Twenty years ago the percentage was 22.

"I find it difficult to see satisfactory medical care provided by a cadre of specialists alone. Who would provide a satisfactory primary contact with the patient and who would take care of the continuing needs of families?"

The fault lies partially in medical schools, Dr. McCreary said.

Throughout his training a doctor has to do only with specialists who teach him and training takes place "in teaching hospitals where carefully selected teacher-scientists, most of whom have not practised for a day in their lives, are his mentors."

"We must give the student some experience in a community practice. We must let him learn the rewards of mobilizing the resources of a community to treat a patient as well as mobilizing the resources of the hospital."

Interest Lack May Close Luxton Hall

Luxton Hall committee will refuse all new bookings for use of the community hall.

Its action follows a poor attendance at the annual meeting. Only five people, all of them committee members, turned up.

John Waddell, secretary, said the meeting was advertised but did not attract enough people for a quorum, so there was no alternative.

Previous commitments will be honored by the committee.

"The community seems to have a drastic reluctance to concern itself with the hall," he said. "As long as the doors remain open, that is all anyone cares."

He said the committee did not set a date for another meeting.

"If enough interest is shown then we will have another," he added. "I don't mind working for the hall but I want some help."

TV Strike Vote

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Association of Television Producers and Directors decided Tuesday to take a strike vote Friday. Dave Thomas, treasurer of the association, who works for the CBC, declined to reveal reasons for the vote.

NEED ONLY REQUISITE

Plan Includes Rehabilitation

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The man who refuses to work still has a right to public support under the new concept of public assistance in Canada, Welfare Minister MacEachen said Tuesday.

He said the right is specifically set out in the Canada Assistance Plan passed by the Commons last week.

The man and his family must demonstrate only their need for financial help, Mr. MacEachen told a Senate committee examining the plan.

His deputy welfare minister, Joseph Willard, said welfare workers have come to realize "psychological blockages" of long background have sapped some persons of any motivation to work. Some families have lived on welfare for generations.

WORK ACTIVITY

The purpose of "work-activity projects" envisaged by the plan is to restore work habits and motivation, he said. The projects probably would prepare men and women for vocational and technical training, starting with matters as basic as grooming habits and how to approach employers for a job.

But even if a man refused to enter such a project, he deserved—as a right—assistance according to need.

Mr. Willard said the federal government believes the number of persons freeloading on social assistance is small, perhaps infinitesimal. Several senators agreed that the freeloaders have better fortune with social insurance-particularly unemployment insurance.

50 - 50 SHARE

The committee took just 75 minutes to question the health minister and report the bill back to the Senate, where it is expected to be passed this week.

The plan authorizes a 50-percent federal contribution to provincially-run welfare programs. The provinces are free to merge assistance to the elderly, the blind, the disabled, and to mothers, into a single system.

The $75-a-month ceiling is removed by the legislation with a pledge substituted, obliging the provinces to provide for food, shelter, clothing, fuel, utilities, household supplies and personal requirements.

Beyond these basic requirements, provinces may assist with costs of travel, funerals, health care and special care in institutional homes.

WEAKNESS

Senator David A. Croll (L—Ontario) said the "great weakness" of the plan is its discrimination against the have-not provinces.

"What good is flexibility if the province hasn't got the money to match your federal grants?" he asked.

Mr. MacEachen said the problem of equalization confronts every provincially-administered scheme. In this case, the federal government decided to wait for the federal-provincial tax-structure committee to come up with a general program of equalization.

Ulcerative Colitis Linked With Tension

By WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Chronic ulcerative colitis is a disease which can be, in some cases, very serious and even life threatening.

Alvarez

In this disease, after a while, the mucous membrane (inner lining of the bowel) looks as if someone with sharp fingernails had scraped away big areas of the soft tissue.

Unfortunately, we doctors are not sure of the cause. I have been impressed with the fact that in most of the cases I have studied, the disease came with a severe psychic strain. In some cases, there may be a hereditary tendency.

A while ago, Dr. Peter J. Morris of Southampton, England, described a family in which eight members of three generations had ulcerative colitis. He said that occasional familial cases have been reported, but rarely does the disease occur in more than two members of a family; only two other families are known in which there were four members involved.

When rest, diet, and the giving of cortisone-like drugs and antibiotics fail to help, the colon is removed surgically and an opening is made between the lower end of the small bowel and the outer abdominal wall. This is called an ileostomy (the ileum is the lower end of the small bowel and stoma means a mouth).

Some doctors, such as Drs. J. R. Brooks and F. J. Veith of Boston believe that patients with an acute and severe ulcerative colitis, which doesn't show much improvement after treatment with cortisone-like drugs, should promptly be operated on.

The problem is that the operation is a big one and there is risk to it; but there is risk also in letting the patient with a severe colitis go too long when he is too ill to work. At the University of Chicago, about one in six of the patients is operated on.

As I write this, in comes an obviously very tense, nervous man of 45 with a severe chronic ulcerative colitis that has been bothering him off and on for years. I could not get out of him any reasons for his strain — but his wife told me he suffers terribly every day from panics of fear of he knows not what; also he has strong hatreds, great feelings of guilt, typical symptoms of paranoia (suspicions) and even a desire to kill some people he dislikes.

My impression is that the man was a schizophrenic. When I find a man like this, I wonder what could be accomplished by an operation. I wonder if the man could be any happier and more healthy.

An ileostromy can be a very distressing thing — with liquid intestinal contents and gas frequently coming out of a hole in the abdominal wall but most of the persons learn to live with it and many have told me that it was much better for them than the illness that for long had kept them bed-ridden or chained to a toilet. In some cases, the patient must accept the operation if he is to go on living.

As I will keep saying in this column, there are clubs in which people with ileostomies meet. They cheer each other, and they swap very helpful information in regard to diet and to the appliances that can be used to close the hole. The address of the United Ostomy Association, Inc. is 1111 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90017.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jephry Boisvert, age 11, of West Warwick, R.I., for his question:

What are the uses of and the value of platinum?

The word platinum means little silver, and it was named in the 18th century, when people thought it was less valuable than silver. Nowadays we find platinum more useful than silver or gold and value it far above either of these precious metals.

In 1906 the cost of platinum and gold were about equal. Ten years later the cost of platinum soared to $175 an ounce — and then its value gradually fell to about $80. These figures tell the story of our acquaintanceship with the silvery element. Platinum is rare and when its useful qualities were discovered the price soared. Then more was mined and greater supplies brought down the cost.

The usefulness of platinum depends upon its built-in chemical properties. It is 21 times heavier than water and a cubic foot of water weighs more than 62 pounds. A cubic foot of platinum weighs more than half a ton. It does not rust in the air and only the strongest acids can corrode it. It is easy to shape and a platinum wire can be pulled 30 times thinner than a human hair. Jewelers depend on these qualities to make settings and fine chains of sturdy platinum.

Platinum melts at a seething temperature of 3,190 Fahrenheit degrees, and it does not expand in ordinary temperatures. These properties make it useful for special fuses and delicate electrical equipment. Laboratories depend upon its heat and chemical resistance in screens and containers.

The splendid metal is too scarce and costly for everyday machinery. But traces of platinum add strength to such metals as nickel and copper. We use many such platinum alloys. The most famous one is the alloy of platinum and iridium used to make our standard weights and measures. The Bureau of Standards must make these objects as durable as possible.

Used in Fine Jewelry

Platinum has a host of uses in industry because it is a catalyst. It remains unchanged while causing and speeding up changes in other substances. When heated it diffuses certain gases and not others. It is used to separate gases and trap nitrogen from the air. As a catalyst it is used in manufacuring sulfuric acid, nitric acid and acetic acid, to refine oils and gasoline and in a long list of other everyday products.

Most of the platinum we see is in fine jewelry. We must seek its expensive alloys in small and durable machine parts and in certain delicate electrical equipment. Most of its work is done behind the scenes as a catalyst. It forms a few compounds with other elements though their usefulness is limited. Platinum salts, however, are used in certain types of photography.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Susan Coleman, age 11, of Gastonia, N.C., for her question:

Does mistletoe grow only in winter?

Since ancient times the tender green mistletoe has been one of the symbols of Christmas time. In mid-winter it is gathered from the branches of hawthorn and sycamore trees, from limes and poplars, firs and oak trees. This is when we see it in the markets, but it is in the woods all year, though we might walk right under it without noticing it.

Mistletoe is an evergreen parasite plant that takes its food from the host tree on which it perches. Its fleshy leaves grow in pairs and keep their pale green tint throughout the year. In February it blooms with small yellow flowers, and come Christmas the flowers have become clusters of white berries.

DAILY COLLECT

Prayer Embodies Every Need

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Many women's groups in Canada and the United States have adopted a collect or a prayer for the day that embodies in simple, direct words the common needs of all.

Forbes

As in folk songs and all other often-repeated words, variations in this collect have sprung up over the years. In essence however it is repeated as follows:

"Keep us, oh God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

"Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

"May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face—without self-pity and without prejudice.

"May we be never hasty in judgment and always generous.

* * *

"Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

"Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward, and unafraid.

"Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are as one.

"And may we strive to touch and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all, and, oh Lord God, let us forget not to be kind!"

Reading these words you feel they must have been set down by a mature woman who had gained insight into the common needs of woman and whose heart and mind had been mellowed by years of experience.

This is quite wrong.

The Collect was written by a Miss Mary Stewart when she was in her early twenties and only a few years after she had graduated from the University of Colorado.

At that time (in 1903) she was principal of the high school in Longmont, Colorado. She had joined the Fortnightly Woman's Club in that town and was entering into its program with all her boundless energy.

* * *

Many years later she wrote in her memoirs: "The first gleam of what women working together might accomplish came to me as I worked in the Fortnightly. . . . I felt that women working together in wide interests for large ends was a new thing under the sun and that perhaps they had need for a special petition of their own.

From Longmont Miss Stewart went to Montana State College as dean of women and while there contributed to leading newspapers and magazines and also published a book of metrical translations from the Latin lyrics of the poet Catullus.

In 1921 she was appointed assstant director-general of the United States Employment Service, Department of Labor, where she had charge of the development of junior guidance and placement in its pioneer days.

She did outstanding work in Washington, D.C., on the women's Joint Congressional Committee, as assistant director of the United States Employment Service and as superintendent of Indian education at large and she served with distinction at The Hague and Geneva Conferences for World Peace.

* * *

She was also one of the founders of the United States Federation of Business and Professional Women in July, 1919, in St. Louis and held many offices with that federation until her death in 1943.

Today the moving and inspirational prayer Mary Stewart wrote when she was a young girl lives on.

It has been used by women's organizations in many countries. (In Canada both the Women's Institutes and the Business and Professional Women's Clubs includes it on their agendas.)

Inevitably, in its various printings, a few words have been transposed and some have been changed.

But the over-all meaning is the same as when she composed it back near the beginning of the century because she thought "women working together in wide interests for large ends was such a new thing they might need a special petition of their own."

Wild Berries Divert Robins

The frequently poor summer weather has been a boon to agriculture this year in more ways than one.

Besides green fields in the country, there are relatively few starlings and robins stripping the cherry orchards.

Charles Carter, provincial horticulturist, said Monday the reason for the latter is the abundance of wild berries this year which "is keeping them off the crops."

Russia Deadly Serious

LBJ May Get Viet Warning

LONDON (UPI)—Communist diplomats said today the Soviet Union wants to convey a stern warning to President Johnson through Prime Minister Wilson that any further escalation of the Viet Nam conflict could lead to a major war.

They said the Russian-led Communist block is deadly serious in its recent threat to send volunteers to North Viet Nam and that the Warsaw Pact powers cannot stand idly by indefinitely.

'ANXIOUS'

They made it clear the Kremlin is "most anxious" to steer clear of any direct military crash with the United States and that the key to preventing such a catastrophe lies in Washington as well as in Moscow.

They hinted that Red China is going all out to promote a clash between the United States and Russia.

Wilson files to Moscow Saturday and expects to have talks with Premier Alexei Kosygin and other Kremlin leaders. Kosygin asked him Tuesday to advance his visit by three hours so he would arrive at 6 p.m., presumably so the talks could start then.

WILSON'S PLAN

Wilson's chief plan is to try to enlist Soviet co-operation in moves to reconvene the Geneva conference which settled the French-Indochina war in 1954 and of which both Russia and Britain continue to be co-chairmen.

Present indications are the Russians have no intention of heeding the British call or a similar call being made in Moscow by visiting Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indiri Gandhi.

Diplomats said Moscow would call such a conference only if the United States accepts the four peace conditions set by Hanoi and the five set by the Viet Cong in the south. The conditions add up to a withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Viet Nam.

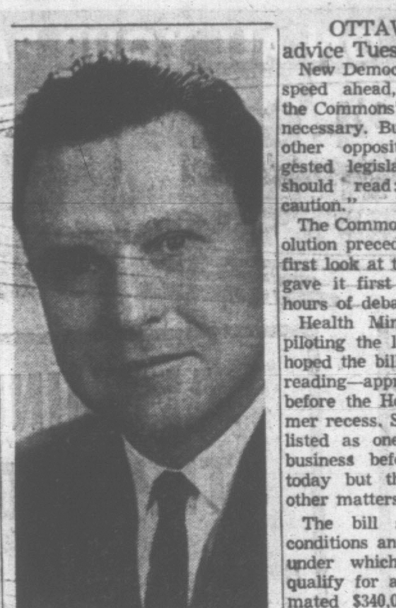
MPs Launch Debate On Medicare Measure

OTTAWA (CP)—The government got conflicting advice Tuesday on its medical care insurance program.



MacEACHEN
. . . in a hurry?

New Democrats called for full speed ahead, delaying further the Commons' summer recess if necessary. But members of other opposition parties suggested legislation traffic signs should read: "Proceed with caution."

The Commons approved a resolution preceding the bill, got a first look at the legislation, and gave it first reading after 7½ hours of debate.

Health Minister MacEachen, piloting the legislation, said he hoped the bill would get second reading—approval in principle—before the House starts a summer recess. Second reading was listed as one of the points of business before the Commons today but there were several other matters listed ahead of it.

The bill set out the four conditions announced previously under which provincial plans qualify for a share of an estimated $340,000,000 annual federal kitty. A provincial plan must:

- Cover the full range of physicians' services.
- Cover 90 per cent of the province's population at the start, rising to 95 per cent in three years.
- Be publicly operated, non-profit and open to public audit.
- Be designed to be portable from one province to another.

Mr. MacEachen reiterated his hope that the bill would "result in the commencement of provincial medical care plans covering all Canadians on the 100th birthday of Confederation, July 1, 1967."

He added he would like to see the bill receive second reading before a summer adjournment but this was not a government requirement.

Conservative, Creditiste and Social Credit MPs plumped for thorough study of the bill before approval.

But NDP leader Douglas said it should be pushed through as soon as possible.

Medicare was promised in the Liberal party platform of 1917, he said. There might be some problems inherent in the proposed plan "but if we wait until we have a perfect setup we will never start."

" . . . The minister and this House cannot afford to give any province an alibi for not being ready to come into this plan on July 1 next."

OTTAWA PAYS HALF

Mr. MacEachen said it was estimated the plan, which entails a payment by Ottawa of 50 per cent of the per capita cost of insurance for physicians' services in the participating province, would cost the federal treasury $340,000,000 a year. The provinces would match this amount.

It was estimated Canadians

MacEachen Bucked For Pushing Bill

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen may have landed in hot water with some cabinet colleagues and Liberal MPs with his decision Tuesday night to push forward with the government's medicare bill before the summer recess.

His statement, which brought shouts of "no, no" from the Conservative's Gordon Churchill, was to be raised at a morning Liberal party caucus meeting.

Mr. Churchill, member for Winnipeg South Centre, charged that Mr. MacEachen broke a commitment made by George McIlraith, the government House leader, during inter-party talks to arrange a date for Parliament's summer recess.

The health minister's statement came at the conclusion of debate on the resolution preceding the medicare bill. The Commons had just given first reading—a step that permits the bill to be distributed for study by the parties.

Mr. Churchill said that in numerous discussions with Mr. McIlraith during the past 10 days it was indicated the government would not proceed to second reading — approval in principle — of medicare before the recess.

He said he thought Mr. MacEachen's action "is breaking

Firmer Sanctions Urged on Rhodesia

Special Mediator Appointed

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — With a strike involving 32,500 employees of 139 Quebec hospitals only 12 hours away, Premier Daniel Johnson's office announced today that the cabinet's legal counsellor, Yves Pratte, had been named special mediator in the dispute.

The decision to name a special mediator was reached this morning during a meeting of an inter-ministerial committee, comprising the premier and representatives of the health, family and social welfare and labor departments.

QUICK ACTION HOPED

The premier said he hoped that all the parties involved would co-operate in the public interest in order to reach a settlement as rapidly as possible and without any interruption in hospital services.

The hospital workers involved in the dispute belong to 700 different union locals of which only 250 are affiliated to the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Their strike vote was taken June 29 in protest against lengthy delays in their talks with the administrations of the 139 institutions involved.

CANADA AIMS TO KEEP AFRICAN MEMBERS IN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is expected to announce soon that he will lead Canada's delegation to a Commonwealth conference that will discuss Rhodesia and other issues in London Sept. 6-14.

It was learned today that the Canadian delegation will oppose any action on Rhodesia that would cause African countries to withdraw from the Commonwealth.

Government spokesmen declined to comment directly on a threat Tuesday by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia to walk out of the Commonwealth in protest against British negotiations with the white supremacy regime in Rhodesia.

C'wealth Appeal By U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Britain was reported to have appealed to the Commonwealth today to provide more assistance to pave the way towards increased economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

The appeal was said to have been made during a Commonwealth sanctions committee meeting following a clash between Britain and Zambia over the effectiveness of current economic curbs aimed at bringing down the white-minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

An informant said Mrs. Judith Hart, junior minister in the British Commonwealth office, said even the offer of a single transport plane by a group of Commonwealth countries might prove vital for Commonwealth unity.

The sanctions committee meeting was adjourned for another session Thursday so that representatives could consult with their governments on how much aid to give Britain and Zambia to help turn the economic screws tighter against Rhodesia.

CHALLENGE SANCTIONS

The informant said Mrs. Hart maintained that current economic sanctions against Rhodesia are biting hard and causing increasing hardship among Rhodesian farmers and businessmen. But Simon Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, challenged that argument, maintaining that sanctions have not proven effective.

If Britain had used force to oust the Ian Smith regime at the very beginning of the trouble, the situation would have been far more satisfactory than it is today and the cost infinitesmal, Kapwepwe was reported to have said.

Britain had made an offer to Zambia of an estimated $21,000,000 to help develop alternative transport routes for Zambian imports and exports. Kapwepwe was reported to have stated this offer did not go far enough.

The British - led economic sanctions were applied after the Smith regime seized independence for Rhodesia last year when Britain refused to free its Central African colony without guarantees for eventual Negro-majority rule there.

Before that, landlocked, Negro-ruled Zambia had imported and exported through neighboring Rhodesia.

CREWS RESCUED

Tankers Ablaze After Collision

LISBON, Portugal (CP) — A Greek and a Norwegian tanker collided and caught fire today about 20 miles northwest of St. Vincente Cape, the southernmost cape of Portugal, and one officer was reported missing overboard.

Both crews were rescued.

A Portuguese Navy plane and a ship were dashing to help the tankers after a positional mix-up had delayed assistance, a navy spokesman said.

The alarm was raised shortly after the 11,577 - ton Greek tanker Marietta Nomikos — bound from Hamburg to the Persian Gulf—radioed that she was on fire.

Almost immediately the 34,395-ton Norwegian tanker Mosli reported she was also on fire.

One officer of the Marietta Nomikos was reported lost overboard.

CREWS RESCUED

The Mosli's 46 crew members were rescued by the 2,374-ton Norwegian freighter Bayard and the Greek seamen were picked up by the West German vessel Stuttgart.

The Stuttgart has firefighting equipment and was trying to halt the blaze.

From Lisbon, the 516-ton Portuguese tug Praia da Adraga sailed from Cape St. Vincent to join the navy ship Azevia, which had been patrolling the southern coast of Algarve.

AUTO SAFETY PLANS MOVE AHEAD IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House of Representatives commerce committee joined the Senate today in voting to require auto makers to comply with federal safety standards in time to affect 1968 models.

Acting on one provision of auto safety legislation, the group voted to require initial federal safety standards for all vehicles sold in the United States by next January 31, and revised standards a year late.

The Senate has passed a bill containing the same requirement.

The standards would take effect about six months to a year after they were issued by the Secretary of Commerce.

NECESSARY?

(See Page 21)

Opposition leader Strachan said today the New Democratic Party will call for a full investigation of the "so-called air fleet.

"We want to determine the necessity of the air fleet, the purpose it serves and whether or not the province needs the fleet at all," he said in an interview.

"We want to see if the best interests of the public and the provincial pocketbook are being served."

Commenting on the government's recent aquisition of a $500,000 Lear jet on a lease-purchase arrangement, Mr. Strachan said he thought it to be "a luxury the government could do without.

"They already have enough planes so (Highways Minister) Gaglardi can get to the church on time," he said.

When he flew to Prince Rupert last weekend to attend a Skeena nomination convention he said he "flew commercial and found it to be economic and expeditious."

"I fly quite a few thousand miles a year — all by commercial."

NEW STRIKES AT OIL DUMPS

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck new blows today at the war potential of North Viet Nam, where swollen rivers were reported threatening new devastation. A spokesman said a raid Tuesday, only 16 miles from Haiphong, turned an oil dump into an inferno visible for 140 miles.

Teamsters Veto Bid To Rejoin CLC

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the 40,000-member Canadian section of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) have refused an invitation to rejoin the Canadian Labor Congress, a Teamster source said today.

The Canadian delegation decided at the union's international convention last week in Miami to remain independent of the CLC at least until the U.S. section re-enters the AFL-CIO, he said.

The Teamsters were expelled from the CLC in 1959 for raiding other unions.

The Teamster source said Ontario representatives led a convention fight to rejoin the CLC but were outvoted by more militant west coast members.

THREE MEN UNHARMED AFTER 16-HOUR ORDEAL

Rescuers Chip Through to Trapped Miners

AMBROSIA LAKE, N.M. (UPI) — Three Indian miners, trapped 100 feet below ground in a uranium mine for 16 hours, were brought out unharmed in a dramatic rescue today.

The three Navajos squinted in the early morning sunlight as they emerged from the shaft of the Rimrock mine. They embraced their families, talked briefly with newsmen, shook the hands of their rescuers and then got in their cars and went home to bed.

The trio — Jerry Yazzi, 29; Charlie Martinez, 34; and Scotty Hudson, 27 — were caught in a cubicle four by eight feet Tuesday afternoon when the ceiling of a mine tunnel collapsed.

There were air holes into the chamber and the men received food and sweaters, to keep themselves warm, from the other side of the barrier during the rescue operation.

Martinez, in broken English, told newsmen: "I feel very good. I was awfully cold down there. I knew I was going to get out. It was a matter of time. I just sat there and drank the soda pop and coffee."

Hudson said it was "awfully good to see light again."

Yazzi said he would go home to sleep, then go back to work.

The rescuers had chipped away all night at eight feet of limestone to reach the trapped men. They could talk to the men all through the rescue. But they had to go very slowly because of the danger of triggering another cave-in.

New Mexico state mine inspector Bill Hays said the cave-in was caused by "a natural fault" and was something that could not be prevented. He said that portion of the mine would not be used again.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Northlode Continues Gain

The Vancouver market continued strong on moderate trade before noon today.

Northlode Exploration Ltd. continued its climb of recent days, and was up .04 to $1.61.

Gary Schell, the company's managing director, said Northlode is staking new silver, lead and zinc prospects in northern B.C., and work is expected to start on the property within a month.

He would not say where the new claims are.

Elsewhere in the market, Northwest Ventures added .03 to .19, and Jaye was up .06 to 50. Croydon added .05 to .55 and Brenda was up .10 to $8.80.

Losers included Canusa, down .06 to .58; Giant Mascot, off .08 to $1.75, and Peso, down .07 to $1.50.

In the industrials, Johnston Terminals was trading at $5.50 after a three-for-one split Tuesday. Sun A was up $1 to $24. Trans-Mountain lost .37 to a 1966 low of $16.50.

Fractional losses marked trading in industrials at Toronto.

Wall Street remained lower in dull trading.

AT TORONTO Distillers Seagram fell ¾ to 31:, Bell Telephone ½ to 51 and Toronto-Dominion bank ⅜ to 62½. CPR and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce fell ¼ each to 64 and 62⅜.

Senior base metals were mixed, with Falconbridge ahead ¾ to 98½ and Inco ⅜ to 98⅜. Noranda fell ⅝ to 53⅝ and Hudson Bay ½ to 77¾.

Uranium issues lost heavily, as Denison dropped 1¼ to 60¾, Roman Corp. 1 to 15, Rio Algom ¾ to 26⅝ and Preston ⅛ to 15⅜.

Golds were higher, behind a gain of 1 to McIntyre Porcupine, at 99. Giant Yellowknife advanced ⅛ to 13⅝.

AT NEW YORK some losses were sharp but the general scope of declines was from fractions to about a point. A Liberal assortment of issues bucked the downtrend.

DuPont lost 4 and Pan American World Airways 3. Mission Corp. lost nealy 3.

Burroughs, reporting a sharp gain in profits, gained about 2, Hecla Mining and Homestake rose more than a point each.

Chrysler, reporting a big drop in early-July car sales from a year ago, sank nearly a point.

AT MONTREAL prices generally remained shaded fractionally.

Noranda fell ⅝ to 54⅝. CPR, up in early morning trading, turned to lower levels and was off ¼ to 64. Alcan recovered some of its morning losses and stood at 36¾, down ¾.

AT LONDON the market was easier although dollar stocks were an exception. Many losses in equities were extended after Britain's June trade figures were published, and a few improvements in gilt-edged soon were lost.

Most dollar stocks were better on an improvement in the premium offsetting Tuesday's dullness on Wall Street.

In Canadians, International Nickel added 3⅜s, Noranda 3, Massey-Ferguson 2¼ and Canadian Pacific 2.

Consolidated Paper and Brazilian Traction eased.

Improvements in Canadian banks ranged to ⅜. Steels lost a few pence.

Coal Output In Canada Shows Gain

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's coal production climbed 2.3 per cent in 1965 as the bustling prairies found coal a cheaper fuel than natural gas for some of their power plants.

Production of sub-bituminous coal in Alberta was 21 per cent ahead of 1964 to 2,554,752 tons.

In Saskatchewan, a 3.5 per cent increase in lignite production helped offset declines in bituminous production in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and British Columbia.

Over-all Canadian production during the year was 11,588,616 tons compared with 11,319,323 tons in 1964.

Major declines were 3.7 per cent in Nova Scotia to a total production of 4,134,161 tons and 7.5 per cent in British Columbia to 971,465 tons. New Brunswick production dropped .7 per cent to 996,328 tons.

Uranium Find On Property Near Sudbury

TORONTO (CP)—Kerr Addison Mines Ltd. has announced it has encountered encouraging uranium values on a property about 40 miles northwest of Sudbury.

The Toronto-based gold-producing company purchased an 80-per-cent interest in the property last year from Quebec Matagami Minerals Ltd.

J. H. Stovel, executive vice-president of Kerr Addison, said test holes drilled showed widths ranging from 6.7 to 12 feet and uranium content ranging from 1.05 to 2.47 pounds of uranium oxide per ton.

By comparison the ore reserves of Rio Algom Mines Ltd. one of Canada's largest uranium producers, average 2.23 pounds of uranium oxide per ton.

Credit Check To Continue

LONDON (CP)—The British government's squeeze on bank credit is to remain in force until the end of 1967 and perhaps even longer, says James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer.

His statement in the Commons Tuesday indicated a government awareness of a continuing weakness in the economy which has raised fresh speculation about the future of the pound. An opposition member spoke of an approaching "economic blizzard."

Arthur Mayse

Among my favorite television spectoramas are those automobile manufacturers' commercials in which their sleek and shiny products are put through the cruellest tests that men of sadistic inclination can devise.

The cars, poor things, are racked, bounced, twisted and jolted. They crash through creeks and hurtle up near-perpendicular grades. Sometimes they course bumpity-bump along railway ties, knees churning furiously, while a reassuring voice bids us observe the level ride.

Until Ralph Nader, present scourge of a perturbed automotive industry, wrote a book grimly titled "Unsafe at Any Speed," most of us were pretty thoroughly convinced by these demonstrations.

Safety was something to be provided by the driver, through the use of his brain and the non-use of alcohol. It could be furthered by padding the instrument panel, recessing the more aggressive knobs and handles, and keeping our seat-belts snugged up.

But mechanically, the car itself was safe as research and testing could make it.

★

Not so, Mr. Nader has declared in print and before the United States Congress..

His charges have been detailed and emphatic enough to erica's industry down on his head.

However, certain facts exposed by the young crusader for safety can't be hollered down, and one of these is that the testing of an automobile does not necessarily end, as it should, on the company proving grounds.

The purchaser finishes the job—and there are occasions on record where it has finished him.

For the detailed story, we must turn to the sources within the industry from which Mr. Nader drew much of his damning information. These are leaflets issued by each manufacturing company to dealers who sell and service its line.

They are known as "campaign change," or, more simply, "campaign" letters. Although not meant for the public eye, they provide interesting reading.

Since a random breeze from automobile row has blown a batch of campaign letters to my desk, let us glance at a couple of these cheerily-titled bulletins.

"A few cases of interference between the hood hinge spring hook and the power brake to reservoir tank hose have been encountered . . . This could result in failure of the brakes if the hose or pipe on the reservoir tank becomes worn or damaged."

★

I don't know how many thousand cars were hauled in to correct that defect unspotted during company tests.

What concerns us is that a lot of drivers drove a lot of miles with a lurking killer.

Here's another little flaw that developed, in highway use, on other cars:

"There is a possibility," the campaign letter runs, "that the rear axle lower control arm front bracket has been improperly welded in production . . . Failure of the welds will allow the control arm bracket to break away from the rear frame extension and permit the front end of the control arm to break away and release the rear spring."

We could go on to review the lying dipstick that indicated an oil supply where there wasn't any, and the clutch pressure plate that failed, and the frolic some engine that insisted on revving up on sharp right turns, or the steering that proved erratic beyond a certain highway speed.

However, it's enough to know that, due to the frantic haste to get new models on the road, a number of potentially dangerous cars do go out to buyers each year.

I hope we'll go on bearing down on the tosspot driver. At the same time, let us not forget that an industry never notably safety-conscious owes the driver more than it seems to be giving him.

PHIL GAGLIARDI
. . . "jump in the lake"

'Press Trying to Shoot Me Down with Lies!'

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

"Flying Phil" today seemed as angry at the press as Snoopy is at the "Red Barron" — claiming it was trying to shoot him down with lies.

"Flying Phil" is Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi, currently under fire for his successful campaign to add a twin-jet lear executive aircraft to the government's air squadron.

He bitterly denied reports that his department will spend $1 million converting four more Beechcraft Expediters to turbine engines this fall.

He also angrily denied that he flew to Calgary Tuesday in the six-passenger Lear just to attend the Stampede.

●

He said there are no plans "at the moment" to convert the Expediters and he flew to Calgary on business, only attending a few chuckwagon races at the stampede grounds Tuesday night.

When contacted by the Times in Vancouver this morning to check the reports, his first response was:

"You find yourself a nice large lake where you can put a 50-pound anchor around your neck and jump in!"

He simmered down only enough to deny the report his department will convert the four remaining piston driven Expediters after having successfully test a conversion to turbo-prop engines for the first in recent flights at Patricia Bay airport.

"There is absolutely no foundation to any story that the department of highways is spending $1 million for converting anything," he said.

"That's just speculation of the worst type. That's just propaganda."

He assailed the report as a newspaper plot in which "they printed things they did not check with me and they knew were not true.

"All they're trying to do is give me a lot of problems. I don't mind that but they should print the truth about me."

Mr. Gaglardi confirmed that the Beechcraft turbine conversion has been successful and that there are four more such planes in the government fleet still using piston engines.

●

He said the conversion cost "about $150,000" and had raised the aircraft's "redlined (normal top speed) to 200-miles-an-hour."

Asked its previous speed, Mr. Gaglardi said it had been 185-miles-an-hour, then quickly added the explanation for so little difference.

"It wasn't speed that we were after. It's reliability. Piston engines are on the way out."

Asked if that meant the four Beechcraft would be converted sometime in the future, Mr. Gaglardi charged the query was intended to trick him by "fishing for information.

"I've been around long enough to know that," he stormed. "You just ask the question, don't try to fish around for it.

"There are no plans on the books at this moment for converting any of them (Beechcraft)."

Asked if the stress on "at this moment" implied there would be plans in the future, Mr. Gaglardi replied:

"I don't know. I can't tell what I'll be doing 50 years from now. I'm just telling you there's nothing at this particular time."

●

Mr. Gaglardi also slammed back at reports that he could not be located Tuesday and his own staff didn't seem to know where he was because he had gone off to the Stampede in the 520-mile-an-hour jet.

(The Hotel Vancouver, where Mr. Gaglardi maintains one of his three offices, said it thought he would be there today and that's where the Times reached him.)

"You didn't have any trouble getting me, did you?" he demanded. "They (newspapermen) are just trying to make trouble for me."

"I was in Calgary yesterday but I didn't go down for the Stampede," he said.

"The reason I went there was that I was working on a bridge at McBride. (He later corrected this to identify it as the Smithers bridge project in which bids of over $500,000 were rejected recently.)

"There's a consultant firm there (in Calgary) a prefab outfit, which I asked some time ago to try to find a cheaper way for building that bridge.

●

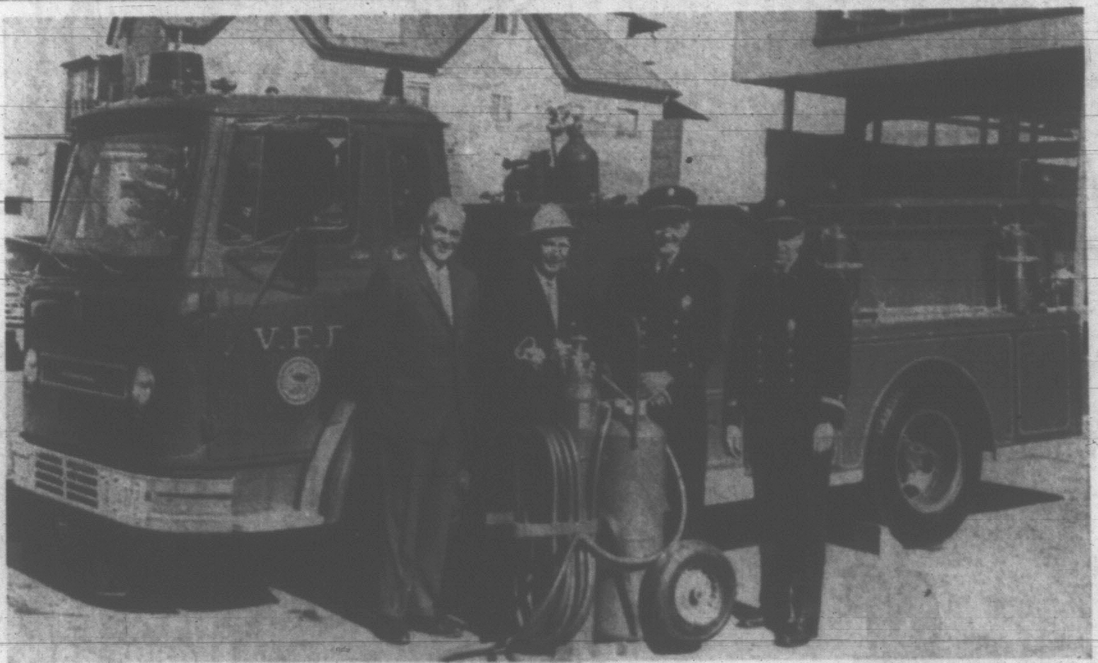
"I took Norman Lee, my consultant who designed the bridge, with me and we had a very good meeting with the prefab outfit (which he later identified as "Conforce Products" after once again charging the question was intended to trick him.)

"They came up with a design and I brought it back and Mr. Lee and his associates are studying it now."

Mr. Gaglardi said he did not know if the design would be accepted or put to tender because the study was not completed.

Asked if he did attend the Stampede during the Calgary visit, Mr. Gaglardi said:

"Yes, I was there for a while, watching the last chuckwagon races."



MAN OF MANY TALENTS is Lieut. Bob McKean, mechanic inspector for the Victoria Fire Department. At nine this morning he was honored by Mayor A. W. Toone and members of the city's fire wardens committee for his latest creative effort—a $20,000 oil fire-fighting truck. Lieut. McKean built the truck himself for $10,561, including wages. The project took him four months, with the work being done in between regular chores. Ald. Clyde Savage, Mayor Toone in the fire chief's helmet, Lieut. McKean and Acting Chief Eric Simmons pose before the custom-built beauty.

'Glad He's On Our Side'

Safe crackers are notoriously shy of publicity.

In Victoria the rule applies whether the man is a legal professional or an illegal crook.

So when the door to the records vault at city hall defied normal opening procedures Tuesday the professional lock-puncher called in to rectify matters shied skittishly away from a Times photographer.

He got the vault door open about an hour after arriving on the scene by neatly punching the combination lock.

"A masterly job," said a veteran policeman. "Glad he's on our side."

Ask The Times

Q. I have an invention I would like to patent. Who do I write for further information? A.O.M.

A. Write the Commissioner of Patents, Ottawa, Ontario.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

NEW COMMANDER of the destroyer-escort Yukon is Commander S. I. Ker, 38, of Montreal. He succeeds Cmdr. Richard Carle, 39, of Victoria, who takes over as officer-in-charge of the Fleet School weapons division in Halifax. Cmdr. Ker's naval career began in 1947 when he specialized in navigation-direction. He was executive officer of the destroyer-escort Athabaskan from 1960 to 1963. Following an RN staff course, he went to headquarters in Ottawa in planning appointments. He takes over his appointment on Yukon in September.

'Holy Legislature' It's Batman for Pres

Peter Baxter, a controversial figure who now lives in Los Angles but makes periodic trips here, marched outside the Legislative Buildings today in a blue-hooded "Batman" mask.

He wore placards proclaiming "Batman Baxter for AD HOC (Viet Nam) President of the United States" and "Batman Baxter is a Nervous Nellie."

Mr. Baxter said he would stroll through the downtown areas of Victoria and all up-Island communities this week.

He said it was his method of appealing for the attention of all university graduates in B.C. in the hopes they will invite him to express his protests against the war in Viet Nam.

Mr. Baxter made the headlines three years ago when he picketed the University of B.C. announcing he would refuse to kneel as tradition prescribed when he received his degree. He did not graduate at that time.

Car Travelled Up Steep Bank

Michael Palfi, 4145 Barber, injured in a spectacular accident at midnight Monday, is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Palfi sustained chest injuries after the car he was driving went out of control on the Trans-Canada Highway near the entrance to Thetis Lake Park, ran 75 yards up a steep embankment and came to rest on its roof about 40 feet above the road.

Victim 'Armed' Argues Lawyer

Argument this morning in central court took up where the Marquis of Queensbury left off.

Speaking for a client charged with assault causing bodily harm to a one-armed man on June 12 on the Pat Bay Highway, Herbert Matthews said in effect, the complainant was "armed" with a steel device.

Mr. Matthews, lawyer for Donald Logue, 3471 Seymour, argued that where one man in a fight has a dangerous weapon (the hook on the end of an artificial arm) the other party has a right to use whatever force necessary for self-defence.

NEEDED SURGERY

William Mizewich, 64, of 285 Burnside W., had been kicked in the groin causing injury needing surgery and a week's hospitalization.

The incident occurred shortly after Mizewich had pulled out of Royal Oak cemetery in front of a truck driven by Logue.

Logue testified he pulled over to the side of the road because he was "shaken" by a near-collision.

Court was told Mizewich pulled his car up behind Logue's truck and went to the truck window.

Logue said he asked Mizewich "where did you get your licence? In a box of crackerjack?"

A fight outside the truck ensued. Logue said Mizewich swung at him with his hook and in self-defence he kicked him.

He said after kicking him he ran back to his truck and drove away. Mizewich followed him, he said, later throwing a tire iron in the direction of this truck.

Mr. Mizewich, who lost the lower pat of his forearm 30 years ago, has been loading timber for the past 23 years.

The complainant said Logue swore at him and tried to choke him.

Magistrate William Ostler reserved judgment until Tuesday.

Lighthouse keeper Ken Nelson jumped into his rubber dinghy Tuesday and saved a troller about to smash onto the rocks of Leonard Island.

The West Coast keeper managed to tow the 35-foot troller, Louisville, until a second fishboat took over the tow.

When the dinghy, powered by a 10-horsepower motor, took over the tow, the fishboat was only 100 yards from the jagged rocks west of Tofino.

The second unidentified troller towed the Louisville into Tofino for repairs to the engine.

Girl's Condition 'Satisfactory'

Eight-year-old Catrina Cupples is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today following a beach accident at Mayne Island Saturday.

The girl, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. B. Cupples, 2833 Dufferin, suffered head injuries when a log rolled and hit her.

Open Pit Mine Eyed For Sooke

By AB KENT
Business Writer

A far-reaching mineral development for the southern tip of Vancouver Island was proposed today by veteran miner Oswood G. MacDonald.

He envisages a complex of open pit mines, ore treatment mills, smelter and fertilizer plant to exploit the resources of a rich belt 35 miles long and from two to eight miles wide along Juan de Fuca Strait between Sombrio Point and East Sooke.

300 CLAIMS

His Macsan Explorations Ltd., formed in April, 1963, holds more than 300 mineral claims west of the Sooke Peninsula and straddling what is known as the Leech River fault.

According to geological consultant D. C. Malcolm, the area could support a series of open-pit mines.

Mr. MacDonald was asked what the cash from a newly authorized issue of shares would be used for.

He said work done over the past three years warrants intense diamond drilling. Fewer than 100 surface holes have been drilled to date, but all of them have intersected one or more ore-grade copper zones, according to reports.

GOOD POTENTIAL

Mr. MacDonald feels the quality of ore, the demand for metal and the seaboard location of mine sites makes the potential of this area extremely attractive.

Not worried by the high cost of setting up a smelter and such adjuncts as a fertilizer plant, Mr. MacDonald said:

"I can get the money once I've proved there's ore."

He said the mineralization includes nickel, cobalt, iron, palladium and gold, besides copper.

B.C. Securities Commission has approved the issue of 300,000 additional shares at 60 cents each to realize $180,000, of which $30,000 would go to Mr. MacDonald for exploration work he has already done; to further prospecting, trench sampling, assaying, surveying, diamond drilling, engineering, mapping and administration, leaving $30,000 for unexpected costs or capital spending.

The recommendations are concurred in by Mr. Malcolm.

Company directors include H. S. Doman, president of Doman's Transport Ltd.; William B. Wilson, president of B. Wilson Co. Ltd.; Edward C. Dobell, president of North Coast Fisheries Ltd. and David Whiting, president of A and A Plumbing and Heating.

SEVERAL ORE BODIES

Mr. Malcolm, reporting April 29, 1966, said there are several large, low-grade copper ore bodies, one averaging .26 per cent.

Mr. MacDonald, president of Cowichan Copper Ltd., whose mine is at Jordan River, is credited with salvaging the Sunro Mine after a disastrous flood 2½ years ago.

NEW CAR FOR MAYOR

Victoria's Mayor A. W. Toone will soon be riding in the city's new prestige car—a $3,939 Buick.

At this morning's meeting of the police commission it was agreed to place the order for the car immediately.

MOTHER WON'T LEAVE . . . ALIVE

Tubby, Sightless and Lovable

By GLEN ALLEN

There are five of them and right now they are fat and sightless and look a little like rats.

They are just a couple of nights and mornings into a world that has already abandoned them.

Born Monday to a three-year-old black and nameless and gentle mongrel, the five most recent members of the Greater Victoria SPCA community will be all right for a while.

"We'll raise them and wean them" said Wes Desjardins, acting manager of the society. "And since they are young and lovable they will probably find homes."

★

Their mother, a black, part cocker, part border collie will be one of the animals—there are seagulls, sometimes alligators, snakes, cats and dogs—that won't leave alive.

Along with about half the population of the dog compound at the building on Napier Lane, she will be electrocuted.

The mother had been found at large and impounded.

"Many of the older ones can't be adopted," said Mr. Desjardins. "They get set in their ways, and don't take to new families.

★

"We keep them as long as we have room."

Mr. Desjardins, a retired warrant officer who keeps orphaned fawns and ducks at his Saanich home and brings his dog Teddy to the office with him says that last and final resort is often less cruel than the life that led up to it.

Nameless Mongrel Guards Her Pups

"People aren't pointedly cruel to their animals, they just neglect them."

If dog is man's best friend, man doesn't always return the friendship.

"For instance," he said, "people go away on holiday and all of a sudden want to get rid of their pet. They take it up on the Malahat somewhere and leave it.

"Many of the animals we have," he said during a tour of the pens and cages full of affectionate dogs, "have been with one family all their life."

He said another frequent and heartless act is the abandoning of day-old kittens at the front door of the shelter.

"They're left overnight in the cold. Of course they have to be destroyed in the morning.

★

"We can't feed them."

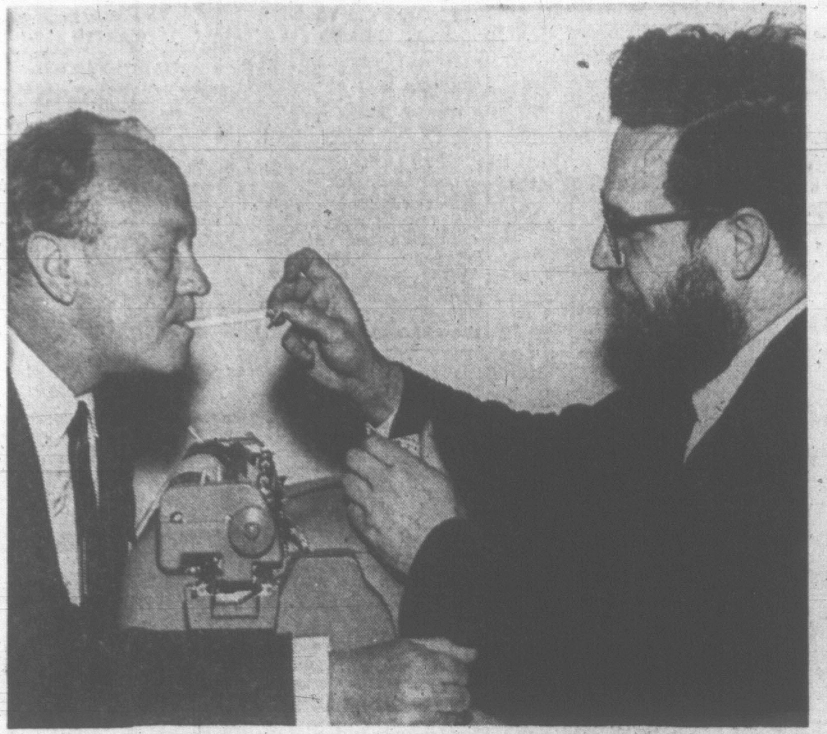
The society handles pound duties for Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Foundling or captured animals are kept four days in the pound and then put up for adoption.

The pound and residential areas are kept clean, the floors are heated in winter and the animals are fed a specially prepared (and expensive) formula food.

The SPCA is financed by municipal grants, legacies, donations and the Community Chest.

But no matter how good the care, how fine the fare, or how desperately or how long Mr. Desjardins tries to keep the dogs and the cats and the birds and the alligator—they look lost.



PROFESSORS PETER, SKELTON SHARE DUTIES

LITTLE MONEY, MANY CONTACTS

'Big Ambitions' Launch New Quarterly Magazine

By DESMOND BILL

Two University of Victoria professors with large ambitions and a small bankroll are preparing the first issues of a new magazine aimed at an international audience.

Robin Skelton, bearded, English-born poet, and John Peter, smooth South African-born novelist, have something that is just as important as money, however.

Between them they seem to have at least nodding acquaintance with the best known contemporary writers in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Partly as a result, the list of contributors to the first four issues of The Malahat Review, as the magazine will be called, reads like an international Who's-Who of literature.

20 LETTERS

The first few issues will feature 20 hitherto unpublished letters of D. H. Lawrence, work sheets showing the progressive drafts of some of John Betjeman's poems, a memoir of Miro in New York illustrated by the Spanish painter's own prints, and exclusive photographs of the most recent sculpture of Henry Moore.

They will also include previously unpublished poems of 19th century poet John Clare, a previously un-translated essay on Cervantes by Miguel Unamuno, critical essays by such contributors as Bonamy Dobree, George Woodcock and G. Wilson Knight, work sheets of poems by Irving Layton and Irish poet Thomas Kinsella, an illustrated article on Pop art by Allan Kaprow, originator of the Happening, and a Strindberg play translated into English for the first time.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Other contributions will be as varied as the The True Story of Billy Buckles, sections of a Central African Journal by Paul Theroux, a translation of a radio play by German writer Gunther Eich, poems by Kingsley Amis, translations of poetry from Germany, Mexico and the Phillipines, and short stories from Germany and Yugoslavia, among other countries.

Nothing appearing in The Malahat Review will have been previously published in English and the two editors prefer to print original documents rather than critical commentary. The exceptions are made only for "big-name" critics such as Knight, Dobree and Woodcock.

As Professor Skelton says, "This will not be a place where academics will come together and publish each other's work."

Nothing will go into the quarterly unless both editors approve unless, as hasn't happened so far, one feels so strongly about a contribution that he feels it must go in.

All the material scheduled to go in the first year's four issues has been asked for by the editors although unsolicited contributions are now being received.

SOME REJECTED

Dr. Peter admits that some contributions they invited have not been up to expectations and, in such cases, they have been rejected.

Says Dr. Peter: "That's the advantage of having two editors. One can ask for stuff and, if it is not up to our standards, the other can reject it."

With the exception of Layton's poetry and work sheets, the only Canadia ncontribution in the first few issues will be some poems by David Summers, a young Uvic student who, says Dr. Peter, "is remarkably good."

Both editors expect to be criticized for the lack of Canadian representation but, they point out, magazines already exist for Canadian critical and creative work. They will likely include more Canadian content in later issues but are concentrating on putting out a magazine with international appeal, rather than a specifically Canadian one.

1967 START

The first isssue is scheduled to come off the presses of the Morriss Printing Company of Victoria and to be on sale for Jan. 1, 1967, the start of Canada's Centennial year. That's not a coincidence.

At present there is no broadly based international quarterly, such as The Malahat Review is planned to be, with an appeal to the general public as well as scholars.

Prof. Skelton, who first throught of the idea in summer 1965, says circulation of the magazine will show that Canada, in its 100th year, can make a significant contribution in life and letters.

Publication of The Review will also show, he says, that Victoria "is not a cultural suburb." Both editors hope that city businessmen will appreciate this aspect of quarterly.

'NEED AN ANGEL'

The university, they say, has shown "sympathetic support" for the magazine but "we really need an angel to support us in our first year or two. After that, we'll be able to pay our own way."

Subscriptions to the magazine at this time would also help. A year's subscription, for four issues of between 120 and 128 pages each, costs $5.

The first press run will probably be for 3,000 copies and, if the quarterly catches on, it will not be possible to later obtain a full set because back numbers will not be reissued even if each issue is sold out. Subscriptions should be sent to The Malahat Review, University of Victoria.

Too Many Doctor Specialists Today

WINNIPEG (CP)—The dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia sees danger ahead for Canadian patients.

More than half the doctors practising in Canada are specialists, Dr. John F. McCreary said in a recent speech. Twenty years ago the percentage was 22.

"I find it difficult to see satisfactory medical care provided by a cadre of specialists alone. Who would provide a satisfactory primary contact with the patient and who would take care of the continuing needs of families?"

The fault lies partially in medical schools, Dr. McCreary said.

Throughout his training a doctor has to do only with specialists who teach him and training takes place "in teaching hospitals where carefully selected teacher-scientists, most of whom have not practised for a day in their lives, are his mentors."

"We must give the student some experience in a community practice. We must let him learn the rewards of mobilizing the resources of a community to treat a patient as well as mobilizing the resources of the hospital."

Interest Lack May Close Luxton Hall

Luxton Hall committee will refuse all new bookings for use of the community hall.

Its action follows a poor attendance at the annual meeting. Only five people, all of them committee members, turned up.

John Waddell, secretary, said the meeting was advertised but did not attract enough people for a quorum, so there was no alternative.

Previous commitments will be honored by the committee.

"The community seems to have a drastic reluctance to concern itself with the hall," he said. "As long as the doors remain open, that is all anyone cares."

He said the committee did not set a date for another meeting.

"If enough interest is shown then we will have another," he added. "I don't mind working for the hall but I want some help."

NEED ONLY REQUISITE

Plan Includes Rehabilitation

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The man who refuses to work still has a right to public support under the new concept of public assistance in Canada, Welfare Minister MacEachen said Tuesday.

He said the right is specifically set out in the Canada Assistance Plan passed by the Commons last week.

The man and his family must demonstrate only their need for financial help, Mr. MacEachen told a Senate committee examining the plan.

His deputy welfare minister, Joseph Willard, said welfare workers have come to realize "psychological blockages" of long background have sapped some persons of any motivation to work. Some families have lived on welfare for generations.

WORK ACTIVITY

The purpose of "work-activity projects" envisaged by the plan is to restore work habits and motivation, he said. The projects probably would prepare men and women for vocational and technical training, starting with matters as basic as grooming habits and how to approach employers for a job.

But even if a man refused to enter such a project, he deserved—as a right—assistance according to need.

Mr. Willard said the federal government believes the number of persons freeloading on social assistance is small, perhaps infinitesimal. Several senators agreed that the freeloaders have better fortune with social insurance-particularly unemployment insurance.

50 - 50 SHARE

The committee took just 75 minutes to question the health minister and report the bill back to the Senate, where it is expected to be passed this week.

The plan authorizes a 50-percent federal contribution to provincially-run welfare programs. The provinces are free to merge assistance to the elderly, the blind, the disabled, and to mothers, into a single system.

The $75-a-month ceiling is removed by the legislation with a pledge substituted, obliging the provinces to provide for food, shelter, clothing, fuel, utilities, household supplies and personal requirements.

Beyond these basic requirements, provinces may assist with costs of travel, funerals, health care and special care in institutional homes.

WEAKNESS

Senator David A. Croll (L—Ontario) said the "great weakness" of the plan is its discrimination against the have-not provinces.

"What good is flexibility if the province hasn't got the money to match your federal grants?" he asked.

Mr. MacEachen said the problem of equalization confronts every provincially-administered scheme. In this case, the federal government decided to wait for the federal-provincial tax-structure committee to come up with a general program of equalization.

CONVENTION TOLD:

Share Responsibility As Well as Equality

In England when a marriage is dissolved, the man, "if he is incapacitated, can go to a magistrate and gain an order requiring the woman, if she is fully capable of earning, to pay for his maintenance."

The statement by Lady Littlewood brought a few groans Tuesday from delegates attending the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. "Well," returned the speaker, "if you expect to have equal rights with men, you should be prepared to accept equal responsibilities!"

Speaking to the 20th Biennial convention of the CFBPWC at a banquet in the Empress Hotel ballroom, Lady Littlewood, president of the International Federation of BPCW, was also discussing the political rights of women. "In Canada . . . women have equal political rights in provincial and federal governments . . . economic rights and opportunities.

"In a number of places . . . women aren't given equal status. Some women, however, have taken chances and opportunities into both hands. In England, there is a woman high-court judge; India has a woman prime minister.

"But there are only one or two women at the top. I'm looking forward to the day when it's not news for women to get to the top; I'd like to see it expected."

Lady Littlewood stressed the importance of education for women today. She commended the Canadian Federation for their work with Ramallah, a college for training refugee girls, and expressed hope the project would continue because of the number of refugee girls needing training. She also mentioned training and retraining of women who have raised their families and who are looking for employment. The marriage age seems to be decreasing, she said, and women, who have raised families are eager to return to work.

"The BPWC should encourage these women to come back." She also mentioned that the organization should urge the government to provide a re-training program for these people.

Membership, said Lady Littlewood, was an important factor in the organization and said that with a greater membership, they would be able to speak for business and professional women all over the world, and therefore give encouragement to these women.

"We are all citizens of the world," said Lady Littlewood. "It is important for us all to make . . . contributions to our communities. We can do this through our club."

The clubs also "enable women of one country to help those of other countries," she said. "It makes the world a little better place, and I believe a more peaceful place."

Lady Littlewood was introduced by vice-president Miss Lucy Milne and thanked by the president of the Nova Scotia BPW Clubs, Miss Margaret Fitzgerald.

International Head at Biennial

Though both are lawyers, "my husband and I don't practice together," says Lady Littlewood. "On occasions we have appeared against each other," as representing claimant and defendant, "and on the first occasion I was the successful one!"

Lady Littlewood, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is here from England to attend the 20th Biennial Convention, Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Her remarks seem typical of this highly successful and humorous business woman.

Lady Littlewood studied law on the suggestion of her husband and now the whole family has entered the profession, including son Paul.

Her husband has supported her work, which she has practised continuously since passing her final examinations in 1935, and she doesn't believe her son was wrongly affected by having a "working mother." Lady Littlewood considers herself fortunate to have obtained a firstclass "nanny" and feels that her work made her a better and more interesting mother because she'd broadened her world by working. She does believe, however, that if a woman cannot arrange for good care for her child and cannot arrange her life so that she can spend time with him in his formative years, her place is at home.

Much of the visitor's work deals with matrimonial problems—she is a member of a marriage guidance council. Unlike some, she doesn't believe that an unhappy and incompatible couple should remain together for the sake of their children—she feels that sometimes it does more harm than good.

She also presents the belief that perhaps society's attitude toward broken homes may cause as much unhappiness for children as much as the break-up of the marriage itself.

Regarding her position as head of the International BPW, Lady Littlewood considers it a job to be done, rather than a round of social engagements. She would like to see the federation taking a bigger role in world affairs; to see the national federations strengthened and all recognized in their own countries as the official voice of business and professional women and matters concerning them; and also that women demanding equal rights with men, recognize and share responsibilities.

The unique necklace worn by Lady Littlewood is really her badge of office. Each of the small coins is engraved with the names of the past presidents of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, including one from Canada.

GOVERNMENT ACTION TO BE ASKED

Labor Study, Prison Program Figure in BPW Resolutions

Requests for a new correctional plan for female prisoners in federal institutions and for a motivational study of Canadian women who enter the labor force were the outcome of resolutions passed Monday and Tuesday at the 20th biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club's.

The organization will petition the federal government for action on the resolutions, both submitted by Toronto delegates, and which were among 11 resolutions passed before the assembled group at the Empress Hotel.

The resolution for a correctional plan stated that since "most female offenders . . . are not involved in organized crime, but in crimes rooted in inadequacy, self-destruction, prostitution, alcoholism and drug addiction" their requirements are different from those of men offenders.

The correctional plan suggested in the resolution would be based on a study of the needs of female prisoners "with a view to their successful rehabilitation on release."

The request for the labor study to be made by the Economic Council of Canada, is based on the proposed goal of one million women being integrated into the national labor force by 1970, and is aimed with a view to suggesting changes in social, educational and industrial policies to encourage women to develop their potential to the full.

Requests for a counselling service for middle-aged women entering, or re-entering, the labor force; ballot boxes in hospitals and nursing homes at federal elections; revision of the Canada Pension Plan to allow for "employment of a person by his spouse," and partial benefit of Pension Plan contributions to a dependant on the contributor's death, were other resolutions passed at the convention.

Also resolved were requests for changes in the federal Estate Tax Act, and an increase in basic income tax exemptions for single persons, both male and female.

ON RHODESIA

Firmer Sanctions Urged by Britain

LONDON (CP)—Britain was reported to have appealed to the Commonwealth today to provide more assistance to pave the way towards increased economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

The appeal was said to have been made during a Commonwealth sanctions committee meeting following a clash between Britain and Zambia over the effectiveness of current economic curbs aimed at bringing down the white-minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith.

An informant said Mrs. Judith Hart, junior minister in the British Commonwealth office, said even the offer of a single transport plane by a group of Commonwealth countries might prove vital for Commonwealth unity.

The sanctions committee meeting was adjourned for another session Thursday so that representatives could consult with their governments on how much aid to give Britain and Zambia to help turn the economic screws tighter against Rhodesia.

CHALLENGE SANCTIONS

The informant said Mrs. Hart maintained that current economic sanctions against Rhodesia are biting hard and causing increasing hardship among Rhodesian farmers and businessmen. But Simon Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, challenged that argument, maintaining that sanctions have not proven effective.

If Britain had used force to oust the Ian Smith regime at the very beginning of the trouble, the situation would have been far more satisfactory than it is today and the cost infinitesmal, Kapwepwe was reported to have said.

Britain had made an offer to Zambia of an estimated $21,000,000 to help develop alternative transport routes for Zambian imports and exports. Kapwepwe was reported to have stated this offer did not go far enough.

The British - led economic sanctions were applied after the Smith regime seized independence for Rhodesia last year when Britain refused to free its Central African colony without guarantees for eventual Negro-majority rule there.

Before that, landlocked, Negro-ruled Zambia had imported and exported through neighboring Rhodesia.

NEW STRIKES AT OIL DUMPS

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck new blows today at the war potential of North Viet Nam, where swollen rivers were reported threatening new devastation. A spokesman said a raid Tuesday, only 16 miles from Haiphong, turned an oil dump into an inferno visible for 140 miles.

Special Mediator Appointed

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — With a strike involving 32,500 employees of 139 Quebec hospitals only 12 hours away, Premier Daniel Johnson's office announced today that the cabinet's legal counsellor, Yves Pratte, had been named special mediator in the dispute.

The decision to name a special mediator was reached this morning during a meeting of an inter-ministerial committee, comprising the premier and representatives of the health, family and social welfare and labor departments.

QUICK ACTION HOPED

The premier said he hoped that all the parties involved would co-operate in the public interest in order to reach a settlement as rapidly as possible and without any interruption in hospital services.

The hospital workers involved in the dispute belong to 700 different union locals of which only 250 are affiliated to the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Their strike vote was taken June 29 in protest against lengthy delays in their talks with the administrations of the 139 institutions involved.

Russia Deadly Serious

LBJ May Get Viet Warning

LONDON (UPI)—Communist diplomats said today the Soviet Union wants to convey a stern warning to President Johnson through Prime Minister Wilson that any further escalation of the Viet Nam conflict could lead to a major war.

They said the Russian-led Communist block is deadly serious in its recent threat to send volunteers to North Viet Nam and that the Warsaw Pact powers cannot stand idly by indefinitely.

'ANXIOUS'

They made it clear the Kremlin is "most anxious" to steer clear of any direct military crash with the United States and that the key to preventing such a catastrophe lies in Washington as well as in Moscow.

They hinted that Red China is going all out to promote a clash between the United States and Russia.

Wilson flies to Moscow Saturday and expects to have talks with Premier Alexei Kosygin and other Kremlin leaders. Kosygin asked him Tuesday to advance his visit by three hours so he would arrive at 6 p.m., presumably so the talks could start then.

WILSON'S PLAN

Wilson's chief plan is to try to enlist Soviet co-operation in moves to reconvene the Geneva conference which settled the French-Indochina war in 1954 and of which both Russia and Britain continue to be co-chairmen.

Present indications are the Russians have no intention of heeding the British call or a similar call being made in Moscow by visiting Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indiri Gandhi.

Diplomats said Moscow would call such a conference only if the United States accepts the four peace conditions set by Hanoi and the five set by the Viet Cong in the south. The conditions add up to a withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Viet Nam.

MPs Launch Debate On Medicare Measure

OTTAWA (CP)—The government got conflicting advice Tuesday on its medical care insurance program.

New Democrats called for full speed ahead, delaying further the Commons' summer recess if necessary. But members of other opposition parties suggested legislation traffic signs should read: "Proceed with caution."

The Commons approved a resolution preceding the bill, got a first look at the legislation, and gave it first reading after 7½ hours of debate.

Health Minister MacEachen, piloting the legislation, said he hoped the bill would get second reading—approval in principle—before the House starts a summer recess. Second reading was listed as one of the points of business before the Commons today but there were several other matters listed ahead of it.

The bill set out the four conditions announced previously under which provincial plans qualify for a share of an estimated $340,000,000 annual federal kitty. A provincial plan must:

- Cover the full range of physicians' services.
- Cover 90 per cent of the province's population at the start, rising to 95 per cent in three years.
- Be publicly operated, non-profit and open to public audit.
- Be designed to be portable from one province to another.

Mr, MacEachen reiterated his hope that the bill would "result in the commencement of provincial medical care plans covering all Canadians on the 100th birthday of Confederation, July 1, 1967."

He added he would like to see the bill receive second reading before a summer adjournment but this was not a government requirement.

Conservative, Creditiste and Social Credit MPs plumped for thorough study of the bill before approval.

But NDP leader Douglas said it should be pushed through as soon as possible.

Medicare was promised in the Liberal party platform of 1917, he said. There might be some problems inherent in the proposed plan "but if we wait until we have a perfect setup we will never start."

". . . The minister and this House cannot afford to give any province an alibi for not being ready to come into this plan on July 1 next."

OTTAWA PAYS HALF

Mr. MacEachen said it was estimated the plan, which entails a payment by Ottawa of 50 per cent of the per capita cost of insurance for physicians' services in the participating province, would cost the federal treasury $340,000,000 a year. The provinces would match this amount.

It was estimated Canadians

MacEachen Bucked For Pushing Bill

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen may have landed in hot water with some cabinet colleagues and Liberal MPs with his decision Tuesday night to push forward with the government's medicare bill before the summer recess.

His statement, which brought shouts of "no, no" from the Conservatives' Gordon Churchill, was to be raised at a morning Liberal party caucus meeting.

Mr. Churchill, member for Winnipeg South Centre, charged that Mr. MacEachen broke a commitment made by George McIlraith, the government House leader, during inter-party talks to arrange a date for Parliament's summer recess.

The health minister's statement came at the conclusion of debate on the resolution preceding the medicare bill. The Commons had just given first reading—a step that permits the bill to be distributed for study by the parties.

Mr. Churchill said that in numerous discussions with Mr. McIlraith during the past 10 days it was indicated the government would not proceed to second reading — approval in principle — of medicare before the recess.

He said he thought Mr. MacEachen's action "is breaking

NDP Questions Need of Planes

(See Page 21)

Opposition leader Strachan said today the New Democratic Party will call for a full investigation of the "so-called air fleet".

"We want to determine the necessity of the air fleet, the purpose it serves and whether or not the province needs the fleet at all," he said in an interview.

"We want to see if the best interests of the public and the provincial pocketbook are being served."

Commenting on the government's recent aquisition of a $500,000 Lear jet on a lease-purchase arrangement, Mr. Strachan said he thought it to be "a luxury the government could do without.

"They already have enough planes so (Highways Minister) Gaglardi can get to the church on time," he said.

When he flew to Prince Rupert last weekend to attend a Skeena nomination convention he said he "flew commercial and found it to be economic and expeditious."

"I fly quite a few thousand miles a year — all by commercial."

CREWS RESCUED

Tankers Ablaze After Collision

LISBON, Portugal (CP) — A Greek and a Norwegian tanker collided and caught fire today about 20 miles northwest of St. Vincente Cape, the southernmost cape of Portugal, and one officer was reported missing overboard.

Both crews were rescued.

A Portuguese Navy plane and a ship were dashing to help the tankers after a positional mix-up had delayed assistance, a navy spokesman said.

The alarm was raised shortly after the 11,577 - ton Greek tanker Marietta Nomikos — bound from Hamburg to the Persian Gulf—radioed that she was on fire.

Almost immediately the 34,395-ton Norwegian tanker Mosli reported she was also on fire.

One officer of the Marietta Nomikos was reported lost overboard.

CREWS RESCUED

The Mosli's 46 crew members were rescued by the 2,374-ton Norwegian freighter Bayard and the Greek seamen were picked up by the West German vessel Stuttgart.

The Stuttgart has firefighting equipment and was trying to halt the blaze.

From Lisbon, the 516-ton Portuguese tug Praia da Adraga sailed from Cape St. Vincent to join the navy ship Azevia, which had been patrolling the southern coast of Algarve.

AUTO SAFETY PLANS MOVE AHEAD IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House of Representatives commerce committee joined the Senate today in voting to require auto makers to comply with federal safety standards in time to affect 1968 models.

Acting on one provision of auto safety legislation, the group voted to require initial federal safety standards for all vehicles sold in the United States by next January 31, and revised standards a year late.

The Senate has passed a bill containing the same requirement.

The standards would take effect about six months to a year after they were issued by the Secretary of Commerce.

THREE MEN UNHARMED AFTER 16-HOUR ORDEAL

Rescuers Chip Through to Trapped Miners

AMBROSIA LAKE, N.M. (UPI) — Three Indian miners, trapped 100 feet below ground in a uranium mine for 16 hours, were brought out unharmed in a dramatic rescue today.

The three Navajos squinted in the early morning sunlight as they emerged from the shaft of the Rimrock mine. They embraced their families, talked briefly with newsmen, shook the hands of their rescuers and then got in their cars and went home to bed.

The trio — Jerry Yazzi, 29; Charlie Martinez, 34; and Scotty Hudson, 27 — were caught in a cubicle four by eight feet Tuesday afternoon when the ceiling of a mine tunnel collapsed.

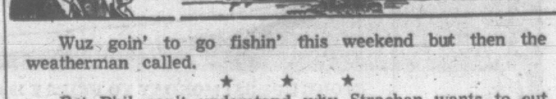
There were air holes into the chamber and the men received food and sweaters, to keep themselves warm, from the other side of the barrier during the rescue operation.

Martinez, in broken English, told newsmen: "I feel very good. I was awfully cold down there. I knew I was going to get out. It was a matter of time. I just sat there and drank the soda pop and coffee."

Hudson said it was "awfully good to see light again." Yazzi said he would go home to sleep, then go back to work.

The rescuers had chipped away all night at eight feet of limestone to reach the trapped men. They could talk to the men all through the rescue. But they had to go very slowly because of the danger of triggering another cave-in.

New Mexico state mine inspector Bill Hays said the cave-in was caused by "a natural fault" and was something that could not be prevented. He said that portion of the mine would not be used again.



Wuz goin' to go fishin' this weekend but then the weatherman called.

PROFESSORS PETER, SKELTON SHARE DUTIES

LITTLE MONEY, MANY CONTACTS

'Big Ambitions' Launch New Quarterly Magazine

By DESMOND BILL

Two University of Victoria professors with large ambitions and a small bankroll are preparing the first issues of a new magazine aimed at an international audience.

Robin Skelton, bearded, English-born poet, and John Peter, smooth South African-born novelist, have something that is just as important as money, however.

Between them they seem to have at least nodding acquaintance with the best known contemporary writers in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Partly as a result, the list of contributors to the first four issues of The Malahat Review, as the magazine will be called, reads like an international Who's-Who of literature.

20 LETTERS

The first few issues will feature 20 hitherto unpublished letters of D. H. Lawrence, work sheets showing the progressive drafts of some of John Betjeman's poems, a memoir of Miro in New York illustrated by the Spanish painter's own prints, and exclusive photographs of the most recent sculpture of Henry Moore.

They will also include previously unpublished poems of 19th century poet John Clare, a previously un-translated essay on Cervantes by Miguel Unamuno, critical essays by such contributors as Bonamy Dobree, George Woodcock and G. Wilson Knight, work sheets of poems by Irving Layton and Irish poet Thomas Kinsella, an illustrated article on Pop art by Allan Kaprow, originator of the Happening, and a Strindberg play translated into English for the first time.

Other contributions will be as varied as the The True Story of Billy Buckles, sections of a Central African Journal by Paul Theroux, a translation of a radio play by German writer Gunther Eich, poems by Kingsley Amis, translations of poetry from Germany, Mexico and the Phillipines, and short stories from Germany and Yugoslavia, among other countries.

Nothing appearing in The Malahat Review will have been previously published in English and the two editors prefer to print original documents rather than critical commentary. The exceptions are made only for "big-name" critics such as Knight, Dobree and Woodcock.

As Professor Skelton says, "This will not be a place where academics will come together and publish each other's work."

Nothing will go into the quarterly unless both editors approve unless, as hasn't happened so far, one feels so strongly about a contribution that he feels it must go in.

All the material scheduled to go in the first year's four issues has been asked for by the editors although unsolicited contributions are now being received.

Dr. Peter admits that some contributions they invited have not been up to expectations and, in such cases, they have been rejected.

Says Dr. Peter: "That's the advantage of having two editors. One can ask for stuff and, if it is not up to our standards, the other can reject it."

With the exception of Layton's poetry and work sheets, the only Canadia ncontribution in the first few issues will be some poems by David Summers, a young Uvic student who, says Dr. Peter, "is remarkably good."

Both editors expect to be criticized for the lack of Canadian representation but, they point out, magazines already exist for Canadian critical and creative work. They will likely include more Canadian content in later issues but are concentrating on putting out a magazine with international appeal, rather than a specifically Canadian one.

The first issue is scheduled to come off the presses of the Morriss Printing Company of Victoria and to be on sale for Jan. 1, 1967, the start of Canada's Centennial year. That's not a coincidence.

At present there is no broadly based international quarterly, such as The Malahat Review is planned to be, with an appeal to the general public as well as scholars.

Prof. Skelton, who first throught of the idea in summer 1965, says circulation of the magazine will show that Canada, in its 100th year, can make a significant contribution in life and letters.

Publication of The Review will also show, he says, that Victoria "is not a cultural suburb." Both editors hope that city businessmen will appreciate this aspect of quarterly.

'NEED AN ANGEL'

The university, they say, has shown "sympathetic support" for the magazine but "we really need an angel to support us in our first year or two. After that, we'll be able to pay our own way."

Subscriptions to the magazine at this time would also help. A year's subscription, for four issues of between 120 and 128 pages each, costs $5.

The first press run will probably be for 3,000 copies and, if the quarterly catches on, it will not be possible to later obtain a full set because back numbers will not be reissued even if each issue is sold out. Subscriptions should be sent to The Malahat Review, University of Victoria.

A look at the many exceptional photos entered in The Times Amateur Snapshot Contest makes you wish there could be 30 winners.

But the judges could pick only three, which were awarded the $10 first prizes, and give honorable mention to two other pictures in each category.

So for the second week of the contest, here is the line-up:

People of the World — Mrs. Valerie Tisdall, 622 Barton; honorable mention, E. R. Pedersen, 2631 E. 46th Ave., Vancouver 16, and T. N. Parsell, 1100 Benvenuto Ave., Brentwood Bay.

Animals of the World — Henry Szmuniewski, 784 Interurban; honorable mention, David MacFarlane, 1611 Hampshire, and Martin Gross, 1618 Richmond.

The World In Which We Live — John McVie, 2171 Bartlett; honorable mention, Dane Campbell, 10901 Madrona Drive, Sidney, and D. W. Coton, 3922 Holland Ave.

For Mr. Szmuniewski's $10 award-winning photo of birds perched on wires, see page 3. Winning photos and runners-up in each category will be published daily.

The winning photos also are forwarded to the local finals for the $25 grand prize in each category at the end of the six-week contest.

$50,000 IN PRIZES

Winners of that decision will compete in the national contest for the many prizes totalling $50,000 in cash and travel awards.

CANADA AIMS TO KEEP AFRICAN MEMBERS IN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is expected to announce soon that he will lead Canada's delegation to a Commonwealth conference that will discuss Rhodesia and other issues in London Sept. 6-14.

It was learned today that the Canadian delegation will oppose any action on Rhodesia that would cause African countries to withdraw from the Commonwealth.

Government spokesmen declined to comment directly on a threat Tuesday by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia to walk out of the Commonwealth in protest against British negotiations with the white supremacy regime in Rhodesia.
